MOUNT LEBANON HIGH SCHOOL
PITTSBURGH, PENNSYLVANIA

From the traditional to the contemporary and sometimes even further,
From the vivid present to the nebulous future,
From three years in a high school to life in a world beyond . . .
ABSTRACTIONS.

Spirit, though names at times don't fit it, is a force or drive translated into: a final four yards beyond your limit, an extra hour at night, facing what can't be faced, attempting a feat of strength or will or courage never before dared by you.

Doing something for a reason indescribable, against logic and sense, for a school, a person, an idea—Spirit stems from the deepest part of a very complicated yet very simple humanity—
a need for something more than yourself.

In a big, busy world, each one must prove a few certain truths to himself.

Being an individual is a personal thing:

a new hair style or outfit,

an instrument or spattered canvas of many colors, or a special knack of talking.

Sometimes, however, uniqueness is not so apparent;

it may be seen alone in a deserted library or on a cold, solitary walk home, heard in a lone argument in student congress, or felt in a play written for dramatics.

Nevertheless,

a distinct character or contribution reaffirms the knowledge that you are you.

Long lists of memorization, an apparently meaningless and indecipherable proof, a paper assigned six months in advance turned in late are the mechanics of learning.
 Study may range from a hidden affiliation with history dates and chemistry equations to a detailed study of a Shakespearean play.
 Study may mean a Friday night spent all alone or discipline without the telephone, radio, or television.
 But one understood truth,
 a brand new system of thinking, or a sharp focus from a vague abstraction makes it all worth it.
 Study is maturity.

Recreation—the freedom of choice to participate voluntarily, not bounded by strait jackets of responsibility and duty and school work and other burdens—
Renewing a vital part of you in a swift-flying hour with friends, in a racket or ball
or anything wielded before a canvas or flashing lights or a showcase, in the sound and thrill of the big beat or the big play—
An extra dimension to knowledge and pleasure and life—
the development of vital interests.

One who for various reasons finds an inescapable burden on his shoulders, whether intentional or unintentional—Seen in a representative duly elected by a thousand, a hundred, thirty-two, or five;
seen in a faded blue jersey looking for an end;
seen in an individual struggling to hold together a group, a staff, a conglomeration of ideas and abilities—Overwhelmed but never ended by dark days and adversity and lack of co-operation; faced by an unsurmountable obstacle that is somehow bypassed—a leader.

An intuitive response from deep within an individual—
a part of the maker, Resulting in a special form, whether a series of notes, or swirls of colors, or the reworking of a piece of metal, or a series of words on paper—Creativity is a part of the subconscious forced into materiality.
Whether fast or slow, painful or easy, the consequence is uniqueness and identity.

An occasion, limited by time, space, and thought, occurring at irregular intervals, acquires an aura of uniqueness.
The furious preparation manifested in cold dollars and squeezed hours, the myriad special touches, the new shoes, and even a car-wash—
And then the reality of the event itself:
a blending of familiar and unfamiliar faces,
the distant sound of music, soft lights and harsh lights and the presence of the one with you—
And then the summary:
whether a simple happiness 'til tomorrow or a more lasting promise, tomorrow it will be remembered.

An impersonal phrase blanketing a limitless field which differs from person to person—Time spent in actions which reduce a harsh green blackboard and the same old faces to a soft blur—
 A sweaty room or hard ground,
 a loud beat or a blazing fire,
 but something intimate to each individual . . .
 An activity is a third dimension to the overlapping worlds of school and home.

In between schedules and courses and numbers and books
and pencils and pens:
A rendezvous between classes,
An unplanned visitation,
Informality with a (sometimes) formal teacher,
A meeting in the middle of the lunch line,
An empty corridor at five o'clock when everybody's gone,
The football stadium with a coat of new snow,
But nevertheless a part of a school, an education, a building, yourself.

A lot of little things thrown together:
icy cold mornings and showers, sweltering afternoons and a thermostat that won't move, a special symbol on a paper, numbers from a Saturday morning test . . .
Happenings distinct enough to be events to you—or anyone—whether seen in big snow or big war, Places and people etched indelibly on a memory:
a bus ride or a ski lodge or the bleachers or a locker or the silent words whispered by a friend (your friend)—
And so you sit there, thinking algebra in math and words about words in English, and you feel something—a mood.

To the student, the high school presents a world of complexity and confusion, a world of Form 27A's in duplicate, of subjective tests in mathematics, of pages of mimeographed material on the Common Market. To the faculty falls the task of transforming this chaos of seemingly unrelated entities into a meaningful abstraction—knowledge . . .

FACULTY

Dr. Ralph D. Horsman, superintendent of schools, assumes the responsibility of the administration of school policy.

Dr. Joseph C. Keifer, assistant superintendent of schools, co-ordinates the activities of educational staffs and supervises the instructional program.

The school board meets monthly to determine the governing educational principles of Mt. Lebanon Township. Members include Miss Miriam Headley, secretary; Mrs. June G. Cameron; Mrs. Virginia Sherman; Mr. Robert F. Dyson, president; Mr. James R. Orr; Mr. William A. Miller; Mr. John C. Loos; Mr. Robert Simonds, vice president; Dr. William Hall; Mr. Donald C. Bush, solicitor; and Mr. John Dickinson.

Dr. Floy L. Penn, director of instruction, co-ordinates instruction, appraises new educational trends, and implements new curricular programming.

Miss Elizabeth A. Evans, vice-principal in charge of curriculum at the high school, oversees instruction and textbook orders.

Vice-principal Ralph W. McDermot takes care of student schedules and records and co-ordinates administrative efforts.

Principal Dr. Nelson Mills supervises the total instructional and co-curricular program of the high school.

Through the efforts of the superintendents, principals, and school board members, the various complexities and challenges of modern education are met and overcome to make the highest degree of learning possible in the Mt. Lebanon Public Schools. In formulating school policy, investigating a new curriculum in music, or rescheduling a boy who was programmed into 911 Girls' Gym, the administration strives to provide a comprehensive, modern education.

Miss Dorothy Grove, director of activities, sponsors student congress and co-ordinates school-affiliated activities.

Mrs. Judy McCartney, assistant director of activities, correlates the compilation of student activity records with the participation of committee and squad members.

Mrs. Ferne Horne, guidance director, discusses new trends in college admission with counselors Mrs. Luella Caldwell, Mrs. Irene Hough, Mrs. Helen McDuffie, Mr. Edward Basch, Mr. Andrew Zeedick, and Mr. Joseph Price.

Mr. D. Moore, school psychologist, administers vocational and psychological tests for student counseling.

The guidance counselors, activities directors, and nurses provide a link with colleges, supervise extracurricular activities, give medical aid, or perform numerous other functions that complement the work of the teaching faculty and administration. Through the work of these people, education is brought to the personal level of each student.

Miss Marjorie Scanlon, as speech therapist, analyzes and helps correct student speech problems.

Miss Patricia Croke and Miss Fern High supervise the high school medical facilities and sponsor Future Nurses of America.

Secretaries Mrs. M. Steffans, Mrs. R. Clatty, Mrs. C. Rodgers, Miss R. Wass, Mrs. L. Gerhold, Mrs. F. Taylor, Mrs. J. Booth, Mrs. B. Cassidy, and Mrs. M. Schilit aid the administration by keeping records and files accurate.

Mr. John R. Ramsey, administrative assistant to the superintendent, supervises building maintenance and distribution of supplies.

Librarians Mrs. Jane Kehoe and Miss Jean MacKinney aid students in the use of the library.

Miss Ruth Gordon serves as home and school visitor, providing a link between the high school and the community.

In the teaching faculty itself, however, lies the core of the high school.

Whether by leading a discussion on predestination in Oedipus Rex, correcting an essay on the imagery in Macbeth, or lecturing on the Victorian era, the English teacher seeks to help the student gain a clarity of thought and expression in his native language. Through co-ordinated reading and writing assignments on works such as Julius Caesar or Our Town, the English teacher aids the student in better understanding himself and in making himself understood.

In the same way, the language teacher promotes understanding among peoples of all lands. From reading the works of Von Goethe, Camus, and Cervantes, to practicing the conjugation of fero in the future tense, language students gain a knowledge of the thought and culture of others. The language teacher forces the student to think on a world-wide plane that precludes all regional and national boundaries.

By presenting the past, social studies teachers also prepare students for the abstract world of the future. By investigating the cause of a historical event such as the rise of Louis XIV or considering the effects of the Missouri Compromise, history teachers strive to give students an awareness of the debt owed to the past and of its significance for the future. Through the new subject area co-ordinator, the history teacher complements the work of the English teacher in presenting the abstract principles that form the basis of student thought.

. . . Math and science are inextricably combined to show the student the fundamentals of the world surrounding him. Science gives the general theories, and math supports or denies them by proof. In addition to educating students in abstractions for tomorrow, however, Mt. Lebanon High School education encompasses training in practical skills for use today. Through courses in bookkeeping, shorthand, and typing, students gain knowledge valuable to their success in academic fields. In other courses, such as driving or shop, the instructors strive to give students an education that will benefit them outside the high school. Courses such as art give students an opportunity to display their creative talents.

Cafeteria workers prepare lunches for the student body.

Custodian Mr. Al Simmons, by storing cafeteria supplies, co-operates with the cafeteria staff.

School employees, such as the kitchen and custodial staffs, prepare the lunches and maintain school property. Through the work of these two groups, high school life is made much easier for both faculty and students.

Cafeteria assistants section and arrange pies for student lunches.

Mr. Matthew Gilkeson supervises building maintenance and co-ordinates custodial organization.

This, then, shows the wide scope of Mt. Lebanon education. From the highly technical knowledge gained in a physics course to the practical information obtained in a health class, the high school student secures an all-encompassing yet highly personal education.

Agile fingers string watercolors, staple pink papers, collect slippery coins. Fits of pen and ink coax blank pages into meaning, into moods. Hammers and paintbrushes accompany the prattle of play practice. Thermometers or stencils replace study halls. Cavernous gymnasiums acquire personalities beneath rainbows of twisted streamers. A student-faculty basketball game adds two foreign accents to the community. Parliamentary procedure impels presidents to their feet. Ink-coated notepad in hand, interviewer searches for the word to encompass his subject's expression. Silver thumbtacks puncture picture schedules, caption lists, deadline rosters. Chewed pencil erasers and bitten fingernails stimulate mental struggles.

ACTIVITIES

Through Student Congress, Student Court, and

the Advisory Council, students gain an insight into parliamentary government, while actually playing a vital role in the operation of the school. The Student Congress, composed of representatives elected from all grade levels, serves as a link between the student body and administration. Whether through publishing the Student Directory or supervising the Cookies-for-Vietnam drive, Student Congress works to benefit all students of the high school. Student Court allows pupils to present their side of disciplinary problems to a reviewing board of twelve judges chosen from the student body. The Advisory Council provides another direct link between faculty and students, for members of this council meet, under Dr. Mills' supervision, to discuss the revised testing schedule and its effects on senior week or to consider other pertinent topics.

Second semester officers Frank Willison, Neil Myers, and Betsy Smith link student viewpoint with school policy in Congress activities.

Charlie Brenner rises to make a motion concerning proposals for the senior project.

As vice president, Sally Schneider directs the Christmas Cookies-for-Vietnam project.

During a Student Congress session, homeroom presidents and senior representatives voice the ideas of the student body.

Sally Schneider, Cheryl Klein, and Paul Kmec draft a letter of inquiry concerning the participation of the Harlem Diplomats in the A.F.S. fund-raising drive.

The Advisory Council, which includes Linda Hileman, Neil Myers, Barb Schilberg, Con Howe, Rick Seymour, and Pat Wood, fosters understanding and co-operation between the faculty and the student body.

Student Court judges and clerks Dave Donahoe, Barb Hauss, Mark Small, Kris Banerjee, Dave Bankston, Diane Miller, Lynn Sabetti, Regina Kelly, John Guehl, Bob Ruck, Caroline Tropp, and Jim Copeland determine the validity of out-of-order violations.

After the first semester of their senior year, Larry Rosenberg, Judy Rosecrans, and Tim Hauser won Activities Guards for their outstanding participation in activities.

Many students receive awards from national and community groups as well as from the school in recognition of outstanding academic or extracurricular achievement. The National Merit Scholarship program and the Cum Laude Society recognize students with outstanding scholastic ability at Mt. Lebanon. This year Mt. Lebanon had twenty-four semifinalists and fifty-eight commended students in the National Merit contest. The Cum Laude Society, a national honor society, accepted thirty-two new members from the class of 1966. In addition, individual achievement is recognized in several ways. The D.A.R. award is based on both character and scholarship. Activities keys and guards cite individual participation in school activities.

Linda Hileman, nominated for the D.A.R. award by the senior class, competed on a state and national level for a scholarship by taking a state-wide examination.

In recognition of extensive participation in extracurricular activities, Bill Ramsey, Charlie Cox, Eileen Neely, Marianna Read, and Tom Remington received Activities Keys at the end of their junior year.

Two national societies honor Mount Lebanon

student journalists and musicians. Quill and Scroll, the national honor society for high school publications, accepts its members from the editorial ranks of the school's three publications—the Lantern, Log, and Mounity.

Mount Lebanon Chapter 547 of the Modern Music Masters Society, one of the two chapters in Pennsylvania, recognizes outstanding musical talent from the high school band, orchestra, and chorus. Under the sponsorship of Miss May K. Sneary, Tri-M members this past year presented several afterschool concerts for the student body, entertained throughout the community at homes for the aged, and sponsored the hootenanny and the Drawing Room Recital. In addition, chapter members attended musical events ranging from Gounod's Faust to the Civic Light Opera.

Honored for their journalistic activities, Judy Rosecrans, Larry Rosenberg, Tom Tewell, and Paula Levine joined Quill and Scroll in their junior year.

Marc Resnick and Peter Jackson sing "Hava Nagilah" at an afternoon Tri-M concert.

Tim Hauser, Caroline Tropp, Reed Woodhouse, Bob Mayberry, and Eileen Morgan, officers of Modern Music Masters, organize hootenannies, afterschool concerts, and drawing room recitals.

Wendy Saul, Mounty typing editor, organizes the compilation of the student publication.

During 1965-1966 the Mounty enjoyed one of its most successful years. The fall sales campaign, which featured Claude Waverly, the "Man from M.O.U.N.T.Y.," achieved the highest number of subscription sales in the history of the publication. Instead of publishing five short issues during the year as in previous years, the Mounty editors chose to print one comprehensive issue each semester, which included longer short stories, essays, and plays, and a much wider variety of types of writing. Thus the Mounty served its purpose as a vehicle for student self-expression through creative writing.

Rick Wolfe, editor of the Mounty, screens and edits student literary works for the first edition.

As the editorial assistant of the Mounty, Kathi Hartford helps with the selection of articles for publication.

Business editor Donna Shoemaker confers with Miss Janice Mellinger, the faculty adviser, about home-room distribution of the Mounty.

Eye-catching photos and banner headlines signal

the arrival of each month's issue of the Lebanon Lantern. The editorial staff of the Lantern, under the leadership of co-editors Larry Rosenberg and Tom Tewell, assigns news and feature stories for each issue to the reporters, and then works to revise and edit these stories before each month's deadline. A typical copy of the Lantern includes news of The Madwoman of Chaillot, the beginning of basketball practice, and an article on the exchange students.

The Devilette, included with each issue of the Lantern, reports student trends and opinions on subjects ranging from hair styles to movies. The Scholastic Roto, another supplement to the Lantern, presents articles on nation-wide student interests such as clothing, cars, and sports. Throughout the year, editors, reporters, typists, and other staff members work to make the Lantern a school newspaper designed to meet the needs and interests of the student.

Tom Tewell and Larry Rosenberg, co-editors of the Lantern, review plans for the next issue.

News editor Marc Krass and sports editors Richard and Charles Perryman survey the results of a month's work.

Before homeroom distribution, editor Sue Laschied scans a completed issue of the Devilette.

Lantern business managers Marno Doczy and John Bosley review a list of subscribers during the hectic sales campaign.

Lantern mimeographer Mike Wood prints the first issue of the Devilette.

Typing editor Amy Pruitt proofreads Lantern articles before the printer receives them.

The unending search for a black pen and the cry

"Who has the little ones?" typify an evening in the Log office. But the yearbook means more than sizing rulers, layout forms, and a cover design. From crop-marked team pictures to reflection on a year's meaning, from hysteria at approaching deadlines to contemplation of a special time, from concrete skills to abstract achievement, the 1966 Log staff mirrored the theme of its own production. Under the supervision of advisers Miss Jacqueline Hughes and Miss Elizabeth Barbara Sipe, the senior editors worked together with their staffs to create a yearbook which vividly depicted the year at Mt. Lebanon High School.

Log sports staff members, Charlie Brenner, Jim Copeland, John Gillilan, Peter Jackson, and Neil Myers, evaluate the photographs of the 1966 wrestling season.

The Log activities staff, Merianne Miller, Becky Felt, Chris Schnure, Barb Shindell, Elaine Andrews, and Sue Tannenbaum, carefully plans and measures layouts for the 1966 yearbook.

The eight editors of the 1966 Log, Judy Rosecrans, Paula Levine, Marianna Read, Barb Wilson, Jim Lee, Tim Hauser, John Hammerschlag, and Carter Nicholas, confer with their faculty adviser, Miss Jacqueline Hughes.

Staff members Marlee Pierce and John Bosley, managers Fred Peal and Robie Meyer, and assistant Jeff Fisher of the Log business staff tabulate money and receipts during the Log sales campaign.

Members of the classes staff, Leah Vidmer, Margaret Milnor, Sue Hamilton, Beth Collins, and Barb Seidelman, discuss the Log's senior directory.

The editorial assistants, Karen Mikus, Carolyn Additon, Ellen Baggett, Andee Hession, Jon Delano, and Keith Milton, master the techniques of editing write-ups, drawing layouts, and captioning pictures.

Students with outstanding talents in speech or in dramatics are rewarded with membership in the National Forensic League or the National Thespian Society, two more honor societies at Mt. Lebanon High School.

Whether in discussing compulsory arbitration of wage disputes, giving an objective lecture on the Vietnamese situation, or delivering an original oration, N.F.L. members gain a working knowledge of public speaking and in logical thinking. The National Thespian Society grants membership to students who have earned over one hundred points from acting or backstage work on high school productions. Highlights of the troupe's tenth year included a performance of Dylan Thomas' Under Milk Wood, the production of a student-directed children's play, and a trip for some troupe members to the National Thespian Convention in Portland, Oregon.

John Bosley, Reed Woodhouse, Kathi Hartford, Jon Delano, Tom Remington, Dave Donahoe, Steve Davies, Gayla Kraetsch, and Tim Hauser, members of the National Forensic League, compete in interscholastic speech and debate on Saturday mornings.

Thespian officers Rick Wolfe, Heidi Wells, Debbie Frick, and Charlie Cox discuss the financing of the June trip to the national convention in Portland.

Tom Remington, president of N.F.L., congratulates Steve Davies on winning a trophy for impromptu speaking.

Rick Wolfe, as the Second Voice, watches Sue Jenkins, as Mrs. Dai Bread II, look into her crystal ball to predict future events for Donna Shoemaker, as Mrs. Dai Bread I.

Judy Spiegel and Tim Hauser raise their arms in a mock salute to the "chosen land."

Milk Wood housewives Martha Brunner, Debbie Frick, and Leslie Birtig gossip about local scandals.

Mr. Pugh, played by Greg Hinchliffe, schemes about poisoning his shrewish wife, played by Sharon Latchaw.

Becky Felt, publicity chairman for Under Milk Wood, hangs posters advertising the Thespian play.

With a gift of sunglasses from her pupils, Annie Sullivan, played by Jane Roesemeier, leaves the Perkins Institute.

The Miracle Worker, the 1965 all-school play, told the story of a deaf-mute child's fight against her own limitations. Under the direction of Mr. Julian T. Myers, lead actresses Jane Roesemeier, as Annie Sullivan, and Mary Ellen O'Hara, as Helen Keller, skillfully conveyed the force of William Gibson's work to the audience. The emotional effect mounted as Annie and Helen fought through battles of stubborn wills and misunderstandings to the final victory as Helen realized the meaning of the word "water." Through the work of the crews and a supporting cast headed by Rick Wolfe, Larry Giles, and Debbie Donahoe, the play provided one of the highlights of the spring semester.

Mary Ellen O'Hara, as Helen Keller, explores Annie's face, anxiously searching for the identity of her new teacher.

Annie Sullivan tries to restrain Helen as she snatches some food from her brother's plate.

Captain Keller, played by Rick Wolfe, attempts to comfort his distraught daughter Helen.

My Fair Lady, the choral music department's 1965

spring production, brought the sights and sounds of London life at the turn of the century to the high school stage. From the tumultuous, raucous uproar of a Cockney flower market to the sedate measures of the "Ascot Gavotte," the combined efforts of cast, chorus, and orchestra presented a wide range of vivid musical portrayals. The performance of My Fair Lady culminated weeks of mastering British dialect, searching for a 1912 telephone, painting a pub, and learning to dance a habanera. Under the resourceful direction of Miss May K. Sneary, Bob Rosen, as Henry Higgins; Eve Odenkirchen, as Eliza Doolittle; and Tim Hauser, as Colonel Pickering, starred in My Fair Lady. The diligent work of a strong supporting cast and imaginative crews made My Fair Lady a valuable experience for audience and performers.

Eliza grudgingly lends tuppence to her father, played by Jody Hirsh.

The meeting between Colonel Pickering, played by Tim Hauser, and Professor Higgins results in a high-spirited discussion of the English language.

The symmetric patterns of black silk and white lace add to the elegance of the "Ascot Gavotte."

The Senior class production of Jean

Giraudoux's The Madwoman of Chaillot brought a story of optimism and hope to the high school stage. Directed by Mr. Julian T. Myers, the Madwoman told the story of an idealistic countess who frustrated the materialistic desires of a prospector and a corporation president. Starring Sharon Latchaw, Greg Hinchliffe, Bob Altman, and Tim Hauser, the Madwoman included a cast of over forty members of the senior class. The presentation of the show on November 18 and 19 culminated five weeks of rehearsals that included training a juggler, finding a bicycle, and decorating a Paris cafe.

The materialists ask for "water all around" to determine if oil exists under the streets of Paris.

Alarmed by the scheme of the prospectors, Constance, Aurelia, and Gabrielle discuss a plan to save Paris.

Greg Hinchliffe, as the ragpicker, takes an oath "to lie, conceal, distort, and slander" at the mock trial of the rich people of the world.

Sharon Latchaw, as the madwoman, sighs at the cleverness of her plot to destroy evil.

Rich Fidler, as the waiter, confirms Countess Aurelia's fears about the evil intentions of the prospectors.

Prospectors Harry Hull, Bruce Criswell, and Bob Altman sample the oily water and scheme against the madwoman.

A rookie patrolman, played by Ken Standish, finds that his rule book does not explain the proper procedure for arresting a dry, drowned man.

The madwomen of Paris, played by Rosemary Barclay, Sue Jenkins, Becky Felt, and Sharon Latchaw, dance the mazurka in the cellar home of Countess Aurelia.

At the Cafe Francais the streetwalkers, Lee Rector and Sue Lascheid, and Dr. Jardin, John Guehl, look on as the drowned man, Rich Frisch, receives artificial respiration.

Property committee members Bruce Criswell, Richard Challinor, Dick Leitch, Cathy Hamilton, Jack Ballantyne, Sue Toon, and Sue Jenkins organize staging equipment for school plays.

The scenery committee of Ann MacIver, Debbie Frick, Sue Hirsh, Michele Miller, and Becky Felt design a cafe awning for the Madwoman of Chaillot.

Before the high school can present any dramatic performance, at least four student organizations must function to synchronize lighting, scenery changes, distribution of properties and make-up calls. Under the direction of Charles Cox, the stage crew creates lighting schemes, moves props and helps to build scenery. Working closely with the stage crew, the scenery squad not only designs but constructs the backdrops and furniture used for Mt. Lebanon High School plays. To create a realistic set, the properties committee often must locate unusual items, such as an old English bicycle or a basket of kittens. The make-up squad spends at least thirty minutes on all characters who appear on stage and as much as an hour on the lead roles. Together all four squads contribute to the success of Mt. Lebanon High School dramatic productions.

Members of the stage crew, Greg MacIver, Charles Cox, Ralph Harding, Ron Frisch, and Bill Ramsey, co-ordinate sound effects, lighting, and scenery during plays and auditorium programs.

Gayla Kraetsch, Lynn Sabetti, and Paula Wilson, members of the costume committee, alter a coat for the Madwoman of Chaillot.

Members of the make-up committee, Helen Watson, Gayla Kraetsch, Vicki Murphy, Heidi Wells, and Ann MacIver, study techniques of correct characterization.

The dramatic workshop members utilize production techniques in their presentation of The Hungerers.

A performance of Tschaikovsky's Nutcracker Suite highlighted the year for the mixed chorus. The performance, which took place on December 15, included not only the sixty-member choir but a troupe of ballet artists selected especially for the Mt. Lebanon High School production. From the staccato lightness of the "Dance of the Sugar Plums" to the boisterous "Trepak," the chorus and dancers captured the quality of fantasy in Tschaikovsky's score. In addition, the singers also performed several other works, including "Hallelujah!" from Handel's Messiah and the "Hannukah Song." On March 25 and 26 many members of the high school chorus participated in the Pennsylvania Music Educators Association chorus festival. This two hundred-member choir, led by guest director, Dr. Jack Sacher, brought the best amateur talent in western Pennsylvania to Mt. Lebanon for the three-day festival.

Members of the Girls' Ensemble, G. Kent, D. Teodori, G. Krofcheck, L. Wright, K. Shogry, B. Drake, R. Barclay, L. Charnell, L. Capoferri, E. Cale, S. Hirsh, M. Shord, C. Nickel, N. Bell, D. Carlson, I. Rappaport, S. Lieberman, J. Laros, C. Smith, P. Krofcheck, N. Morrow, J. Holliday, G. Fink, L. Fasula, C. Swinney, J. Jittkau, S. Haudenschild, M. Hamen, C. Davis, B. Barber, E. Cope, and M. Myers, rehearse for the seasonal program.

The members of mixed chorus include C. Tropp, L. Forrester, S. Zwinggi, M. Jolly, D. Fitzgibbons, M. Youngling, E. Morgan, A. Bronson, B. Blansett, D. Leitch, B. Mayberry, R. Aronson, M. Waltz, T. Hauser, B. Barclay, S. Hirsch, R. Woodhouse, R. Gray, T. Kubiak, B. Ericson, J. Larmett, R. Harding, P. Chamberlin, K. Pidgeon, M. Mordaunt, J. Dietrick, T. Waters, D. Sharrow, G. Noonan, S. Fountain, S. Jolly, S. Kalson, C. Mager, S. Bragdon, C. Waltz, P. Crosby, B. Baird, P. Scoggins, P. Tieman, S. Amdur, S. Tygard, G. Paterson, M. Brown, N. Auner, B. Perrin, L. Kowallis, D. Hackenberg, C. Hamilton, N. Chavern, J. Crump, L. Phillips, J. Weise, M. Mamula, J. Richmond.

Bob Mayberry, student director of the mixed chorus, rehearses the Nutcracker Suite for the December program.

At the warning bell girls' chorus members return music and gather books.

The Triple Trio and alternates Mary Jolly, Ann Bronson, Marlee Pierce, Molly Youngling, Suzanne Zwinggi, Eileen Morgan, Linda Forrester, Bonnie Hazlett, Gail Holben, Cheryl Houser, Evie Strom, Debbie Fitzgibbons, and Cheryl Amick perform for school and community functions.

The Mixed Chorus rises to sing the "Hallelujah Chorus."

Emily Cope and Bonnie Barber accompany members of Girls' Glee Club as they rehearse for their spring concert.

Mr. Arthur Yagello, director of the high school orchestra, indicates the melodic line for the first violin section.

The string section of the orchestra masters bowing and phrasing techniques. Members include Larry Rosenberg, Deidre Young, Karen Winger, Joyce Shapner, Jean Eisenbeis, Beverly Jones, Roger Frisch, Liz Gawron, Charles Wells, Barb Hauss, Donna Giles, Brenda Collins, Kirk Kimmell, and Elaine Andrews.

The woodwind section, Maris Peters, Susie Hudson, Jackie Archer, Jane Collins, Kathi Hartford, Mariann Boyle, Marjie Harris, Marcia Fink, Anne Heston, Lowell Meek, Elizabeth Hyzer, Alan Meek, and Rick Shields, emphasizes the melodic line.

Tim Auer furnishes a rhythmic background for the orchestra as orchestra secretaries, Lois Wilson and Ray Carlin look on. Not pictured are Barb Schilberg and Diane Mac-Clean of the percussion section.

Woodwind ensemble members rehearse their program for the PTA dinner.

The high school orchestra began practicing early in September to achieve the consistency of tone necessary for the unity of forty-five individuals. The prospect of three concerts in the spring meant hard work for the orchestra members and their director, Mr. Arthur Yagello. The scope of the orchestra's music ranged from Gerald Humel's portrayal of a busy city in Moods Americana to Charles Gounod's interpretation of a peasant waltz in Faust. By the time of the Spring Concert, the conductor had blended the musical talents of the four sections of the orchestra into one harmonious sound. In each performance this year's orchestra continued Mt. Lebanon High School's tradition of musical versatility and creative instrumental talent.

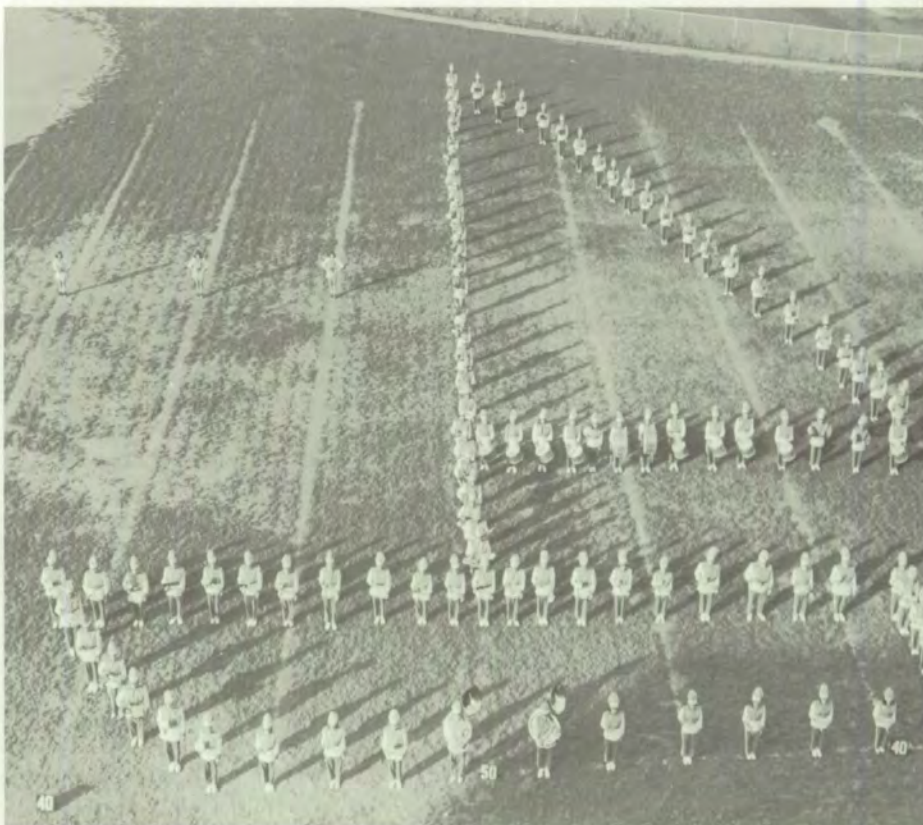

Brass section members, Pam Schwartz, Bill Martin, David Ferguson, Warren Hickey, and Bob Leonard, play the measures preceding pianist Francine Pattak's entrance.

Band members file off the field after a pre-game performance.

The band practices a sailboat formation for a half-time performance.

The Mt. Lebanon High School Band

opened the 1965-66 season with new musical form and marching technique under the direction of Mr. Louis Scarci.

Mr. Scarci, former director of Canonsburg bands and an elementary woodwind instructor in Mt. Lebanon, brought to the high school band new features and a distinctive character. These features included creative band formations, a four-man honor guard, and a modern repertoire which consisted of numbers ranging from Roumanian Rhapsody and Military Suite to "On the Street Where You Live." Once again, the band traveled from Mt. Lebanon to participate in the Penn State band day, which, along with the spring concert, proved to be a highlight of the season.

Wearing a mum and senior ribbons, band member Marty Morris displays senior spirit during a half-time performance.

Band members include D. Allen, M. Andrews, S. Asmond, G. Benedicty, M. Berry, J. Berwanger, J. Biggs, J. Bogman, L. Brenneman, T. Bridwell, J. Britten, J. Brown, B. Burch, J. Butch, M. Cathey, J. Clingerman, D. Cook, S. Cox, M. Crosbie, C. Cunningham, B. Dau, J. Delano, B. Detwiler, H. Dinneen, S. Erenrich, R. Fair, J. Federici, P. Ferson, D. Forsyth, R. Frisch, R. Frisch, D. Gaynor, J. Gaynor, L. Graebner, J. Graves, C. Gray, J. Guehl, K. Hails, B. Hall, J. Hall, J. Hammerschlag, R. Harris, D. Hartom, K. Hastings, J. Hatfield, P. Hearn, M. Henderson, C. Holland, C. Howe, P. Sirinek, S. Slavkin, D. Snefsky, G. Sollenberger, J. Solomon, R. Stern, L. Stock, J. Thompson, E. Vietorisz, M. Waltz, H. Watson, F. Wesley, J. Williams, S. Witt, M. Wood, B. Wyerman.

The sound of the baritone section, which includes Charles Schlotter, Marc Resnick, Dave Lather, and Peter Ferson, emphasizes the chordal arrangement of Crazy Cat.

John McDivitt, Gus Benedicty, John Clingerman, and Helen Watson, members of the French horn section, mute their instruments by closing the bell of their horns.

Mr. Scarci signals the band to a playing position for the Alma Mater.

Led by the baton-twirling majorettes, the Mt.

Lebanon High School Rockettes marched onto the field to execute a completely new program of rhythmic drills. This year's innovations delighted half-time audiences throughout the 1965 football season. To welcome Mt. Lebanon's opponents, pep club chairmen Martha Mamula, Marty Schreiner, and Mary Lee Brunner directed the members of the club in flashing their multi-colored cards. The antics of the Blue Devils, Wendy Saul and Martha Brunner, also helped to generate enthusiasm and school spirit among the Mt. Lebanon fans. Faculty advisers Mr. Scarci and Mrs. Isler devoted much time to encouraging the efforts of these groups who helped to maintain school spirit at a high pitch of excitement.

Mixed emotions of pride and sorrow play on the face of Blue Devil Martha Brunner during the Senior Recognition game.

To heighten school spirit, Blue Devils Martha Brunner and Wendy Saul unfold a sign between the goalposts.

To the accompaniment of a street beat, Rockettes Cheryl Brown, Linda Osgood, Ellen Baggott, Marlene Spiegel, and Mary Lou Harkins march to the thirty-yard line during the pre-game performance.

Majorette Gina Meade twirls a vertical spin with a flaming baton.

As the spectators rise for the national anthem, Mt. Lebanon High School pep club members flash an American flag with cards.

Rockette members include FRONT ROW: W. Patton, E. Marian, M. Harkins, J. Kemmerer, E. Baggott, M. Kaplan. ROW 2: L. Longnecker, L. Osgood, S. Lascheid, N. Collins. ROW 3: M. Schledt, C. Conrad, P. Van Buskirk, B. Brown, M. Ottino, C. Friday, D. Hutchinson. ROW 4: J. Pascarella, B. Koch, T. McKinley, S. Mercer, A. Shafer. ROW 5: M. Read, B. Wilson, A. Pruitt, J. Shaughnessy. ROW 6: D. ## Members of the guidance councils, tutoring squad, hospitality squad, and secretarial squad work with the faculty to make the complex administrative machine function more efficiently.

Student guidance council members spend their time after school creating guidance programs on pertinent topics such as patriotism and civil disobedience. The committee then presents these programs to the homeroom vice-presidents, who lead the presentation at each grade level.

The high school tutoring squad, another student service organization, aids teachers and students by helping with make-up work and giving individual instruction to those students who request help. By helping new students get to Room 124 from the library or by explaining cafeteria procedure, members of the hospitality squad welcome new students and guests to the high school. Student secretaries, assigned to various teachers or offices, file academic records, type stencils, and do general clerical work for their faculty sponsors.

These four student groups, through contributing their time and skills to various projects, assume partial responsibility for the success of school administration.

The twelfth grade guidance council members, Eileen Neely, Sue Hamilton, Jean Coblentz, and Sue Jenkins, collect information about service careers for seniors.

Members of the eleventh grade guidance council, Pam Watts, Carolyn Additon, Karen Mikus, Bruce Rosen, Jon Delano, Con Howe, and Jim Gennis, consult college bulletins to prepare for a homeroom discussion.

Chris Haus, Marian Genstein, Kyle McQuade, Jane Collins, Buz Myers, Bill Campbell and Jim Read, members of the tenth grade guidance council, suggest potential topics for guidance programs.

Fred Orford, Peter Jackson, and Carolyn Additon organize their material in preparation for their Saturday tutoring sessions.

Candy Daniel, Stephanie Rucker, Beverly McMahon, and Pat Strauss of the secretarial squad alphabetize student schedules in the vice principal's office.

Hospitality squad member Rick Wolfe welcomes A.F.S. students Corrine Vuilleumier and Fred Orford to the high school.

The senior members of the hospitality squad, Rick Wolfe, Marianna Read, Larry Hawkins, and Sue Hamilton, provide a special welcome for new students and visitors to the school.

Members of the Achievement Bulletin staff, honor award committee, bulletin board squad, art squad, and decorating squad help promote two essential elements of Mt. Lebanon student life—creativity and achievement. Whether by talking with a coach, cutting clippings from the Post-Gazette, or receiving reports from colleges, members of the Achievement Bulletin staff compile and distribute information about the accomplishments of students, faculty, and alumni. The honor award committee collects activity-point data from students and organizations and records point totals. From woodshop art to college board information, the bulletin board squad provides decorative and informative displays for the first floor halls. The student art squad secures paintings from local art dealers to brighten the Mt. Lebanon halls, while the decorating squad works with crepe paper, props, and lights to create seasonal atmosphere at dances. These squads and committees provide the extra touches which give Mt. Lebanon a character of its own.

Linda Humes stretches to tape streamers for the Junior-Senior Prom.

Decorating committee volunteers string twisted crepe paper from the ceiling for the Junior-Senior Prom.

The decorating committee members, Lynn Sabetti, Diane McDonald, Andee Briner, Jackie Shannon, and Elaine Hough, illustrate the theme of Autumn Mist for the Junior-Senior Prom.

Jeff Work and Marilyn Kleinman cut paper for publicity posters for the Snowball.

Tom Tewell and Marc Krass compile information about students and faculty for the Achievement Bulletin.

Joan Britten and Mike Novotny collect paintings and sculptures for display in a student art show.

Members of the honor award committee, Elaine Andrews, Linda Fleming, Barb Seidelman, Barb Shindell, Marlene Spiegel, and Judy Spiegel, record student activities points.

By participating in clubs, students develop special interests. Through the Future Nurses of America, Future Teachers of America, and Future Homemakers of America, students can learn more about their possible future careers. The F.N.A. invites nurses to speak to the club; members also receive actual hospital experience by working at Kane. The F.T.A. highlights its year's work with practice teaching, and the F.H.A. makes and sells cookies every Tuesday. In the Junior Classical League and the Spanish Club, interested students learn more about the people and the culture behind foreign languages. Through movies and speakers, the Ski Club, before beginning a well-planned schedule of ski trips, offers students instruction on good skiing techniques. The Chess Club's best players compete in chess matches with other schools. By providing opportunities for both enjoyment and learning, these clubs serve students and the school.

F.T.A. officers Patty Cosgrove, Heidi Wells, Linda Loos, and Betsy Smith discuss possible dates for student-teaching days.

Leslie Hager, Lynn Stock, Jane Graves, and Chris Holland, F.H.A. officers, co-ordinate programs to augment the practical skills of the home economics classes.

Officers of F.N.A., Judy Tazza, Bonnie Lingenfelter, and Kathy Gilligan, contact a prospective speaker for a Thursday evening meeting.

Mary Lee Brunner and Wendy Teach, F.T.A. members, deliver apples to the faculty during National Education Week.

Officers of the Spanish Club, Maris Peters, Nora D'Alessandro, Doug Hartsough, and Jeanne Weidl, research exercises designated to improve listening comprehension.

Junior Classical League officers Virginia Ross, Linda Koerner, Marge Somogyi, Leslie Reed, Sherry Johnson, and Sue Wagner solve a Latin crossword puzzle in the latest publication of the Torch.

Chess Club members Dan McKinley, Tim Hoff, Charlie Wells, Mike Wood, Doug Mallicote, and Larry Rosenberg represent Mt. Lebanon in interscholastic chess competition.

Neil Myers and Sue Toon investigate evenings available for ski trips.

Attendance squad members Marian Holl, Cindy Stone, Jean Kunkle, and Marsha Mosley file excuse forms and prepare the daily absentee list.

Miss Wass authorizes college visitation excuses in the attendance office before school.

Sue Quinn, Donna Cheetham, and Linda Solenday, members of the medical squad, record absentees on student health records.

By applying their time and knowledge, members of the various service squads assist both teachers and fellow students. The lab squads perform the perpetual tasks of the scientist. Members of the squad, in addition to cleaning and checking equipment, help set up a physics experiment on motion, prepare a bottle of HCl for Mr. Taylor, or organize a storeroom. The library squad eases the librarians' work by receiving, stamping, and shelving books and by helping students locate reference materials. Medical squad members aid the school nurses by filling out routine forms, checking supplies, and treating students' minor injuries. The attendance squad helps check the roll by composing the absentee list and gathering lists of class absences. Thus, by aiding faculty and administration in the execution of essential details, members of these squads play an invaluable role in the smooth functioning of school routine.

Members of the library squad, Bonnie Spruill, Ruth Ann Dunker, Nancy Logan, Sandy Leopold, Jane Fisher, and Martha Brunner, aid the librarians by stamping and shelving books.

Dave Jensen and David Herrington, members of the chemistry squad, prepare apparatus for the electrolysis of water.

Liz Dillinger researches her World Cultures paper during a reference period in the library.

Clark Frame and David Jensen store materials used in the chemistry labs.

John Hoon, Jim Burns, and Jack Cunningham, members of the parking lot squad, direct traffic at home games and other school events.

Mt. Lebanon student squads serve in many essential capacities at school assemblies, sports events, and community gatherings. The parking lot squad works during all evening events to alleviate traffic problems near the school. The ticket takers work at the gates during football games and man the ticket booth for school plays and concerts in the auditorium. In addition to operating the afterschool candy counter, the ways and means squad sells refreshments at dances and athletic events. The boys' usher squad takes care of student seating during school assemblies. At evening performances such as the Carnegie Lectures, the girls' usher squad and the checkroom squad work to aid spectators' enjoyment of auditorium performances. In all these duties, high school students perform a valuable service for both school and community.

Members of the boys' usher squad, Pete Marsh, Jeff Lauterbach, David Wiest, Charles Crothers, and Scott Calkins, direct student seating during assemblies.

Kathy Hamilton, Cheryl Klein, Eileen Grattan, and Sara Hanke, members of the checkroom squad, check coats and hats at evening activities.

Ways and means committee members Carol Cantalupo, Vicki Zabetakis, Peggy Wenchl, Stephanie Rucker, Gale Couch, Ernie Thompson, and Al Neumann raise funds for Student Congress by selling refreshments at school functions.

Cafeteria dispatchers Cheryl Sabo, Debbie Bosson, Jill Richards, and Jane Fisher notify fourth period classes to pass to the cafeteria.

Before leaving the cafeteria, students wait to empty their trays.

Members of the scoreboard and projection squads, sportscasters, and cafeteria dispatchers apply their time and skills to the benefit of both faculty and students. Members of the scoreboard squad record team points and register them during athletic events, while the sportscasters provide a play-by-play commentary for spectators at football and basketball games. The projection squad gives technical assistance of another nature. By showing educational films to Mt. Lebanon classes, members of this squad aid in the learning process. Under the sponsorship of Mr. Harry E. Felich, the projection squad members may show a movie of Macbeth to an English class, deliver a filmstrip to the driver training room, or repair a new projector. Cafeteria dispatchers facilitate the smooth operation of the lunch program by calling classes to the cafeteria. Through their work, members of these squads develop their own sense of responsibility while performing a valuable service for others.

Jane White and Anne Cromer return to their fourth period classes after lunch.

Tom Tewell and Rick Wolfe, football sportscasters, view a practice scrimmage in preparation for the Friday night broadcast.

Mike Shapiro, high school sports commentator, checks his sheet for exact scores during his weekly announcement.

Projection Squad members Bill Ramsey, Larry Simon, Dave Bankston, and Dick Teodori serve teachers and students by showing filmstrips and slides throughout the school.

Charles Cox and Richard Perryman handle the controls of the scoreboard and keep accurate records of team statistics.

Bob Altman and Bruce Rosen supervise the morning announcements given by John Bosley, Carol Ehlers, Jon Delano, and Kit Daprich.

Nancy Friesel, Pat Wood, Jean Coblentz, and Mary Lee Brunner, members of the opening exercises squad, prepare an inspirational message for a Thursday morning P.A. program.

A morning public address broadcast from the studio begins each school day at Mt. Lebanon High School. Studio announcers arrive before 8:15 each morning and prepare to go on the air by looking over the announcements or trying to find a humorous or thought-provoking question to open or close the program. During the broadcast, members of the public address squad work in the control room, giving the announcers their cue and co-ordinating live broadcasting with tape recordings. Every Thursday morning members of the opening exercises squad present a short inspirational message before the regular announcements. By helping to inform students and faculty of important events, the entire studio staff performs a valuable service for the school.

Public address squad members Paul Nelson, Bob Hall, Richard Perryman, and Mike Aberant insure the proper functioning of studio equipment.

Several school activities and organizations work to promote student interest in and support for our athletic teams. The Varsity Service Club consists of juniors and seniors in varsity sports who wish to contribute extra effort to the enhancement of the school's athletic program. The cheerleaders, both varsity and junior varsity, not only lead students in cheering our athletes at the games and meets but also speak over the P.A. system to publicize and urge attendance at the most important contests with our major rivals. Thus both the Varsity Club and the cheerleaders work toward the goal of greater school spirit and success for our school's teams.

Through precision formations and cheers, junior varsity cheerleaders Carol Brown, Melly Turner, Jackie Hawkins, Lynn Kaufman, Bonnie Lohman, Leslie Anderson, Bobbie Richards, Nancy Kirby, and Paula McCallum increase school interest in sports events.

The Varsity Club, composed of Mt. Lebanon lettermen, maintains the trophy case and Hall of Champions. Members include J. Haney, S. Nickenig, T. Broderick, G. Carter, E. Taylor, J. Hoon, V. Surma, T. Stechschulte, P. Kmec, M. Shapiro, J. Brownlee, N. Gustafson, G. Sawhill, T. Montgomery, M. Hallum, R. Gangloff, J. Giest, D. Werner, J. Kime, L. Avdey, D. Hein, D. Bates.

With color days, pep rallies, and enthusiastic cheers, varsity cheerleaders Jeanne Ellen Day, Dolly Rodenbaugh, Susie Paulus, Jane Ortner, Caryl Scarlett, Sue Devlin, Terry McCully, Anne Cromer and Sally Beidler lead the student body in support of school teams.

Anticipating the outcome of a football game, captain Susie Paulus mirrors the excitement of Senior Recognition night.

Autumn introduces bleachers covered with people, fields trodden by cleats, throats scratched from cheering. Miniature megaphones magnify voices, echo blue-and-gold-clad cheerleaders. Minced popcorn boxes sprinkle down as gold helmets streak across lines. A kick, a reception, a pass, a dash—and voices, at a fresh crescendo, strain to drive quarterback to goal line, pigskin through muddied sweat between silver posts. Snow switches spotlight beams to waxed woods below, suspended scores above. Students crowd into one another, searching for seats, looking for friends. Rubber, sensitive from hours of practice, answers hands and floor. Staggered uniforms parallel themselves on lines. Breaths catch, black lines swirl, orange spins, white strings quiver—and digits above click into place. Knees bump; feet pound; hands slash vibrant air; Lebo leads by two. Then, ten . . . nine . . . eight . . . sevensixfivefourthree . . . two . . . one . . . zero! and a smile backed by the clean exhaustion of having cheered a team to victory.

SPORTS

A 62-7 rout of Munhall, which saw eight different players score touchdowns, highlighted the 1965 Mount Lebanon football season. Despite early elimination from W.P.I.A.L. competition by a close loss to Trinity, the team finished the season with a 5-4 record. Following a last minute loss to Baldwin, Coach Ralph Fife's Blue Devils rebounded to defeat Chartiers Valley and trounce Munhall. Quarterback Jack Kime's passing coupled with the running of Wayne Porter, Mark Rowles, and Steve Foster generated a strong Lebo offense that was supported by a stubborn defense led by seniors Paul Kmec, Jack Sullivan, and Dave Elliott. The naming of Sullivan, Elliott, Porter, and Rowles to the Western Conference All-Star Team culminated this season of intense individual and team effort.

Throughout the season, the Mt.

Lebanon cross country team demonstrated consistently good running and a competitive spirit. Paced by Dave Hein, who earned All-State honors by finishing fourth in the state championship meet, and Dick Werner, who finished eleventh, the team lost only one dual meet in actual W.P.I.A.L. competition. On Mt. Lebanon's home course, Hein set a new record of 12:03.4. In addition to defeating Churchill and Trinity in dual meets and Bethel and Thomas Jefferson in a triangular meet, the Mounties showed their skill and that of Coach Donley Mollenauer by placing third in the Mountaineer Invitational and fourth in the W.P.I.A.L. championship meet.

With a 14-0 record in Section 12-A competition, the 1966 Blue Devil basketball squad captured the section championship for the sixth straight year. After dropping close exhibition contests to Uniontown and Springdale, the Blue Devils became only the second best team in school history to remain undefeated in section play. The team was never seriously threatened as it defeated all of its section rivals by twelve or more points. Senior Wayne Porter and Junior Vic Surma led the team in scoring and rebounding respectively. Dave Hein, Jim Haney, and Tom Stechschulte also played consistently throughout the season. Porter, Hein, and Surma all made the section all star team. By winning the section championship, Coach Richard Black's squad advanced to the W.P.I.A.L. Playoffs.

After receiving a bye, the team defeated North Union 79-54 in the quarter-finals. However, the team bowed to McKeesport 65-51 in the semifinals, thus ending with a 21-3 over-all record.

George Lamprinakos' Mt. Lebanon wrestling team won the Section I championship. In the biggest match of the season, the Lebo wrestlers defeated Carnegie 28-17 and broke the Tartan's winning streak of seventeen straight. In capturing the W.P.I.A.L. title, Mt. Lebanon sent seven wrestlers to the regional quarter-finals at Washington High School. From here, Jack Sullivan progressed to the state finals, where he was runner-up for the state crown. Other outstanding 1966 team members included Chuck Goldberg and Dick Herrington, both runners-up in regional competition, and Chris Capizzi, Bob Neuworth, Dave Matter, and Steve Foster, who took first place in section matches.

W.P.I.A.L. District Championship (2nd)

Mark Horowitz measures his steps, performs a backward one-and-a-half, and hits the water.

Dave Bates extends his lead in the 200-yard breast-stroke.

Led by All-American Dave Solomon, the 1966 Mt. Lebanon

swimming team took second place in the W.P.I.A.L. district championships. For the second consecutive year the Mounty aquamen also captured second place in the Grove City Relays, a meet once again won by the University School of Cleveland. The year 1966 was one of many records for individual swimmers as well as for the team. In addition to Solomon's record in the 100-yard butterfly, Lebo recordholders included such team members as Andy Weisbrod, Nick Douglas, Dave Bates, and Solomon in the 200-yard medley relay, and Bates, Bob Bruegmann, John Law, and Rick Redmond in the 400-yard freestyle relay. Coach William Grant also received consistent performances from Dick Rydze, who once gained a record 194.80 points in diving competition.

John Schweinsberg executes a side tuck with precision.

The 1966 gymnastics team

culminated the season by taking fifth place in the Pennsylvania High School Gymnastics Meet. Led by co-captains Pete Sorg and Ed Taylor, the predominantly junior squad compiled a season record of 5-2-1. Coach James Dally's top scorer this year was Pete Sorg, who amassed 183 points in sectional competition.

Other high-scoring team members, who participated in events such as the side horse, free exercise, long horse, horizontal bar, parallel bars, and the still rings, included John Schweinsberg, Bill Wilson, Neil Frick, John Maxwell, and Lowell Meek.

Neil Frick holds a sit-out position on the still rings.

Co-captain Eddie Taylor demonstrates a giant swing on the high bar.

Gary Sawhill vaults over the horse.

Co-captain Pete Sorg performs a handstand on the parallel bars.

Jim Leatham perfects a forward tuck on the parallel bars.

The Mt. Lebanon rifle team, guided by Coach

John Neal, finished another winning season in 1966 with a 4-2 record. Losing only to Munhall, the section champions and our perennial rivals, the Lebo sharpshooters consistently outscored both Dormont and Bethel. Co-captains Sue Leathers and Chuck Perryman led this year's team to a strong second-place finish in their section. The accurate shooting of Martha Mamula, Sue Gudiness, Lynn Garvey, and Marianna Read also contributed to the team's strength.

With a record of nine wins and only one loss, the 1965 Mounty golf team captured the section championship. Led by seniors Fred Shields and Frank Buchheit, the golfers piled up an eight-match winning streak after an early season loss to Upper St. Clair. Highlights of the season included a 14-2 romp over Fort Cherry and a close victory over Upper St. Clair later in the year. Returning underclass members Bob Keith, John Cameron, and Rick Larson give Coach Ralph Fife an excellent chance to repeat his 1965 success in 1966.

A hardy 1965 track team regained Mount Lebanon's

dominant position in district competition by defeating every opponent in dual and triple meets, capturing our own Invitational, and tying for first in the Tri-State Coaches' Meet. Through smooth teamwork and individual effort, the team also placed second in the Canon-McMillan Relays, finishing ahead of defending W.P.I.A.L. Champion Penn Hills. Coach Donley Mollenauer's formidable team featured the talents of senior athletes Dennis Aitken and Bill Harvey in the hurdles; Jim Seay and Bob Armen in the relays; and Joe Minneci, Bob Marsh, and Bill Austin in the field events. Girls' interscholastic races, held for the first time at the Mt. Lebanon Invitational, provided an interesting sidelight to the regular season.

With a look of grim determination, Gary Sawhill prepares to vault over the bar.

In capturing the Section II tennis championship, the Mt. Lebanon netters compiled an impressive record of ten wins and five losses in regular league competition.

Capitalizing on precise serving and swift returns, Mr. Victor Doak's netters advanced to the W.P.I.A.L. semi-finals before bowing to Edgewood, the eventual champion, by the close score of 3-2. One of the highlights of the regular season came in an earlier match with Edgewood in which the Mounties blanked the visitors 5-0. Much of the team's success came from the play of senior lettermen Glenn Carter and Reed Pyeritz, junior Chris Stotts, and sophomores Les Dundics and John Schweinsberg. Although the netmen lost the talents of former W.P.I.A.L. champion Lee Herrington because of illness, the team showed its overall depth by its spirited and successful play.

Chris Stotts maneuvers to return a let ball.

Les Dundics slams a forehand to clinch the set.

An opening streak of eight consecutive victories made the Mounty baseball team a center of school interest and enthusiasm. Under the outstanding coaching of Mr. Mercer Clark and Mr. Stephen Formento, the Blue Devils rewarded the fans with a record of nine wins and only three losses during the season. A close 3-2 victory over Baldwin in extra innings highlighted the team's successful year. The powerful Mt.

Lebanon offense, spearheaded by the batting power of juniors Wayne Porter, Chuck Goldberg, and Jack Kime, enabled the team to crush Snowden and Thomas Jefferson by the decisive scores of 13-1 and 12-1. Although Mt. Lebanon's drive for the section championship in baseball fell short with three defeats near the end of the year, the team's spirited play brought an enthusiastic response from Mt. Lebanon fans.

Wayne Porter lunges forward with a powerful swing.

The Girls' Athletic Association provides opportunities for interested girls to participate in organized athletic competition. Under the direction of the Leaders' Club, this year's G.A.A. organized and conducted tournaments in tennis, kickball, volleyball, bowling, and basketball. As an outgrowth of G.A.A. competition, a new facet of the girls' sports program began to develop this year: for the first time, Mt. Lebanon sponsored girls' interscholastic teams in basketball, gymnastics, swimming, and track.

The Leaders' Club programs intramural sports for girls. Members include: FRONT ROW: C. Moran, S. Witt, S. Zook, K. Dapprich, L. Birtig, M. Schreiner. ROW 2: M. Young, B. Anstadt, C. Crawford, S. Snyder, B. Frear, E. Neely. ROW 3: S. Offutt, J. Beachler, K. Ritz, S. Leathers.

Mt. Lebanon's intramural sports program this year began with the boys' homeroom basketball tournament. In order to reduce the number of forfeits and the time needed to complete the tourney, the homerooms were grouped in pairs to form teams. The competition concluded with the 12-13's and 12-14's defeating the 11-14's and 11-16's for the school championship. In the co-ed volleyball tournament in the spring, homerooms strove to outdo each other both in creating clever and unusual names for their teams and in winning the volleyball games. The sophomore, junior, and senior champions each had their team's name engraved on one of the volleyball trophies, which they received to keep until next year's tournament.

Linda Longnecker's powerful serve begins the volleyball championship.

Tissue-paper schedule slips escort matching skirts and sweaters, slim Levis, glistening loafers to black-numbered doorways. Feet slide into step hollows, voices into words, mouths into smiles. Bookbinding colors creep over edges of once-starched book covers. Striated posters effect a kaleidoscope before chlorine-clouded eyes. Salt-wet boots, fur-lined fingers, snow-moistened scarves tumble into gaping locker mouths. Crimson slashes reward pages, pens, and pains. Pallid chalk lines overrun silver-framed green panels. Plastic-covered padded earmuffs chatter foreign phrases. Transparent voices surrender underdone assignments. Then . . . three . . . three-ten . . . three-fifteen, sixteen, seventeen . . . three-twenty! and a smile backed by the satisfaction of a day's completion.

UNDERCLASSMEN

Donna Teodori grins triumphantly.

10-1 Miss McClure

Pidgeon.

To the sophomore, the high school presents a world of exaggerated abstractions: of seemingly endless halls which fade into a blur outside Room 104; of a writhing mass of people fighting madly up the stairs and someone who always yells "Hi, Mary!"; of six classes a day instead of seven. But beyond the towering seniors, history teachers, and guidance counselors lies challenge—that nebulous entity which is the germ of knowledge. All ways are open to the sophomore—he may choose his own beginning.

By the junior year, the blur of abstractions has come into focus. The lunch line is not quite so long, the pool not so heavily chlorinated, and graduation not so distant. The junior, having faced the impartial world of the high school, finds an identity in himself. In watching the senior play, working in the Log office, or quietly studying Emerson in the library, the junior realizes that he belongs. He remembers a fact from world cultures, and he understands the meanings of last year. Adjusting to the present, the junior moves on to the future with his new curiosity tempered by the experience of the past.

One course fulfills the credits, grades result in college admission, one day ends an educational career. Throughout twelve years, minds and bodies have echoed the clamor of slamming locker doors, the buzz of whispers in the auditorium, the rattle of cafeteria dishes. The last letter from college arrives, the last English term paper is finished, the physics project finally completed. But all is not over, though, for high school is merely a beginning. Twelve years of education merely provide an opening to more school or life itself.

ALMA MATER

'Neath cedars stately, midst hills so bold, Stands our Mt. Lebanon, realm of Blue and Gold,
Radiant with splendor, valor, virtue, and truth,
Moulder of our destiny, guardian of our youth.
Ever our praises shall ring, Alma Mater, for thee.
Charles Ruch, '32
