INSIDE Out

As this school year began, many new changes were put into effect. A new principal, a new senior note-writing policy, a sandal policy, and a new superintendent were just some of the changes that occurred. At times, the adjustments made felt overwhelming; the students of Mt. Lebanon felt turned "Inside out."

After students had time to get used to the changes, however, many realized that the new state of affairs in the school was actually an improvement. New principal Zeb Jansante, for example, excited students with his return to pep rallies and send-offs for championship athletic teams. Despite the rumors of new restrictions the administration would allegedly place on students, high school students generally found school leaders that were excited to compromise and work with the student body rather than against it. Long-desired school improvements such as painting the hallways and bathrooms and placing benches in Center Court were accomplished with the support of the students and the administration. During this school year, students learned that being turned "Inside Out" could actually be a good thing.

Turning the school

INSIDE Out

On September 5, the first day of school, many Mt. Lebanon students noticed changes within the school. In addition to the absence of last year's senior class, the masses of new freshmen, the foreign exchange students, and the multitudes of new teachers, Mt. Lebanon High School was, to put it simply, different. Renovations occurred over the summer to many facets of the high school and the grounds in the hope of improving the physical aspects of a strong academic environment. Essentially, the school improvements characterize the academic year and reveal the excellence and dedication of both the administration for allowing the changes to be made and the custodial staff for implementing them. Hopefully the renovations to improve the school's atmosphere will also improve student morale and encourage continuing achievement among the student body.

1. This banner hangs in Center Court and announces a new mantra for the district. "On the Move" signifies the district's motivation to progress and improve.
2. New displays exhibit student artwork from around the district. The displays change constantly; adequately showcasing the talent, hardwork, and creativity of developing artists.
3. The football team practices on the new "gurf" which has more texture and spring than the old turf. All of the sports teams were excited to begin practicing on the new field.
4. Sophomore Stephanie McGillen studies after school on one of the new benches outside of the auditorium. Members of student council purchased and assembled the benches, and they are located at various sites throughout the school.
5. Senior Brandi Engel also studies on the bench as sophomore J.J. Blanco takes a nap beside her.
6. Football players throw the football casually before practice on the new track. Many athletes looked forward to the new track that replaced the badly deteriorating old track.
7. A room on the third floor houses all of the school's vending machines. The vending machines were removed from Center Court, and this room is even monitored by a surveillance camera.
8. Freshman Jessie Yount tries out the vending machines after school.
9. A car stops at the new stop sign in the middle of Horsman Drive. At the beginning of the school year, this new stop sign caught many drivers off-guard.
10. Numbered spaces were assigned to administrators at the beginning of the school year.
11. The basketball team stretches in the South Gym during practice. Over the summer, the gym's floor was refinished to improve its quality.

12. Senior Estee Hausman sits near the flowers planted across from the tennis courts.
13. Seniors exercise their new privilege to go to the AO during lunch. Games often are extremely competitive among the boys.
14. Travis Irwin and Ben Kiernan play air hockey in the AO at lunch.
15. Jeff Sherman explains the new fiber optic network installed in the school. The new network helps to improve the school's computer system.
16. Senior Sam Truesdale checks out the MtL TV Live board outside of the South Gym. New bulletin boards advertise school activities and events.
17. A new sign outside of the North Gym directs visitors and parents to key sites within the school.
18. Last spring and over the summer, students planted flowers and shrubs to beautify this large and empty planter.
- 19 & 20. Carolyn and Elizabeth Smith and Kaitlyn Kmec painted a girl's bathroom on the fifth floor. Both teachers and students praise their colorful designs.
21. A student walks in front of the check-in desk on the first floor. All other doors are locked during the day and therefore students coming late to school must sign in at this desk.
22. A poem is on the kiosk near the indoor pool. Members of student council painted the kiosks last spring and over the summer as a service project and an effort to contribute to school improvements.
23. The kiosk outside of entrance D-44 displays student artwork, making use of a previously unattractive feature.
24. Each of the kiosks features different artwork designed by students, and they often have themes, like this kiosk that features the seasons.

Turned INSIDE Out

Despite the stereotypes that apply to a typical suburban high school, Mt. Lebanon offers an eclectic atmosphere. Students dress differently, have different interests, participate in different activities, and distinguish themselves in different manners. Essentially, all students are individuals on the outside.

Mt. Lebanon students, however, possess more similarities on the inside than they may think. The school week is busy for everyone; jobs, sports, and homework monopolize much of students' free time. Weekends, though, allow for a break as Mt. Lebanon students attend football games, hang out with friends, visit colleges, go to dances, and generally get to act like teenagers. This schedule epitomizes the hectic lifestyle of most students, and unifies everyone in its commonality.

These similarities, the common interior of Mt. Lebanon students, ultimately serve as a uniting force. Although the fast pace of high school makes students feel as though they are turned inside out, the interior that this pace reveals truly adheres the student body.

Alicia Schieferstein, Sam Truesdale, and Shelby Silberman wait for a pass during an intense intramural football game. Intramural football overwhelmingly increased in popularity this year, especially for girls. Many teams had jerseys, which shows how hardcore these girls truly were.

1. Seniors John O'Connell, Jude Shingle, David Eskenazi, and AJ Tindall show their band spirit at the football game.
2. Longtime couple Richard Charney and Lauren Twigg have dinner at TGI Fridays.
3. Senior Andrew Loftus lets loose in the Activities Office. He entertains fellow seniors with his goofy antics and always-upbeat attitude.
4. Carrie Smith, Stacy Barron, Tia Delaney, Erin Hohlfelder, and Stacy Asman hang out at a pasta party before their crew race, the Head of the Ohio.
5. These students pose in the hallway to show off their creative Halloween costumes, as AJ Tindall holds their books.
6. Kassie Cable, Mary Beth Briercheck, Amanda Kale, Diana Valli, Katie White, and Katherine Woodyard hang out at Kassie's house before a football game.

School's Out

Inside the Typical Lebo Summer

The school year is tough for most Mt. Lebanon students. Large workloads, overwhelming amounts of extracurricular activities, sports, and general teenage stress contribute to the necessity for a well-earned break in the form of summer vacation. While some students opt to take full advantage of their summers and pack their schedules with European vacations, jobs at NASA, or Governor's School, other students favor a more laid-back approach. The lack of bustling activity in Mt. Lebanon during the summer allowed students to either sit around or get creative. "We had our friend dress up in a tuxedo to deliver a flamingo dressed in Fourth of July apparel to someone's house," commented senior Bridget Peterson. Essentially, Mt. Lebanon students make the most of their summers regardless if they are spent in or out of Mt. Lebanon.

Senior Ashley Van Horn performs in Quito, Ecuador on a mission trip with Focus on the Family. The group repaired homes and churches and worked with underprivileged people.

Junior Ali Ludin happily hugs Clay Aiken, the star from American Idol. "My mom won me backstage passes from a radio station. My dream came true" commented Ali about this experience. Many students go to concerts during the summer, but few have an opportunity to meet the performers.

Junior Alicia Zhu takes a break from her microscope at her lab job at UPMC. She employed biochemical techniques to kill mice and remove their livers and t-cells. "It was fun working in a lab," said Alicia. "I might do it again."

Juniors Meredith Magdsick, Elizabeth Smith, Jamie Roman, Kathryn McCaffrey, and Catherine Dunn celebrate Elizabeth's sixteenth birthday on top of Mt. Washington.

Jude Shingle crowdsurfs with the help of his friends on the dance floor. Although chaperones reprimanded them, it was an amusing event that embodied the spirit of the night.

Jess Simon and Emily Cooperstein show off their similar taste in dresses before boarding the boat. Surprisingly, Jess and Emily were not the only two girls that wore the same dress - this happened more than once.

The Class of 2004 packs the dance floor of the Gateway Clipper. "The night was perfect, the music was pretty good, and everyone seemed to have a great time" said Julie Herward.

Ashley VanHorn and Jessye Bobinis recreate the infamous Titanic scene at the front of the boat.

Top: Ashley Perrone, Meghan Collins, Christy Brodbeck, and Alex Williot pose during dinner before Boatride.

Bottom: Kaitlyn Orstein, hanging out with Martha Kulic, commented 'I loved being able to enjoy a view of Pittsburgh while having fun with all my friends.'

Rocking Out

Inside the Senior Boatride

Study Halls in the AO, priority for parking passes, and Homecoming Court are all privileges that the senior class can enjoy. Perhaps the most anticipated privilege, however, is the Senior Boatride that occurs on a Sunday night at the end of September. 352 seniors attended this kickoff event that dually raised the funds of the senior class and increased the spirit of the Class of 2004. In addition to the large attendance, the senior class enjoyed a warm night and an opportunity to have fun together outside of the formal setting. When asked about her favorite part of Boatride, Lisa Shiwarski replied, "I liked having a group of boys to dance with." In general, the Boatride was a fun night that brought the senior class closer together.

Representatives from the freshmen class show off their banner before the parade. Students work for days before the parade to complete their banners that reflect class colors and spirit.

Members of the senior class carry on the tradition of painting themselves with the number 2004. The cheerleaders and seniors showed their enthusiasm as leaders of the parade.

Out on Parade

Inside the Homecoming Parade

On October 5th, the class of 2004 hosted Mt. Lebanon's annual Homecoming Parade. The parade differed, however, from that of past years resulting from the new track that prevented the court from riding in the traditional convertibles. These changes did not put a damper on the atmosphere predominantly because of the enthusiasm of the freshmen, sophomore, junior, and senior classes. Senior co-president Derek Heiss and co-secretary Larry Joseph engaged the crowd and announced Homecoming queen and king as Jackie Christmas and Jeff Elias. The football game also went well, as the Blue Devils scored a decisive victory over Seneca Valley.

- Joe Crowley

Sophomores Victoria Quimpo and Stephanie McGillen exhibit their spirit during their parade. "I am really proud of the enthusiasm of the sophomore class" commented Ariela Steif.

Kirsten Ostergaard and Jude Shingle pose while walking in the parade. "It was a privilege to be escorted by the coolest guy in the school, Jude Shingle" said Kirsten.

Foreign exchange students Felix Hunsicker, Laura Korhanen, and Anika Wagner pose before the beginning of the parade during which they were honored.

The boys of the Class of 2004 Homecoming Court hang out before the start of the parade.

Juniors Meredith Magdsick, Jess Winschel, and Hannah Sholder take a break from dancing. The leis were really popular and added to the spirit of the Lebo Luau.

Seniors Mackenzie Stunkard, Kevin Bigger, and Jacob Hoyson protest against a song that they do not like during the dance.

This group of senior guys make the picture process interesting by including a piece of art. This is just one of the many creative poses that they had.

This giant group stands in Perry Skouteles' front yard for group pictures. Despite the confusion that occurs with a group of this size, large groups often turn out to be more fun.

Out Dancing

Inside the Homecoming Dance

Center Court was transformed into a Lebo Luau for Homecoming 2003 on October 25th. Everyone attending the dance was handed a lei as they walked in, and students from all grades embraced the Hawaiian fun and danced all night long. For others, however, it represented one of the last chances to enjoy dancing and spending time with friends. "I've gone to every dance in high school, and Homecoming was a good time like all the others. I'll miss the formal dances after high school ends because I love getting dressed up," said senior Claire Lyskava. The music of the night ranged from "Get Low" to Jimmy Buffett, thrown in for tropical flavor. Although a group of students protested "Get Low" by doing the Chicken Dance, even the small rebellion added to the memories being made. The year started out with a good experience for everyone: a taste of Hawaiian summer in the middle of a Pittsburgh October.

Ross Greenberg twists crepe paper for his door. Many students brought their own creative accessories for their doors.

Mr. Petrich's winning door features a blue devil fighting an evil stickman. The door even has pictures of Dr. Jansante and other students.

Alex Williot and Casey Williams prepare their creative door. The Michael Jackson theme was eye-catching, and these students truly distinguished themselves during the competition.

Ms. Miller's homeroom highlights the rivalry between James O'Toole and his competitor "Fitzgerald" in the cross country PIAA championship. "It was actually frightening to walk by, but it turned out well," commented Bridget Noonan.

Going All Out

Inside Door Decorating

Door Decorating is a tradition that requires the careful thought and planning of students, in addition to tons of paper and, this year, a toothbrush, pages from a phone book, and quotes from President George W. Bush. Student creativity was truly in full force, for the homerooms were each distinctive and well-done. Door Decorating was extremely successful and increased the school's Halloween spirit.

Standing Out

Inside Senior Pledge Day

There are very few days during the school year that students can walk down the hall and see seniors covered in duct tape and dressed as a ninja turtle and a male tennis player with extremely short shorts. Senior Pledge Day was one of these days. Seniors raised about $1013 for this annual fundraiser and sacrificed their dignity as they dressed in costumes created by the students that won them. In addition to dressing up, many seniors also had to perform such tasks as singing songs, playing drums, reciting movie lines, and rapping. Senior Pledge Day was extremely successful in raising a substantial amount of money for the senior class and in promoting a light-hearted atmosphere throughout the school.

Left:
Alissa Burger, lobster, and Sarah Campbell, Campbell's soup can, show off their creative senior pledge outfits.

Right:
Bridget Peterson, Clara Sieg, and Hayley Schaeffer pose during biology class and display their embarrassing costumes with pride.

Alison Rosenberg stops in the hallway to show off her Ninja Turtles costume. She was Donatello and even carried a pizza box.

Joe Crowley hangs out during lunch in an outfit made entirely of duct tape.

Felix Hunsicker pauses in the hallway to display his grapes costume, complete with green tights.

Anne, portrayed by senior Gina Jamieson, thanks Matthew, played by senior Kevin Bigger, for the pocketknife he has just given her. Anne hopes to use her gift as a royal dagger.

Rachel Lynde, played by senior Colleen McCloskey, gasps as Josie Pye, portrayed by fellow senior Colleen Kilbane, tells Marilla that Anne attacked Gilbert Blythe with a chalkboard during school.

Matthew and Marilla Cuthbert, portrayed by seniors Jacob Hoyson and Sarah Scott, watch as Anne opens her birthday present from Matthew.

Senior Kim Barron and Junior Thom Och, appearing as Anne and Gilbert, share a moment together under the stars in the play's final scene.

Senior Becca Allen (Rachel Lynde) snoops through the Cuthbert family album in hopes of learning a juicy bit of gossip.

Katy Grant, appearing as Diana Barry, listens to Anne's latest story that she has written for story club.

Marilla Cuthbert, portrayed by senior Megan Foehr, tends to her sewing while entertaining her neighbor, Mrs. Barry.

Appearing in the infamous "Act One, Scene One" orphanage scene are Kim Barron (Anne), Emily Shannon (Florence), Maddie Beerens (Minnie) and Colleen Kilbane (Mrs. Spencer).

Acting Out

Inside the Evening Theatre Company

From November 12 through November 15, the Evening Theatre Company delighted audiences with the sentimental classic Anne of Green Gables, adapted from L. M. Montgomery's novel by Alice Chadwicke. Sent to live with the Cuthberts, in their house called "Green Gables," Anne Shirley, portrayed by seniors Gina Jamieson and Kim Barron, quickly wins over the heart of Matthew Cuthbert, played by seniors Kevin Bigger and Jacob Hoyson. Unfortunately, Matthew's sister Marilla, portrayed by seniors Megan Foehr and Sarah Scott, refuses to allow a girl to live in her house. Throughout the play, however, the ever-imaginative Anne wins over the hearts of everyone in town, as even Marilla comes to adore her after she saves the Cuthberts from bankruptcy.

Green Gables was brought to life by a gorgeous set designed and constructed by the Technical Theatre Company, under the direction of Mr. Kuhar and Mr. Runquist. The characters came alive in stunning period costumes, designed by Mrs. Disque. With the aide of these incredibly talented individuals, the Evening Theatre Company was able to impress audiences in four successful performances.

- Kevin Bigger

Members of the band stay focused as they play one of their many challenging pieces.

Juniors Winston Cook-Wilson and Steve Meredith sing in a quartet during the chorus concert.

Katie Ventura plays the harp for the winter chorus concert. Katie is renowned as the second best harpist in the state and has dreams of playing for the symphony in the future.

David Alcorn, Scan Rogers, and Bobby Foglia play during the percussion concert. Each year, the percussion concert is so popular that it is regularly sold out.

Playing Out

Inside the Winter Concerts

During December and January, many different groups showcased their talent and progress through their winter concerts. The Orchestra Concert, as well as the Concert Band and Jazz Ensemble played festive pieces which suited the upcoming holidays. In addition, the Chorus Concert and Triple Trio sang a variety of songs that included a number of solos, accompanists, and the traditional Triple Trio song "Fruitcake." Students exert a lot of hard work in the months before these concerts, and their effort is evident through the high quality of their performances. The winter concerts serve to not only celebrate the holiday season, but they feature many excellent performers and also the strength of Mt. Lebanon's Fine Arts Department.

The violin section of the string orchestra plays vibrantly through an intense piece.

Senior Abby Klein sings a solo during the chorus concert. In addition to participating in chorus, Abby also is a member of Triple Trio.

The drumline keeps their concentration as they perform during their winter show.

The orchestra stands as the audience applauds their performance after a great winter concert. They traveled to Carnegie Hall in April to play in front of a New York City audience.

Student Council co-president Chris Hooton sings the eighties classic "500 Miles" as senior Alex Tarbert backs him up on bass. Chris performed with co-president Derek Heiss and surprised the audience with their talent.

Senior Sam Kernion sings and plays the guitar during "The Holiday Show Song," which also featured senior Patrick McGinty and teachers Mr. Petrich and Mr. Kernion.

Dr. Jansante, dressed as Santa Claus, tosses presents to students in the crowd.

Senior Mollie Moredi jams on air guitar during her act, "The Other Ones." Also appearing were Dave Heinz, Alex Herd, Ted Merritt, Phil Michael, Alex Tarbert, and Mark Wagner, and C.J. Young.

Junior Erin Lacek represents the Silks during their act "The Girls...With Flags." The silks perform in the Holiday Show each year and excite the crowd when they successfully catch their flags.

Senior Becca Allen sings "Killing Me Softly" during the show. Becca traditionally performs solos in the Holiday Show each year and is a favorite because of her outstanding vocal talent.

Senior Dan Getkin sings and plays the guitar for the act "Dan Getkin & the African Ensemble." "Their funky beat drew the audience in to their performance," commented senior Stacy Barron.

Standing Out

Inside the Holiday Show

The Class of 2004 Holiday Show marked an important anniversary as the 25th show at Mt. Lebanon High School. In general, the show was a success and highlighted the talent of many students in a variety of areas. Senior Nasha Jungkankul performed a Thai Dance, junior Jimmy Liu wowed the audience with an impressive Beethoven piano performance, junior Katie Johnston sang The Piano Man while junior Erin O'Boyle played both the piano and the harmonica, and sophomore Bill Brandt performed Bunnies that creatively utilized a guitar, rhythms, and echoing. Thanks to the leadership of director Dr. Rosen, Mrs Henderson, Mr. Runquist, and Mrs. Ruprecht, the show raised an extensive amount of money for many charities.

Seniors Jamie Nagy, Casey Williams, Jenna Lauer, and Lacee Griffith get ready for some rest after a late night.

Diana Valli, Katherine Woodyard, Jourdan Tate, Kassie Cable, Katie White, Amanda Kale, Jordan Cable, Christine Pennesi, Marybeth Briercheck, and Christine Briercheck prepare for a waterballooning mission.

The junior and senior girls line up after the traditional Turkey Bowl.

Senior Zach Gawlas, junior Katy Rosen, and senior Eric Drobotij relax after a day on the slopes in Sugarbush, Vermont.

Going Out

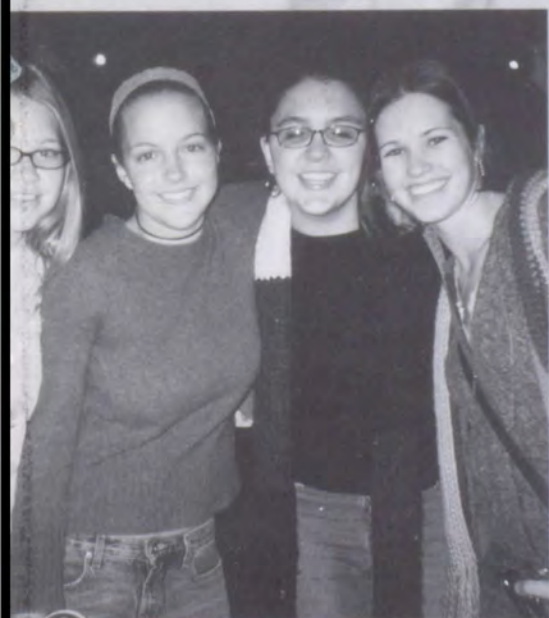

Inside Lebo Weekends

"There's nothing to do on the weekends" is typically uttered from almost every individual attending Mt. Lebanon High School. Despite not having a plethora of exciting and crazy options for weekend activities, when the bell rings 3:03 on Friday afternoon, students are excited just to have a break from school. Traditionally, students attend sporting events to cheer on the football or basketball teams. They also watch movies, hang out with friends, or even venture outside of the Mt. Lebanon area to find something to do. Shopping, sports tournaments, practices, lessons, and homework also take up a lot of students' time. A surprising amount of choices emerge when Mt. Lebanon students get creative, and regardless of what students choose to do, they always look forward to the weekend for a break from school.

Seniors Estee Hausman, Meredith Brown, Marisa Levine, and Val Wilson enjoy the Homecoming football game.

Seniors Elizabeth Weaver, Lisa Shiwarski, Katharine Platt, and Bridget Noonan hang out at Jessie Hannon's house for a sleepover.

Mr. Mark DeBernardis

"As the director of the Girls' and Boy's High School Intramural Program, my goal is to engage as many students as possible in a variety of activities. The boys' program has a solid foundation. The girls' program, however, was not as solid. Keeping that in mind, my goal was to expand the boys' program and build a girls' program.

Girls' flag football turned out to be a tremendous hit yielding eight teams consisting of over 130 girls. The girls' champion team played the ladies' faculty team and likewise for the boys. Once again, both the boys' and girls' intramural basketball programs proved to be successful, and the champions from each played against the faculty teams. In addition to basketball and football, students participated in a bowling league, hacky sac, and Board Game Olympics. The Intramural Program offered seven activities for the spring, including softball, foosball, dodgeball, golf, and ultimate frisbee. Future activities include punt, pass and kick competition, homerun derby contest, and an obstacle course contest."

Teachers Mrs. Yamamoto and Ms. Mattern show their skill during the game against the Girl's Intramural Football Champions, the Sackers. "We'd like to continue the faculty vs. student games in the future, so we didn't want to come on too strong this year. Don't want to scare the girls out of next year's competition," commented Ms. Mattern.

Intramural Basketball

The Llamas attempt to rebound Mr. Kernion's shot during the Student vs. Faculty game.

Junior Abby Coffin dribbles down the court as Mrs. Dorish runs to catch up with her.

Senior Lauren Beynon starts off the game against an onslaught of female faculty members.

In "Requiem," special lighting was used to create the needed dramatic effect.

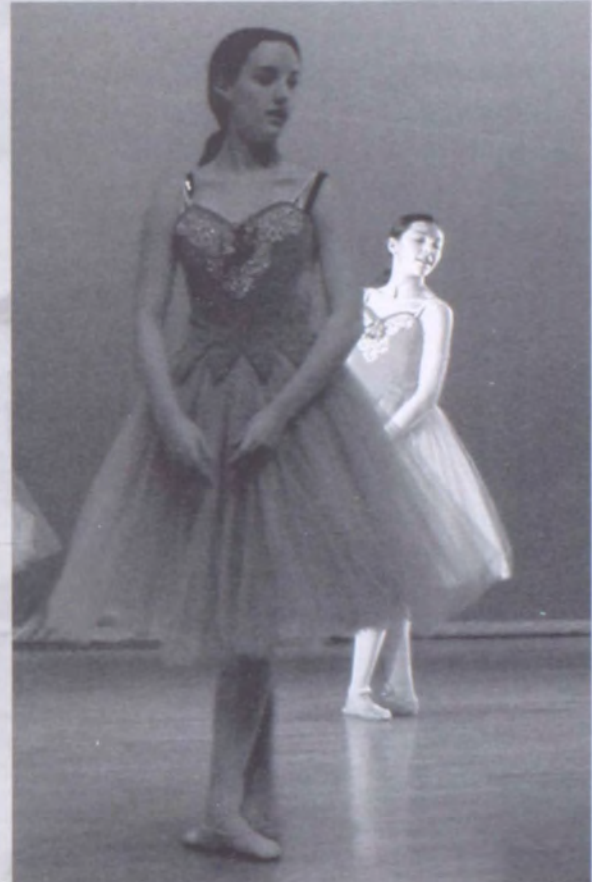

Dance it Out

Inside the Dance Company

Members of the Dance Company have the unique experience of working alongside the same people for up to four years. Because of the relationship that they develop during this time, the girls exhibit a bond through their choreography and general coherence on stage. The dancers spend the first semester of the year preparing the daytime by selecting music, choreographing, rehearsing, and working alongside a technical crew to develop lighting. Ironically, for the second year in a row, a snow delay interfered with the day of the Dance Company daytime, but the dancers still performed by splitting the show in half. The music for this semester's performance represented a range of genres, and the dancers hoped to educate their peers through their talent and experience as well as to celebrate their hard work and effort and the time that they enjoy spending together.

Freshman Lauren Coben leaps through the air, exuding grace and athleticism.

Senior Alex Williot poses in the jazz dance to "All She Wants to Do is Dance."

Senior Brad Hoffman and Junior Christine Hall dance the night away.

Laura Korhonen, Lauren Schieb, Jess Wolowski, Anika Wagner, and Nasha Jungkankul smile for their group pictures before the dance.

Angela Lupinetti, Kathryn McCaffrey, and Jean Chavez stop for a picture in the girls' bathroom.

Technoed Out

Inside the Snowball Dance

The crazy theme of this year's Snowball Dance served to distinguish it from dances in past years. Whether it was out of curiosity or out of the desire to get dressed up and dance with friends, the Techno Dance Party was definitely a success. Glow in the dark decorations and glowsticks created an appropriate atmosphere thanks to the planning of volunteers, student council members, Mrs. Henderson, and Mrs. Ruprecht. The techno theme, however, did not restrict the music to the beats of European clubs, for students enjoyed their favorite new songs and those from the past. Glowstick necklaces and bracelets were popular among the crowd, especially at the end of the dance when the senior song, "Here I Go Again on My Own" was cut short. Despite this interruption to an extremely successful night, everyone who attended the Techno Dance Party had a great time.

Fans Karen Donahoe and Kevin Bigger cheer on their favorite bands.

AJ Tindall, Kelsey Henson, Clayton Cavell, and Dave Kelusky play a show at the Iceoplex at Southpointe.

Kelsey Henson and John O'Connell jam during a concert at Southminster Church. John later joined the band as a second guitarist.

In the House

Inside Lebo Musicians and Bands

Teenagers spend hours listening to music on headphones, in cars, or at concerts. But many Mt. Lebanon students choose to make their own music! On most weekend night, one of the many Lebo bands is playing somewhere, and there's always a gang of loyal Lebo fans at every show. One option for bands is to play at benefit concerts like Jamnesty and Llamarama, with proceeds going towards nonprofit organizations. Concerts at Southminster Church yielded money to send to a hospital in Afghanistan as well as llamas for farmers in poor countries. Other venues include the Coffee Den, Laga, the Iceoplex, and the Shadow Lounge. Many of the bands have self-released CDs, and most will be featured on the Pulse CD released this year. Who knows if the bands will dissolve as members head off to college, or if any of the bands Lebo supports will ever make it big? We'll all be able to say we were the original groupies.

- Marisa Levine

Finding Out

Inside with the Foreign Exchange Students

Being a foreign exchange student is definitely an enlightening and informative experience. This year, Felix Hunsicker, Nasha Jungkankul, Laura Korhonen, Fenna Wachter, and Anika Wagner joined the Mt. Lebanon student body to find out what high school life is like for American teenagers.

Hobbies and Interests: Public relations, performance art, and international business

Favorite Aspect of Mt. Lebanon:

"Everything from the warm welcome, the neighborhood, high school, friends, and even the opportunities provided for me to experience here. Mt. Lebanon has made me become a new person."

How does your school at home differ from Mt. Lebanon High School?

"A huge selection of classes is provided here as well as some sports like lacrosse that we don't have in Thailand."

Do you have any memorable experiences thus far in Mt. Lebanon?

"Since my first day in Mt. Lebanon to the last day, I've learned to live my life in the Mt. Lebanon/American lifestyle. I'll never forget this valuable year."

Anika Wagner Stuttgart, Germany

Hobbies and Interests: Gymnastics, knitting, and drawing

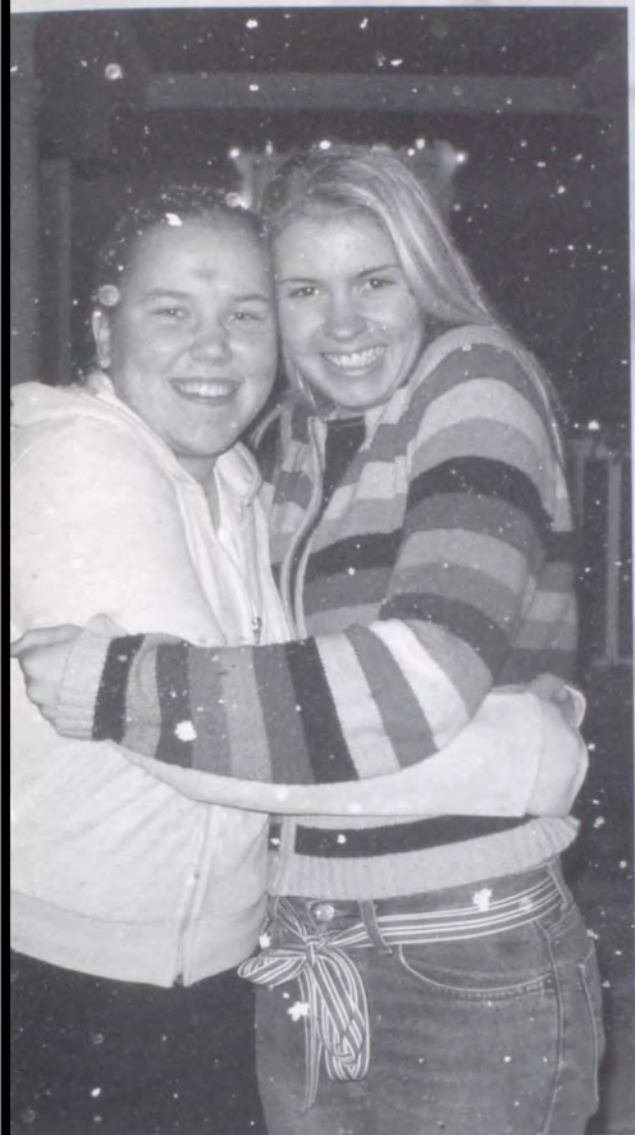

Favorite Aspect of Mt. Lebanon: "I do like Bird Park, Uptown Coffee, and Mineos. I also like that Mt. Lebanon has sidewalks since I know that that is not a common thing in the U.S."

How does your school at home differ from Mt. Lebanon High School?

"In Germany, we get out of school earlier and we usually have lunch at home. Students stay in one classroom all the time and the teachers move from room to room. We don't get to choose what classes we take."

Do you have any memorable experiences thus far in Mt. Lebanon?

"Going to an American high school is memorable in itself, as is going to the dances, broomball, and Halloween."

Hobbies and Interests: Tennis, reading, and playing the guitar

Favorite Aspect of Mt. Lebanon: "It's so cute and small, and everything's close. And the big city isn't too far."

How does your school at home differ from Mt. Lebanon High School? "My school is a lot smaller, only about 500 students. There are no clubs, except for a math club. You don't have to stay in school all day if you don't have class. You just go get coffee during break. There's a lot less rules."

Do you have any memorable experiences thus far in Mt. Lebanon? "It's been great meeting people and seeing a different culture. I love all my new friends and I've had a memorable time with them."

Fenna Wachter Bonn, Germany

Hobbies and Interests: Hanging out with friends, tennis, and shopping

How does your school at home differ from Mt. Lebanon High School? "There is a lot less control and students pretty much go wherever they want to go whenever they want to go."

Do you have any memorable experiences thus far in Mt. Lebanon? "I've met a lot of interesting people."

Turning All Competitors "Inside Out"

The athletes at Mt. Lebanon High School started this year with a rude awakening: it was announced that players arriving at school at 8:15 or later would not be able to participate in any practice or games scheduled for that day. While it required an adjustment for athletes, it was obvious that this rule did not affect their performance on the field. Fall sports teams impressed right from the start, with the football team having an 8-3 season, girls soccer making the finals of the WPIAL, and boys soccer making the final four in the entire state. Another change greatly impacted athletes' lives this year: a marked increase in school spirit thanks to new principal Dr. Zeb Jansante's emphasis on spirit through the return of school pep rallies. This commitment to athletics was highlighted in November, when students were gathered on the lawn in front of the school to send off the boys and girls cross country teams to the state finals in Hershey. Without a doubt, the spirited environment during this school year was one of the best Mt. Lebanon has ever seen, and the athletes' on-field performance matched this intensity.

Always In Sync

When the marching band receives generous applause from crowds at football games, it is only the culmination of a long and difficult process. This preparation starts in August at Mt. Lebanon's legendary annual band camp. Band members must march and perfect songs for hours on end, all the while sweltering in their heavy band uniforms on scorching asphalt in the midday sun. Though many agree this intensity rivals that of the football team, few would dispute that the results are also every bit as impressive, if not more so. The high quality of Mt. Lebanon's band has recently led to invitations to perform in the Gator Bowl and in Myrtle Beach for a band festival. Although the band requires a great deal of hard work, it also leaves ample opportunity for fun and camaraderie between band members. This year, for example, the band dressed up in costumes for a special Halloween performance at a football game. Even the dreaded band camp can be enjoyable for some. As senior Phil Michael said, "We work our butts off and have a great time." This year, the band was under the direction of drum majors Caitlin Murray and K.J. Steiner, and drum captains Dave Alcorn and Clayton Cavell. With these talented musicians, as well as the rest of the band, it has been yet another successful year for the band.

"My favorite memories were dressing up for the Halloween football game in concert, then also getting to play 'Blue Samba,' the percussion front and drumline feature."

In the Groove

Life isn't easy for the Silks and Rockettes, especially for the captains charged with choreographing the dances used by these dance groups. Rockettes perform dances at every home football game in the fall, and make annual trips across the country to perform along with the band. The silks skillfully twirl their silk banners at all these same events. Last year, this trip was to a band festival in Myrtle Beach, South Carolina. This year, they have earned the honor of performing at the Gator Bowl in Florida. While coordinating and practicing routines for these events may be difficult, most Rockettes and Silks agree that the time spent is fun despite being challenging. Over the years, the Rockettes and Silks become close friends with each other, and trips away from home aren't as daunting since everyone is there with a friend. The especially tough job of coordinating Rockette dances this year fell to senior captains Emily Pulkowski and Katie Flickinger. However, in such a tightly knit group like this, there is rarely a hierarchy between members, and the accomplishments of all are appreciated.

In the Spirit

Sometimes, life seems like one big rush for cheerleaders. First, they attend the brutal cheerleading camp every August, trying to make it through the tryout process. Then, the actual games start. Cheerleaders are most visible for their role cheering at football games, where they can be seen getting the crowd enthusiastic and involved in the games. However, the cheerleaders also have to bring their cheers to many other sporting events--such as soccer and basketball games, just to name a few. Instead of growing tired of this, though, they enjoy every minute of it. In fact, many cheerleaders choose to get involved in the Dance Company or to dance independently, in addition to their work with the squad. They also annually prepare a dance routine for the Holiday Show, wowing the crowd with their well-choreographed exhibitions. This year marks the end of the high school careers of many talented dancers, as the Class of 2004 has shown its spirit throughout the years with its great enthusiasm for cheering.

In the Red Zone

Sitting at 0-2 and facing an extremely difficult schedule ahead of them, many skeptics predicted a rough season ahead for the Mt. Lebanon football team. What happened next was a surprise to all and an amazing accomplishment for all involved with the football team. The Blue Devils ran off eight straight wins, including a shocking 24-6 victory over top-ranked North Hills. The team took first place in their division, the WPIAL Quad North AAAA conference. Senior Andy Goff had his third and most successful season as the team's starting quarterback, and fellow senior Matt Franchick impressed fans by making acrobatic catches of many of Goff's throws. Meanwhile, 5 foot 7 graduating senior Adam Giran proved that the best running backs are not necessarily the biggest, leading a potent rushing attack along with junior Jimmy Mullen. For some Blue Devils, football won't necessarily end with senior year; defensive end Doug Slavonic has accepted a football scholarship to West Virginia University and linebacker and offensive lineman Dave McDonald has committed to Harvard University.

Left: Senior Mike Oettinger puts the ball on the line of scrimmage for the snap. Offensive linemen are often called the most underappreciated players on the team, since they rarely touch the ball.

Senior Peter Harvey receives a tip from his coach while taking a play off. A good coaching staff is crucial if a football team is trying to contend for a playoff spot.

Junior Chris Barr runs to the outside to gain extra yardage. Though his time was limited by the presence of other talented running backs, Chris figures to play a prominent role in the team's rushing attack in 2004.

Freshman Ellen Peterson gets low to the ground to eye up the line on a practice putt, while freshman Jackie Harris looks on. Bending down close to the surface gives the golfer a better view of the break on a putt, and is a common tactic used by most professionals.

In the Hole!

The varsity girls golf team proved this year that quality is much more important than quantity. The team faced an uphill battle with only four players on the team, but they remained competitive all year, finishing with a record of six wins and eight losses. The team was never out of contention, posting several impressive scores including a 198 in a season-opening loss to Bethel Park. A major reason for the team's competitiveness was senior Kathryn Hart, who qualified for the WPIAL tournament with her stellar play. The other senior on this year's team was Emily Schichilone, who has provided steady and consistent play to the team for three years now. Though, indeed, the team was small in size, the leadership of these two seniors and of coach LuAnne Smail ensured that the team got the most mileage possible out of every player in every round.

Left: Seniors Kathryn Hart and Emily Schichilone sit in a golf cart after completing their rounds. Emily and Kathryn have been consistent and dependable golfers for the team for several years.

Ellen Peterson selects a wedge to practice chipping onto the practice green. Imperfect chips can send the ball skidding over the green, so this is a very important skill to master to score well.

The team puts on extra layers for its match at Butler's Golf Course in Elizabeth, PA. Since the golf season runs into October, players often have to deal with the brisk autumn days characteristic of Western Pennsylvania.

Outside the Box

Ultimate frisbee is unique, and its players like it that way. The sport is not associated with WPIAL, and instead Mt. Lebanon's team competes in independent frisbee leagues throughout the region. The rules of ultimate stress sportsmanship rather than ruthless competitiveness. Therefore, rather than being adversaries, players are often friends with ultimate players from other schools. The team is relatively new, as the current batch of seniors were freshmen on Mt. Lebanon's first ever ultimate frisbee team. These seniors include David Vatz, Nathan Narey, and Eric Winer, all of whom were instrumental in the creation of the team. The team achieved an impressive goal last spring by going to the national frisbee tournament in Alabama. Though the team finished 13th out of 16, most players thought it was a great thrill and honor just to be invited to the tournament. This year, the team is not eligible to return to nationals, but they are working to earn an invitation to the state tournament and a shot at the Pennsylvania title.

Right: Senior Eric Winer gets ready to catch the frisbee. Eric is in his 4th year of dedication to the ultimate frisbee team.

Junior Brian Clapp lets go of a long pass. This is referred to as a "huck" in ultimate frisbee.

Senior Dave Vatz hustles to defend a throw. In addition to his numerous contributions to the frisbee team, Dave was named a student council officer for the class of 2004.

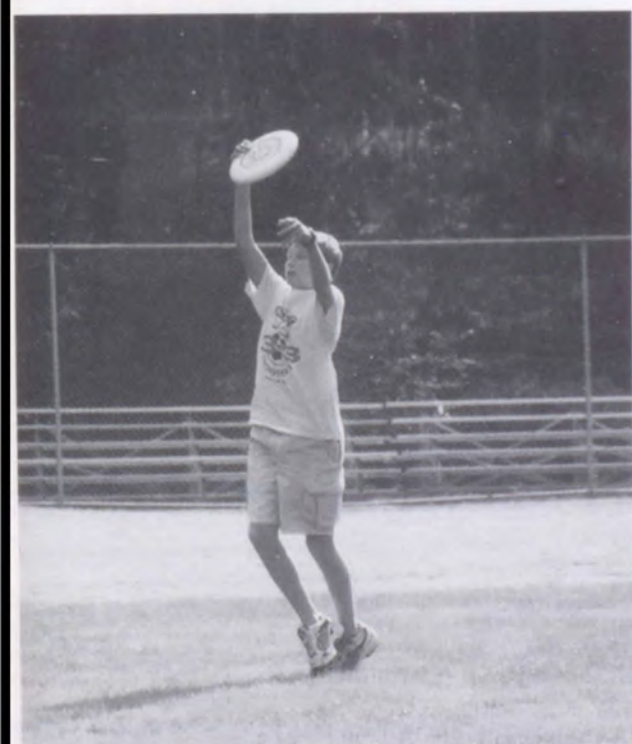

Dave Vatz

"Making the national tournament last spring was a lifelong dream for me. It was amazing to finally get there."

Unfortunately, not every pass can be complete. When a pass like this falls incomplete, possession is taken over by the defensive team.

Sophomore Ben Smith lunges to catch a pass. Since many passes are thrown high, leaping ability is an important skill for an ultimate frisbee player.

Out of Sight

The girls cross country team had a very successful season by almost any standard. Although the team failed in its lofty goal of winning the WPIAL title, they did manage a very impressive 4th place finish. Furthermore, the team finished 13th in the entire state of Pennsylvania at the state meet at Hershey Park. This year, the team graduates a number of accomplished seniors who have made great contributions to the team over the past four years. However, it gives hope for the future that 6 of the top 7 finishers at the state race were underclassmen, as senior Lauren Wood was joined at the top by juniors Hannah Sholder, Jess Winschel, Carley Latus, and Alison Greenfield, as well as sophomores Meghan Russell and Bella Smiga.

Left: Senior Lauren Wood leads the pack of runners in a race. Lauren has made great contributions to the team in each of her four years of high school.

Junior Carley Latus and several other Mt. Lebanon runners try to take the lead. While it can be tempting to run at top speed the entire race, runners must pace themselves to save energy.

Junior Meredith Magdsick cheers the team on from her crutches. The constant pounding of running can lead to many injuries for cross country runners, particularly leg and foot injuries.

In the Lead

For most teams, having one top runner in the WPIAL would be impressive enough. This year's Mt. Lebanon team, however, featured a great deal of leading runners in Western Pennsylvania. Though senior James O'Toole grabbed headlines by winning the WPIAL title and finishing sixth in the state in the PIAA meet, he was joined at the top by fellow seniors Derek Heiss, Ryan Bunch, and Andrew Ryzner, all of whom finished in the top 50 at the WPIAL meet. The results for the team were equally impressive; they finished as one of the top five teams in Western PA and qualified for the state meet at Hershey Park. For the first time, they left for this meet with a school-wide assembly and sendoff for the boys and girls cross country teams. Many felt this was just recognition for this team that had thoroughly dominated competition all season.

Right: Senior James O'Toole pulls to the lead of the WPIAL finals. James would eventually win the race, making headlines and becoming a school hero.

Right: Two Mt. Lebanon players fight to regain possession of the ball. Since players are not allowed to touch the ball with the back side of their stick, stickhandling can be tricky.

Getting In the Game

The Mt. Lebanon field hockey team is one of the fastest growing teams at the high school. In one of its first years as a WPIAL team, the field hockey squad was successful both in its on-field results and in the great times shared by all the players. This year, some of the best times during the season centered on team dinners and tournaments. The new coaches brought enthusiasm to the team which contributed to the success of the season. The team will be graduating eleven seniors who all added personality to the overall mood. Mt. Lebanon was proud to boast seven varsity players on the WPIAL all-star teams. Kathryn McCaffrey, Taylor Anderson, Gill Helwig, and Christine Hammer were named first team. Becca Rothschild, Becky Gray, and Sarah Cummings received second team nominations. The Mt. Lebanon team was fortunate to have such a great collection of talent, and those who will be around next year hope to build on the success of this year's team.

In the Championship

Volleyball is one of the most literal expressions of teamwork among the sports played at the high school. Usually, when a ball comes onto a team's side, the first player to hit it merely controls the incoming ball for teammates. The second player sets the ball up for a winning hit, and the third player spikes the ball across the court to try to score on the other team. All of these three elements are necessary, and without all of them a team will not be able to score any points. In a sport like this, all players are important, but the team's leaders are doubly so. This year, the leadership came from senior varsity players Liz Gaudio and Elise Wolf. With only these two senior starters, the volleyball team might not have expected much out of their season. However, the team was pleasantly surprised with a few big wins during the season, including a first-place finish in the coveted Penn Hills tournament. A number of juniors played a big role in the team's success, and next year they will continue to try to build on this success by leading the team and preaching the values of teamwork.

Never Out of Contention

The seniors on this year's girls soccer team were freshmen when the team won its last WPIAL title. The winning experience these girls brought to the team was apparently very helpful, as the team compiled an extraordinary record of 18 wins, 4 losses and 3 ties, going undefeated and untied in conference play. The playoffs brought even more success for the Blue Devils, who won their first three WPIAL playoff games by a combined margin of 13-1 before losing to Penn-Trafford in the championship game by the slim margin of 1-0, then being upset by Schenley in the PIAA playoffs by a score of 2-1. Despite these late losses, though, the girls of the soccer team can hold their heads high after a dominant regular season. Next year, the team will miss the presence of graduating seniors Laura Ayer, Shannon Rengers, Jenni Banyai, Rachel Louik, Emily Cooperstein, Mollie Puskar, and Katie Bowler. This was a very talented senior class, and amazingly, all of these players saw significant playing time for the team. However, with the strong play of the numerous juniors and sophomores from this year's squad, the team will also be a force to be reckoned with in the future.

Left: Seniors Rachel Louik and Kylie Engle celebrate a goal just scored by Kylie. This year's seniors developed chemistry and friendship, and experienced the highs and lows of victories and defeats together.

Senior Rachel Louik races onto the field as her name is announced at the start of a game. Player introductions are one way the players get pumped up for the game.

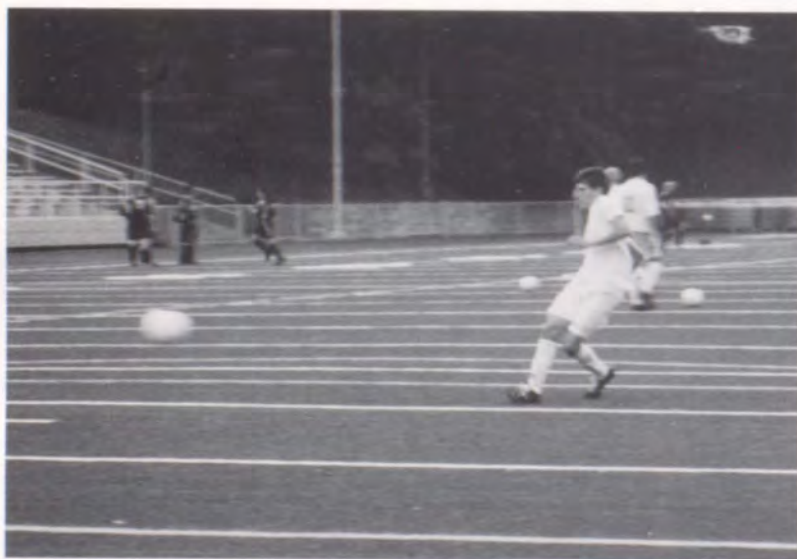

Senior Jenni Banyai attempts to maneuver the ball away from her opponent. Though soccer is known as a game of skill, it can also be a game of strength, especially in scrambles for the ball like this one.

Knocking Out Opponents

The boys soccer team had a tough act to follow, with the previous year's team going 23-3 and winning the WPIAL title. However, this year's team was equally impressive, overcoming early struggles to post a 17-7-1 record. Then, in postseason play, the team went on impressive runs in both the WPIAL and PIAA playoffs, finishing third in each and coming within six minutes of winning the "Best of the West" title game and earning a berth in the state final. Along the way, the team recorded several important victories. As senior Garret Drexler said, "The Shaler game was huge because they were a great team and it gave us the confidence that we could play with anyone in the WPIAL after a few setbacks early in the season." The team was led by returning all-state senior Matt Langton, and also received senior leadership from Drexler, Kevin Uranker, Pat Kerr, Pat Bowman, Andy Jackson, Aaron Libman, Steve Basheda, Alex Funt, Eric Sloan, and Steve Fatur, all of whom started all year for the team.

Below: Senior Steve Fatur hustles hard to get back on defense. Since players are constantly running hard, substitutions are often needed.

"The Fox Chapel game (in the PIAA playoffs) was also really big because they were nationally ranked at the time, and more importantly had killed us at home in the regular season"

Inside the Lines

Coming into this season, the girls tennis team faced a change in leadership. When former coach Dave Shenefelt decided to retire, the team turned to a familiar face to keep the program going in former junior varsity coach Nick Salvo. Since most players had previously played for Salvo on the JV team, they didn't experience the turmoil that usually accompanies a coaching change. This showed in the team's performance during the year. In section play, the tennis team compiled an impressive record of 9 wins and 3 losses. Their success carried over to the postseason, as the team managed to reach the quarterfinals of the WPIAL tournament. The team showed perseverance and determination all year in recording many important wins over conference rivals. Stars on the team included senior Meredith Brown and sophomore Amy Marchlen.

Blowing Them Out of the Water

Rowing for the crew team is unlike any other sports experience at Mt. Lebanon. Instead of a set season and schedule, the crew team rows at several regattas throughout the year. Rowing against other teams all throughout the region, the races can be both nearby, such as the Head of the Ohio, or far away, such as the Head of the Occoquan or Head of the Speakmon. Of course, probably the most unique thing about rowing crew is the practice. Crew members practice several nights a week. In the winter, this is usually in the crew training facility at the high school. However, in the spring and fall, members must go down to the boathouse on the Allegheny River to get practice rowing in race-like conditions. Sometimes, these practices occur before school, as bleary-eyed crew members will be in the water before 6 AM. Though life isn't always easy for those who row crew, the friendships made can more than make up for the struggles. Since the team spends so much time together, they become like a family and best friends are often found on the crew team.

Right: Seniors Erin Hohlfelder, Kelsey Ripper, Stacey Asman, Stacey Barron, and Carrie Smith row along at a quick pace in the Head of the Occoquan. The team took first place in this race.

In Control of Opponents

The wrestling team made tremendous strides towards greatness this past season. The team finished in third at the Hampton Duels and made impressive showings at the West Mifflin and Allegheny County tournaments. With an overall record of 14-4, the team had its best season in the last decade in terms of wins and losses. Furthermore, the team was honored to host the wrestling sectional tournament at its home gym here in Mt. Lebanon. The team did not disappoint its home crowd at this match, qualifying third-place wrestlers in Rob Cowburn, Kyle Baicker-McKee, Scott Polena, and Ben Kiernan, as well as one finalist, Travis Irwin. The team also received key contributions from senior Andrew Pritchard, who finished in 4th place at sectionals, as well as Mike Lioon, who joined the team after two seasons at Kiski Prep and led the team in pins. Under the leadership of captains Irwin and Kiernan, the wrestling team experienced an extremely successful 2003-04 campaign, and the team figures to only improve from here.

Senior Ben Kiernan works hard to pin an opponent. Ben has won a letter in each of his four seasons on the team, and this year qualified for WPIALs for the second time in the 171 weight class.

Senior Andrew Pritchard struggles to keep an opponent from gaining position on him. Since wrestlers earn points for getting out of a disadvantaged position, it is important to never let up when you have an opponent down.

On the Frozen Pond

The ice hockey team earned the attention of the entire school with an impressive 22-1-1 showing during the regular season and a long playoff run that gave the team a chance to play at Mellon Arena. The key to the team's success was a stifling defense headed by sophomore Matt Vaughan, who shined in his first full season as the starting goalie. Helping Vaughan were stalwart senior defensemen Jeff Simons and Dan Wilen, who blocked shots and checked opposing forwards before they even had a chance at a shot. Of course, the team could not have accumulated so many wins without some offensive fireworks, and the team certainly excelled in this regard as well. Senior Eric Sloan ranked 2nd in Western Pennsylvania in points, scoring over 70. Junior Tony Valerino was not far behind, scoring enough to join in the All-Star Game played at Mellon Arena. Through a well-rounded offensive and defensive effort, the ice hockey team was able to achieve a great deal of success this year, and they look to build on this success in future years.

Junior Chad Uddstrom, senior Brian Hammel, and sophomore Matt Bartkowski join their teammates in celebrating a goal. One key to the team's success was getting contributions from underclassmen as well as seniors.

In the Net

Senior night was quite a unique occurrence for the 2003-04 Mt. Lebanon girls' basketball team. While this occasion usually honors a number of seniors who have contributed to the team throughout high school, this year there was only one senior to honor. While senior forward Meghan Collins certainly helped the team a great deal, it was apparent from the start of the year that this team was all about the underclassmen. Junior guard Katie White established herself as a top scorer for the team, and was joined by fellow juniors Emily Hauser, Kassie Cable, Megan Loughran, Mary Beth Briercheck, Lauren Brake, Molly Delaney, and Kyle Coval. However, the most important underclassman was sophomore Kennan Killeen, who started for the second consecutive year and excelled at both offense and defense from the guard position. Although the team failed to reach the playoffs this year, they will retain most of their key players for one or more years, and should be a major threat in the WPIAL for years to come.

Left: Sophomore Kennan Killeen plays tight defense on a player from Fox Chapel. Despite being only a sophomore, Killeen has made great contributions to the team for two years now.

Down In the Paint

This year's boys basketball team entered the season as #3 in the preseason WPIAL rankings, and went on to post an impressive season that did not disappoint their many fans who expected a big season from the team. Once again, the team was led by senior guard Bill Babe. Babe averaged over 17 points a game to lead the team in scoring for the second year in a row, scoring an astounding 40 points in one early-season game. A second offensive threat was found in junior guard Geoff Kestler. Kestler averaged 15.4 points a game for second on the team, getting points through both his skill at three-pointers and his size, which was key on driving layups and close shots. Though the team suffered a few early disappointments, it gained redemption with several important conference wins. One of the biggest was at home against Upper St. Clair, in which the team overcame a double-digit deficit in the first half to get the win. In the playoffs, the team posted an upset victory against Hempfield, which lost only two other games in WPIAL play, before bowing out to McKeesport in the WPIAL playoffs and State College in the PIAAs.

Brothers Bill Babe, senior, and Brandon Babe, junior, work to get open. While Bill starred as an all-section guard this year, Brandon will look to take his place in the starting lineup next year.

Junior Brett Stokar plays tight defense during a game in Florida. Brett helped the team with his passing and driving skills this year, and will hope to take a more prominent role in the team's offense next year.

Senior Bill Babe drives on a defender. Babe has played on the varsity team for three years now, and will continue his basketball career at Allegheny College next year.

In the Fast Lane

Most people agreed that the boys swimming team had no one player that stood out from the rest this year. Of course, this was not a problem--there were so many solid swimmers on the team that the entire squad contributed to the team's success. This year, that success included going undefeated in-section and having eight swimmers qualify for states. This vaunted group of eight included seniors Jake Hoyson and Chip Smith, juniors Dan Eckel, Dan Robinson, and Dan Quirk, and sophomores Gunnar Aasen, Wesley Aasen, and Colin Quirk. Other than this state meet, the highlight of the team's season was their victory over Bethel Park. It was the first time Mt. Lebanon had beaten the Bethel Park swimmers in 30 years, and resulted in the team knocking Bethel off from their reign as annual section champions. With most key contributors to the team coming back next year, it is likely that the team will maintain their new status on top in the next few years.

Senior Jake Hoyson gets applause from both the crowd and his teammates before a meet. Hoyson was one of eight boys to qualify for the state meet from the team.

In the Watery Blue

In a unique season that began with former college coach Don Wagner becoming the new coach of both swimming teams, the girls of the varsity swimming team proved their resiliency and their ability to adapt to change. Despite losing a very strong graduating class the previous year, the team bounced back through the strong performances of the many swimmers who qualified for WPIALs or states, and the others who helped the team by posting their personal best times. Once again, the team's top swimmer was senior Kaitlyn Orstein, who has rewritten the record books throughout her time at Mt. Lebanon and will swim next year for the University of Tennessee, a top swimming program. Other key swimmers for the team included seniors Martha Kulic and Mackenzie Stunkard, junior Molly Engelmeier, and sophomore Lindsay Champ. Of all the team's meets, many agree that the tie against Oakland Catholic was the most exciting. Despite losing another strong senior class this year, such excitement should be present on the team in the future as well, as this team has proven it can bounce back from adversity.

Right: Senior Alison Rosenberg pushes off from the platform to get a fast start to her race. In order to swim their best time, swimmers must make sure to get a quick start.

Teammates cheer on senior Martha Kulic as her name is announced at the start of a home meet. This is part of the pregame ritual that the team used frequently throughout the season to encourage team unity and get the team excited for the meet.

Bridget Peterson

"The girls' team swam fast and had a great time doing it. I know all the seniors will miss the never-a-dull-moment attitude of Lebo swimming."

Junior Molly Engelmeier emerges from the pool after a long practice session. Although swimmers can be exhausted after a hard practice, it is necessary to do this to make sure they are in top form for the big meets.

Always In the Bullseye

Though a WPIAL title is a cause for raucous celebration for most teams, it has become a way of life for the Mt. Lebanon rifle team. Its shooters have consistently taken home this crown over the past couple years. Therefore, it came as a great surprise this year when Trinity outshot Mt. Lebanon to take the WPIAL title away. Though the team was greatly disappointed not to win the title, they kept working hard, and this spring, they won a title even more prestigious and tough to achieve than the WPIAL crown--the state rifle championship. To attain such success, the rifle team relied heavily on starting seniors Rob Bunch, Alaina Cauchie, and Wanwan Zhang. These prodigious marksmen have been honing their skills on the range for years and were nearly unstoppable by their senior year. They were joined in the starting five by junior Lauren Zasadil and sophomore Molly Mathews. These underclassmen will carry on the tradition of the team next year, along with a strong group of sophomores, including Cody Gonze, Arienne Cauchie, and Kristy Webler, that have already shown great dedication to the team.

Left: Senior Rob Bunch loads rounds into his rifle. Rob's concentration and dedication to the sport made him a key contributor to this year's team.

Junior Lauren Zasadil aims her rifle at the target. Next year will be her time to shine, as Lauren will likely be the top returning senior on the team.

Wanwan Zhang gets ready to fire at the target. In addition to her contributions to the rifle team, Wanwan has been an honors student throughout high school, and next year she will attend the Honors College at the University of Pittsburgh.

In the Short Grass

The boys golf team underwent an important growth season under new head coach Paul Kmec. Kmec, who had previously coached the JV team, led the team to a 5-8 record, with a four-match winning streak and a close loss to the vaunted Upper St. Clair program in which the team shot a season-low 194. The star of the team was junior Zach Lewis, who got the season started on a good note by shooting a 67 in the Wally Grant Memorial tournament, which serves as the team's tryouts. The team barely felt the effects of only having two seniors, as Lewis teamed with junior Jimmy Collins and sophomores Alex Livingston and James Cichra to provide a powerful underclassman punch. Of course, the team was helped greatly by seniors Bruce Schmerling and Doug Locasto, who proved capable of firing near par on any day. Schmerling was specially recognized for having played for the team all four years of his high school career. Though players like these will surely be missed, a 2nd-year coach and young players will provide a fresh and competitive look for the team next year.

Right: Junior Zach Lewis aims for the green on Mt. Lebanon's 6th hole. Though this hole is meant to be reached in two shots, long hitters like Zach often go for the green from the tee.

Junior Ryan Hendrickson lines up a tough breaking putt. Often, making medium-length putts like this can determine the difference between having a great round and a mediocre one.

Bruce Schmerling tees up a ball during a practice round. Bruce's consistent driving and putting ability have made him a solid contributor to the team for four years now.

In the Loop

Every year, students march into Center Court and experience the wonder that is Activities Day. Many students like to see what's new and in, and what's old and out. They search the tables for organizations that best suit their personalities. Anyone could count the tables and see that there are an abundance of clubs and activities to join. The organizations range from fighting for personal rights, writing and governing the school to performing arts and studying different cultures. Even though there are a great number of clubs to choose from, many students, despite the fact that they have been here for a few years, still have trouble picking what organization is best for them. Many will experience a wide variety of things, such as skiing in the Ski Club or writing poetry for Pulse, during their quest for the perfect organization. Once their search is complete, Mt. Lebanon students find that there is an organization for every one of their needs and wants.

Erin Hohlfelder listens to the comments of other students in Amnesty International.

On the ride home, many of the students are relaxing after a full evening of skiing at Seven Springs.

Travis Larchuk shows his excitement for Pulse while trying to turn in a paper for the magazine. Pulse was once known as Postscript, but the name has recently been changed to suit the new "in" theme of the school.

The theater group practices for one of their numerous productions. Many of the productions are choreographed and written by the students.

1. Mr. Reichenfeld conducts the winter band concert.

2. Ellen Pierson displays a flyer regarding Amnesty International. Amnesty is a group that tries to educate people on equality.

3. Colin Chrestay and Jacqueline McWilliams take notes at one of the Pulse meetings.

4. Ariela Steif works hard after school to meet one of her deadlines for the LOG.

5. The choir sings at their winter concert.

6. A group of Ski Club members pose at the lodge at Seven Springs. Many students enjoy the weekly trips during the ski season.

Students In Charge

The Mt. Lebanon High School Student Council serves as the governing body for the students. The goals of the Student Council are to serve as the voice of the students, to provide leadership opportunities, to increase school spirit, and to help insure that all students feel respected and valued. In September, each homeroom nominates two representatives to the Student Council. These students are responsible for gathering and disseminating information about events, projects, and fundraisers to the students in their homerooms. Each class also has an Executive Council which plans projects and events during the school year.

The projects for this year included a survey on student life, two in-school blood drives, continued interaction with the Board of School Directors through the Student School Board Committee, three creative spirit assemblies, initiation of the Great Alumni Search, and a joint project with the National Honor Society to raise funds for bone marrow testing and donation on behalf of a Mt. Lebanon Middle School student who is suffering from a rare form of leukemia.

Megan Abbott and Mr. McGregor listen tentatively to suggestions given by some of the other participating members of the Freshman Council for ways the Freshman Class could raise money.

The Sophomore Executive Council prepares banners for one of the many school wide events held during the year. All of the Councils put together programs to involve the entire school. New activities added this year were the Spirit Assemblies held during Fall, Winter and Spring.

In The Arts

Every year the students in the Photography and Art Clubs and those on the PA Squad, MtLTV Live and the Video Crew learn to bring their imagination and feelings into form. MtLTV, Video Crew and the PA Squad keep the student body informed of events and important issues occurring in the high school.

The PA Squad shares information over the PA system every morning, while the Video Crew works with the MtLTV announcers and staff to produce a weekly television show. This show is broadcast to the entire community.

Members of the Art and Photography Clubs are free to experiment with the resources presented to them to create new and interesting forms of art. Students in Photography Club learn to improve their photographic skills by using a variety of cameras to take pictures as well as learning how to develop their own film. The Art Club uses the Art Room facilities and all the equipment held within to create a variety of drawings, paintings and sculptures.

Rachel Mays prepares to finish one of the numerous art assignments for her class during Art Club. Some students in the club use this extra time in the art room to complete assignments for class.

Elana Barkowitz looks on and awaits her cue to start talking over the PA, while Dr. Rosen gives the cue for Moira Foehr to finish her announcement.

Out of Our Minds

Ever wonder about what life has to offer, or what challenges lie and await a person in their future? Well the students in Science, NHS and Academic Games do. The students who participate in the Science club also have many responsibilities. Those students must create an experiment testing a personal hypothesis. The experiment is presented in front of a panel of judges. The National Honor Society students have many responsibilities to meet, such as fulfilling a minimum amount of hours doing in and out of school community service. The NHS students have also put together a fundraising program this year for a girl in the community who has leukimia. The money goes to the young girl's family to help pay for medical bills and other expenses. Amy's Army is the group committed to raising money as well as searching for a bone marrow donor for the Mellon Middle student.

Stacey Asman, Carrie Smith and Christy Brodbeck stand to show their hard work on Amy's Army. Everyday they updated the board to show which high school homeroom was leading in total donations to the cause.

In the Outdoors

Richard Sunseri takes a break from snowboarding by resting on the Sugar Bush slope while on the ski trip to Vermont.

Katherine Woodyard and Amanda Kale stop to admire the view while on the ski trip. The two are avid participants in the ski club.

Many of the students at the High School feel that they need an outlet for all their energy, yet others need something to test their bodies, along with their minds so students join clubs such as Ski and Outdoors. These students are always trying to take their abilities to new levels and heights. People in Ski and Outdoors Clubs try to test their limits by performing tricks down mountains or by rock climbing. They try to push their bodies to their limits and excel to new heights. The Ski Club takes weekly trips to Seven Springs during the winter months. Many of the students ski, snowboard, or just hang out with their friends and have fun. People who participate in Outdoors Club take trips as well, except their trips vary. They explore caves, rock climb and even bike down in West Virginia.

When people look at Mt. Lebanon High School, one of the many things that stands out is the wonderful music resonating through the halls. Mt. Lebanon has a variety of music programs to choose from, but for some students that's just not enough, so they volunteer their free time and participate in the Jazz Band and Orchestra. Many students spend countless hours at the school rehearsing for the concerts held in the winter and spring time. They even come in on their days off to practice and hone their skills to perfection. There are two Jazz Bands, the Lab Band and the Jazz Band. The Lab Band consists of the younger players, while the Jazz Band consists of the more experienced players. The Lab Band got its name from the Jazz Band. The Orchestra consists of the students who play string instruments along with brass, woodwind and percussion. Led by Mr. Vogel, the immense Orchestra puts on shows with the other bands during the winter and spring concerts.

All Language Out

Every year Mt. Lebanon students desire to become knowledgeable of different cultures. To satisfy this craving for knowledge, many will choose to join the French, Japanese, Latin, Spanish and German Clubs. Every year these students partake in the vast culture and history of the language through a number of activities. The goal of many activities is to understand how life in other countries differs from life here in Mt. Lebanon. A common activity is for the clubs to cook and sample traditional food and drink from the countries abroad. For example, the French Club sells traditional croissants during the year while the Japanese Club creates and eats Onigiri (Rice Balls). In addition to making food, the students also participate in traditional holidays and play games that have been inherited from one generation to the next.

Julia Brooks, Andrew Pifer and Derek Heiss create ginger bread houses during German Club in anticipation of the holiday season. All three traveled to Germany with the club over the summer.

Evan Hellring, Doug Donoughe and Neil Parent cut out pieces for "Go" in Japanese Club. The game demands much preparation time because it requires the players to cut out many small circles.

Stand Out

Ellen Pierson, Erin Hohlfelder, R.J. Ober, and Kaitlin Kmec discuss various world topics during an Amnesty International Meeting.

Steph Becker and Caroline Kao discuss issue topics for the Eracism Club. Eracism meetings have a reputation of being highly informative because of the movies watched and articles read.

Many students feel that they need to express themselves freely so they join clubs such as Eracism, Amnesty and GSA. The students participating in these clubs feel that they can present their ideals and feelings towards controversial issues openly. Eracism deals with teaching the student body about the differences and similarities that make everyone special. They feature insightful speakers and informative movies to educate people about equality and the characteristics that make every individual unique. Amnesty International is an organization that focuses on the abuses of human rights. It strives to make people aware of injustices and to take action against them. The GSA is focused on promoting rights for all people. The GSA runs a multitude of events, such as the Day of Silence and the Day of Awareness, to inform the students on the issues of inequality and prejudice happening within our school and our world.

Help Out

Every year in the high school, students help others by joining clubs like SADD, Big Sister and AFS. Students can also help out by being a Medical Office or Library Aide. Medical Aides help Mrs. Drew and Mrs. Joseph with various responsibilities around the health office. Many of the students who volunteer are preparing for a career in medicine. The Library Aides assist the librarians by performing various duties such as returning books to their shelves and checking books out for students. SADD members raise awareness of the dangers in life such as drinking, drugs and other acts that may be hazardous to the health and well being of the community. AFS is a world wide organization that runs an exchange program between countries to learn about people and cultures from around the world. The members of Big Sister volunteer their free time to play and help younger children by acting as an older sister. They help them with their school work or just spend time playing with them.

Write it Out

Steven Dayoub works with the Yearbook Advisor, Ms. Mattern to import digital pictures into a layout. The LOG staff works long hours after school to perfect the pages of the yearbook and complete deadlines on time.

Editors for the Devil's Advocate, Garrett Drexler and Justin Kim review one of the pages and its headline for the paper.

Every year the students involved in Pulse, Devil's Advocate, LOG and Forensics get together to share ideas and information with the student body, as well as expressing themselves to the public. The Devil's Advocate, the monthly high school paper, is the year round publication that keeps the students informed on things happening within and around the school. The newspaper is focused more on recent and upcoming events in the school while the LOG deals with recording the history and major events of the school. Pulse, which used to be known as Postscript, and Forensics deal more with people freely expressing themselves. The Forensics team takes trips around the country to major colleges such as Princeton, Harvard and Yale for debates. The Pulse magazine encourages students to create the entire book by submitting pieces of writing, such as poems and short stories.

Sort it Out

Many students today are becoming more involved in the world around them by planning how to make things better for everyone. The students in NHS, Mock Trial, Model UN, SCAC and PAC try to do this every day.

For instance, SCAC and PAC advise the school administration on the needs and ideas of the students.

Model UN and Mock Trial prepare students to help others in the future. Model UN places students in diplomatic positions, representing different countries around the world, so that they can discuss and try to resolve worldly issues. Mock Trial prepares students to defend people using the justice system. They are given courtroom situations to resolve and then they act them out as if they were in a modern day court.

Act On Out

The Dance Co. practices for one of their daytime performances. They perform continuously during the day to put on a show for the student body.

Katie Johnston and Jesse Smith help put everyone in holiday spirits by singing carols at the annual Winter Concert.

The lights, the stage, the thrill of performing in front of people. These are just a few attractions for the Dance Company, Triple Trio, Choir, and Theater students to enjoy. For some, the thrill of the stage is just too exhilarating for them to pass up, regardless of whether your dancing, singing or acting. Many of the students who participate in these organizations put a great deal of time in and out of school to perform for students, parents and faculty. Choir and Triple Trio are the two vocal groups of the school, while the Theater and Dance Co. are the performance artists. All four groups put on shows in the winter and spring, and all the students practice for months to perfect their presentation and talents to make their productions spectacular.

Out to Make a Difference

In Your Life

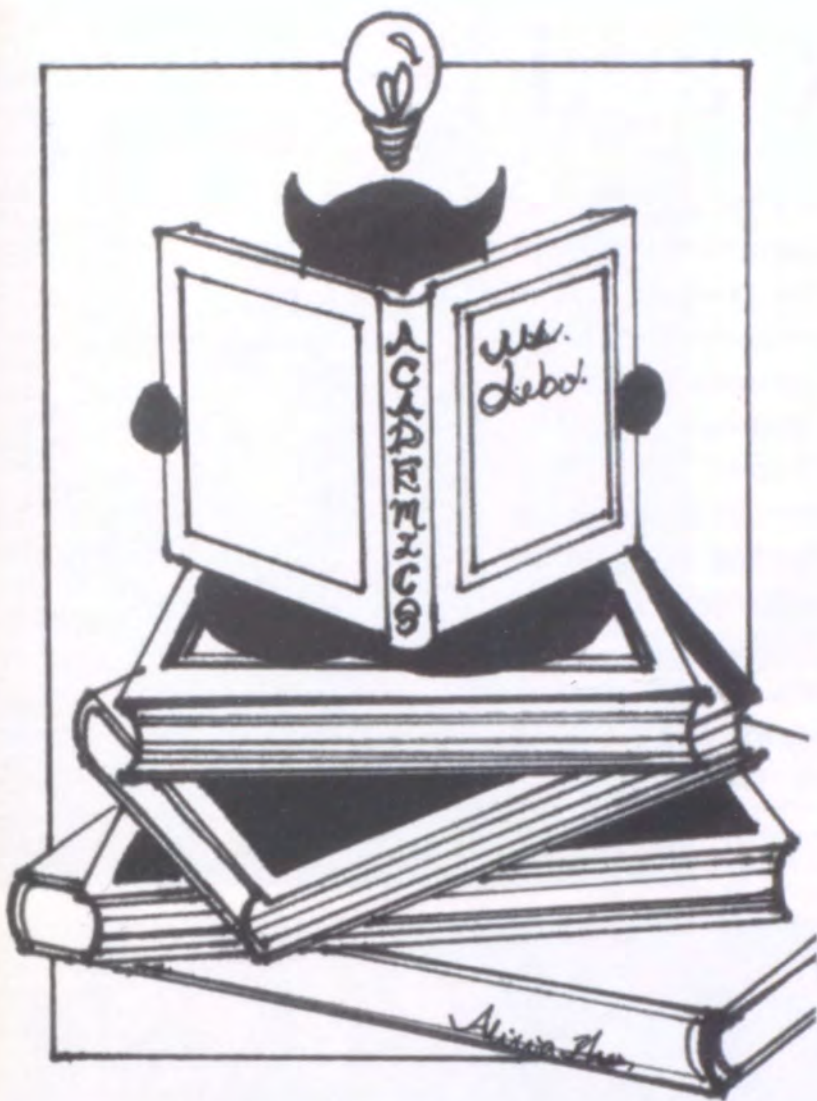

There have been many changes in Mt. Lebanon High School this year, but in the midst of all the madness there is one constant: our teachers, and they will continue to challenge us to do the best that we can. School personnel and policies have endured quite a change, but there have also been other differences to our everyday lives that have not been in the spotlight quite as much. For example, a new class was introduced into the curriculum this year, that highlights current events, taught by Mr. DiNardo. Through all of these changes, the teachers, new and old, have remained the foundation upon which students build their academic success. Our teachers guide us through the rocky years of high school, prepare us for college, and finally, prepare us for life after graduation. From advising students on their course loads, to just being there to talk to, Mt. Lebanon's teachers have become the most prominent aspect of the students' high school years.

Sophomore Olivia Brinksman laughs at the person across the table. Olivia is known for her famous lunchtime concoctions.

Sean Wagner, Carrie Niederberger, Marko Milojkovic, and Kenna Papalia work on the Cognitive Tutor in Integrated Math 2; this adds another interesting way to work outside of the textbook.

1. Kristi Webler and Kelsey Breslow work on a group assignment in Mr. Kich's Integrated Math 3 class.
2. Di Ye and Madame Brams prepare le croque monsieur.
3. Bradley Stombaugh and Matthew Darcangelo bake sugar cookies in Mrs. Gamble's Food's and Nutritions class.
4. Mary Kate McAuley practices CPR in Health class.
5. John Cooper and Annika Matta work hard in Ms. Mattern's Integrated Math 2 class.

In Black and White

English and Social Studies are closely related, due to both requiring similar skills such as eloquence, analytical thinking, and the ability to see things that aren't always in black and white. While in English, you may examine ideas and thoughts that have never been discussed before. In Social Studies, you learn about events that have occurred and how they have affected the world. Both are important for the future. Students must be eloquent to make good impressions and understanding of cultures different than the United States. Both subjects enhance writings skills and the ability to adapt to one's environment. An analytical mind is useful when following current events or deciding which views and ideas a political candidate represents. These tools will help navigate the gray areas of life.

The Ins and Outs of...

Mr. Todd Thimons

I was born in Natrona Heights, PA in 1978. It was kind of boring growing up there. I decided that I want to be a teacher in high school when a very inspirational english teacher who directed me in my school's plays and musicals encouraged me to do so. I've learned from being at Mt. Lebanon that teaching involves more work than I ever anticipated. The worst part of working at Mt. Lebanon is this pressure that seems to be floating around the building. Everyone here is so good, the faculty and the students, and has such high expectations, that it is a challenge to live up to these expectations. In ten years I hope to go back to school to get a PhD. to teach at the college level. Or I would start a freelance writing career. If I could change one thing about my job, I would want more time.

Should American forces be in Iraq?

"Yes, I think that we should be over there to help rebuild the country, but I think that other countries should help also."
Elizabeth Kuhn, Freshman

"To me it doesn't really matter; I'm not old enough to be drafted."
Ryan Decker, Freshmen

"No, because I don't want to live in a country that imposes its will on others, we're not perfect."
Phil Michael, Senior

"We shouldn't have gone in the first place, but we should finish the job, because they can't finish it themselves."
Steve Shaw, Junior

The Ins and Outs of...

Mr. Jon Ptachcinski

I was born in Hartford, Connecticut, but I grew up in North Allegheny. I decided that I wanted to become a teacher at the end of high school. I went to the University of Pittsburgh and graduated in 2002. I always wanted to work at a school like Mt. Lebanon. The teachers here are always willing to help each other out, they'll do anything to make the job a little easier. In the future I hope to finish my graduate degree in higher education and teach either at the high school or college level. A lot of what you learn in school isn't in the lesson material; I want to teach more about life.

Figuring it Out

Success in the world outside of Mt. Lebanon can only be achieved if students gain the proper skills in high school. The real life problems given in math, science, and business courses represent the situations that students will inevitably run into within the course of their lives. Luckily, these departments prepare students well to tackle the problems of the world, whether they are building a bridge, determining the velocity of an unladen swallow, or filling a patient's prescription. This is due in part to our fantastic teachers who are willing to go the extra mile (or kilometer) to make sure we are ready to face any problems in the outside world.

The Ins and Outs of...

Mrs. Cindy Schreiner

I was born in Lancaster, Pennsylvania on May 1st, 1956. I graduated from Manheim High School in 1974. I was 22 when I began teaching at Mt. Lebanon. I always knew I was interested in theatre. When I was little, I remember I would dress up as Eliza Dolittle and sing "Wouldn't it be Lovely?"

the students. All of your creative energy and imagination. I wish every student that starts in theatre would take it throughout their four years, but I understand they want to to try different things. Without our Fine Arts and World Language departments, we would never learn to put our creative energy into something useful. Whether it is learning to play Bach, standing in the spotlight, or having a cultural experience, our teachers urge us to step out of ourselves to become something better. The band practices countless hours in order to perfect their routines. Our phenomenal dance department offers not only the dance company but also dance classes for students to take in place of gym. No matter what activity, Mt. Lebanon students are embracing their world and reaching for glory not only in English but also in five different languages.

In Shape

The Physical, Health, and Consumer Science programs at Mt. Lebanon High School encourage habits that will keep us physically, emotionally, and financially healthy for the rest of our lives. By molding our views on physical and financial fitness we learn how to stay active, and to create a firm economic foundation for the future. These electives are chosen by students because they enjoy the courses which offer a diversion from the rigid classroom environment of other subjects. These electives continue to be popular even though only two years credit are required for graduation.

Martin Dattilo and Matthew Darcangelo practice CPR in Mr. Wentzel's health class. Learning CPR is an easy way for students to feel secure in knowing what to do in an emergency.

The Ins and Outs of...

Mr. Paul Kmec

I always wanted to coach, but when I started 32 years ago you had to teach to be able to be a coach. I've learned that I have to maintain my own health to be a role model for the kids that I teach. I hope that everyone can find some form of physical activity so they can remain healthy throughout their life. Whether its jogging or swimming or some type of aerobics.

Kids don't change, parents change. Education begins at home. There will always be those kids that come to class, do what's expected of them and are happy to learn even though it may not be something that they are extremely interested in. I think one of the most important things for students is to get involved in their school. Find a club or a sport and stick with it.

Do you like Gym inside or outside?

Jen O'Connell, Sophomore

"I would prefer to have gym outside. This provides us with an opportunity to have a deserved break from our day."

Out to Help Others

Everyday many students receive the help and support of their mentors, but few students appreciate the work that they do at our school. They provide ears for others or lend their own to listen to our problems. They spend their time with sick students all day, without complaining of their exposure to germs. They can help you find a book for school, and are understanding when you return a long lost library book. Their willingness to aid us in all of our pursuits, no matter how trivial, makes them a valuable asset to our school, but one that is often forgotten. Their ability to be cheerful and friendly to everyone gives people the opportunity to open up doors, letting their true selves out.

The Ins and Outs of...

Mrs. Teri Joseph

I was born in Detroit, Michigan and moved here because my father was an engineer. I was always interested in nursing. I think that an important quality for a nurse to possess is staying calm under pressure and thinking clearly in a stressful situation. I started at Mt. Lebanon twelve years ago as a visiting nurse. I really enjoyed the job but the schedule was very hard. When I found this position, I was able to see my three children as they went to school here. One of the things I have learned from my job is how resilient you are. Kids, no matter how young, are able to deal with any problem, especially if they are able to talk through them. My advice to you: eat intelligently, exercise regularly, and don't do so many activities that you are compromising your other obligations. Don't burn the candle at both ends.

The Ins and Outs of...

Mrs. Sue Miller

I was born in Pittsburgh, PA. and have worked in Mt. Lebanon for the past 16 years. The food has definately changed. When I began working here there were foods like mystery meats, the same stuff every day. It changed from cafeteria style to restaurant style. If I could change something about my job I would probably want more hours. Also, I really dislike being called a lunch lady, there's a stigma around that word.

I want to be considered someone that works here.

Just call me Sue. I love talking to everyone here. My daughters are grown, so all of the kids keep me up to date on everything. I want everyone to stay active and stay in school. Try to continue with your education. Find something to do with your life that you can be proud of. Watch who you become friends with and remember the people from your school as you grow up.

Out to Serve

In Our School

From joking with kids in the halls between classes, to greeting them outside each morning, the campus managers truly hold up their end to make our school a better place to be. We have a fantastic group of lunch ladies that cook mass amounts of food everyday, and have it ready for three periods straight. In addition to the teachers that patrol the cafeterias, there are three cafeteria monitors that help out by keeping students in check and cleaning up the tables. Behind the scenes, Mt. Lebanon is lucky to have our Information Systems and Technology groups, as well as Jerome, the Xerox guy, who keeps the copies coming.

Dear Mt. Lebanon,

Looking at life "inside out" challenges us to step out of our comfort zone and view the world from a different perspective. It involves taking risks, courage, and of course...change.

One expectation about life in the 21st century is that it will move faster than we ever would have imagined. What is true today may not be true tomorrow. It is our charge as teachers and administrators to prepare you with a world class education to help you flourish and contribute to a society that is constantly changing.

Your charge as students is to use this education to explore ideas never before considered and embrace impossible challenges that will turn the world "inside out" for the better.

Sincerely,
Dr. Sable

Dear Lebo,

From the outside, one who did not know might see Mount Lebanon High School as a cold place, a big old building with enduring character. From the inside, the warmth and friendliness of the students, faculty, staff and the PTSA are very energizing. It is a caring, warm environment where teachers care not only about a student's progress in class, but about the student as a person. Students and teachers care not only about self, but about one another. There is a bonding that is remarkable.

This year we lost a student and a teacher, we lived through several emergencies in the school and we met many new members of the school community. In times of tragedy and emergency and in normal operations I found that for as large as it is, Mt. Lebanon High School is a caring and supportive place.

In the classrooms, as well as activities and other facets of school life, I see students placing a high priority on achieving excellence. Most are not content with average. Students work extremely hard to be the world's best by putting time and effort into what they do. The result is quality teaching and learning. Mount Lebanon High School has a long tradition of excellence in education. It is the only school in Pennsylvania to have been designated a National Blue Ribbon School of Excellence three times. We have also celebrated recognitions in academic, athletic and fine art competitions.

It is a pleasure and honor for me to be a part of this campus community, to lead and support the faculty and students in excellence. Best wishes and may Lebo be your springboard to future successes.

Sincerely,
Dr. J

Innie and an Outie

The students of Mt. Lebanon High School have weathered gas leaks, water pipe problems, and lock-downs. On top of all of this, there were new administrators and policies that the students had to deal with. Despite all of this, they have still been able to maintain their sense of self as well as the unity and independence of the student body. One factor that enhanced this was the new bell system that was installed at the beginning of second semester. This change was met with student outrage and complaint. People were even more angry when they found out that the installation of the new bell took money and about four hours. Many students joined together and began a petition attempting to rid the school of the audio garbage chiming through the halls every 47 minutes. On the other hand, through class fundraisers, such as Market Day and magazine sales, community service projects, and fantastic assemblies, Mt. Lebanon has truly shown their school spirit.

The Freshmen: Unleashed

Freshman Lee Johnson drags Brian Little across the floor of the cafeteria using a piece of one of the lunch tables as a rope. Usually, students use the cafeteria as a place to wake up early in the morning, do some homework, or talk with friends.

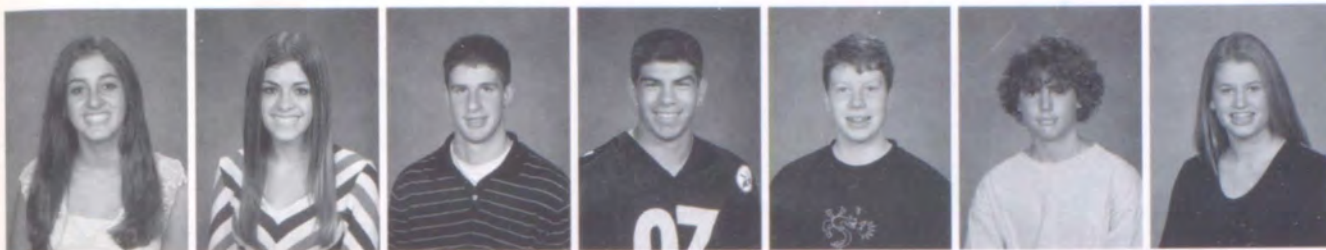

These freshmen on the fifth floor let off their energy everyday before school: playing football and basketball, climbing in the garbage can, and screaming loud, obnoxious expletives across the room; the usual "freshmen" kind of things.

uniforms? Why or why not?

"No, I don't think our school should take up uniforms because it limits students' freedom to express themselves. With uniforms, our school would be boring because everyone would look alike."

-Lindsay Goldstein

"I don't think we need a dress code at all. Lebo students know what to wear so uniforms would be a waste for us."

Jessie Blint unsuccessfully tries to block the camera's view as she walks down the fifth floor hallway to her seventh period math class.

Chad Cable dresses up for Halloween as Captain Jack Sparrow: a person in the movie "Pirates of the Caribbean." Cable stands here in Sparrow's characteristic pose.

Sophomores Stephanie Smith, Mike Sofis, and Lauren Singley do homework during homeroom. Many students finish up last minute homework, or start their work, for that matter, in this time before first period.

Goda Trakumaite laughs at an art club meeting. Many students use their extracurricular activities as an outlet for their energy and ideas.

A Flip-flop policy?

"In general, feet are nasty but can be almost cute actually with sandals. And a side note, girls do not have a higher risk of falling down stairs when they wear their flip-flops since I fall all the time in my size 13 honkers."

What's up with that?

"I feel flip-flops are essential, and it is unfair that they aren't allowed."

-Emily Gilberg

"A lot of the new rules are pretty stupid. Flip-flops are not an offensive article of clothing. It is our choice to wear them or not. I am not about to change what I wear for a rule that does not make sense to me."

Remembering Keith

When Keith Reisinger died on a warm summer's evening in July, 2003, there was a terrible feeling of loss for all of us who knew him. Although his days with us were few in number, we know he made the most of every one of them. He had numerous adventures with his family and friends that included frequent trips to Vail, Colorado to ski, hike, bike and swim in the frigid high-country lakes. He toured Beijing, Stockholm and Munich, hiked the Grand Canyon (twice), kayaked on the Salmon River and fished for tuna in the Atlantic. We remember him playing baseball, tennis, soccer, golf and wrestling, as well as playing the tuba and his "legendary" poker playing. He was also an excellent student. Although he enjoyed all of these activities, there were more important things in Keith's life. As a Lincoln Elementary student, Keith had read the quotation by James Clarke that is carved in stone on the front of the school: "It matters for all eternity whether we do right or wrong". Keith lived a life based on humor, love and friendship. His family and friends miss his love and all his smiles, but we will remember his example of a life well-lived.

Is the increased amount of writing

"I guess it's for a better cause but I still think it's a ridiculous idea because it does not help at all."

Out with the Old

From scrunchies and stirrup pants, to pogs and Giga Pets, to parking passes and cell phones, the Class of 2004 has indeed experienced a memorable journey. We will cherish the memories of the past and look forward to the promising futures that await us.

Top: Lisa Shiwarski, Bridget Noonan, Kelly Gannon, Laurie Gidas, and Sarah McDonald enjoy the warm evening before the Counting Crows and John Mayer concert in August. They wanted to live up one of the last lazy days of summer they will spend before starting school as Mt. Lebanon seniors.

Senior Memories

Taylor McNickle, Abby Seng, and Lisa Shiwarski look confused while listening to a presentation on reptiles on a field trip.

The Foster sixth grade class poses for one last picture after the end of the year pool party at Bower Hill Pool.

In a classic picture, Lincoln sixth graders Ashley Van Horn, Kaitlyn O'Brien, and Catherine Balsamo hang out after a hard day of school.

Second graders Scott Brown and Andy Goff hold a snake while on a field trip at the Carnegie Science Center.

Howe first graders Abbie Maravalli and Bridget Noonan take a break from their last day of school party, showing off their "Class of 2004" t-shirts.

Included in this Halloween picture are seniors Chris Cain, Alex Funt, Katharine Platt, and Jackie Christmas from Foster Elementary.

Krisa Ann Keller

Krisa, you are "our Angel" sent to us from heaven! You have given us such joy and love, no one could measure. We are so proud of you, you are so many things to so many people. The sky is your limit, take your wings and fly, you are about to become one great teacher! God has truly blessed us, we love you. Good Luck Baby Girl!

Love Dad, Mom, Keith Jr., Joshua

Elisabeth Haber

Elisabeth, we are so proud of the young lady you've become. Remember, your family will always be there for you!

Love, Mom, Dad, Hillary, and Ben

Greg Smee

Watching you grow has been a real adventure in parenting. You have always been full of surprises. We hope you will always keep your independent spirit and find your special place in the world.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Rachel Graham

Bake,
From your first day of kindergarten to your last day of high school, we hope you've enjoyed your school days in Mt. Lebanon. Congratulations on your achievements!
Love, Mom and the Great Mutato

Katie Elizabeth Ubinger

Katie,
Congratulations- we're so proud of you! We wish you a lifetime of happiness and success.

Love always,
Dad, Mom, Shaun and Sarah

Catherine Balsamo

Dear Catherine,
We love the laughter from your heart, your dancing, your passion, and your sense of humor. The compassion and love that you have makes us so proud. May your future hold wonderful adventures in store!

Sempre Noi.
Love, Mom, Dad, Emily and Julie

Hannah Lingley

Hannah,
We're so proud of you, overcoming great obstacles, continuing to grow in knowledge and spirit. Congratulations. May your future be full of love and joy.
Mom, Dad, Zoë, and Claire

Tia Delaney

Tia,
From the moment you were born, you beat the odds! And we knew you were going to be amazing! You were, you have been, and you always will be our amazing angel! You will be great in all you do.

Love,
Mom, Dad, and Brady

Gail Frederickson

Dear Gail,
Your strength, talent, compassion,
and beauty make us extremely proud of you. We can't wait to see

Carrie,

We wish you continued success in meeting life's challenges. May you find happiness in whichever path you choose. Let your talent and judgement be your guide.

Mom, Dad, and Elizabeth

Jessica Hannan

Jessie, We are so proud of you and the choices you have made. Your kind and gentle heart is a blessing to all who know you, but especially to your family.
We love you more than words can say. May God always bless and watch over you!

Love, Mom, Dad, and Melanie

Katy Grant

Katy-
It seems like just yesterday that you were our little Dorothy, in your blue gingham dress and ruby slippers. Of all the parts you've played, though, your role in the family has been the best! No matter where the future takes you, always remember,
"There's no place like home."
Love, Mom

Patrick Kerr

Patrick,
We have always been so proud of you and the accomplishments that you have achieved. You are our pride and joy.

Love,
Mom, Dad and Caitlin

Becca Allen

Becca Boo-
You're everything we could have hoped for. We'll miss you and your amazing voice
every minute you're away!

Love,

Kels-
"If you don't have a dream,
how you gonna have a dream
come true?" (Bloody Mary, South Pacific).

Follow your dreams and may they all come true!

Love,
Dad, Mom, and Greg

Keenan Klett

Keenan,
It seems like only yesterday that you were entering kindergarten and now you will begin your journey to college and beyond. We wish you much success. Follow your dreams and you will go far.

Love,
Mom, Dad, Krista, and Kirk

David Zolot

Dear David,
We love you very much. Always follow your dreams.
Mom and Dad

Leila Naja

Leila,
You have always been a shining light in our lives. Follow your heart in all you do. It will lead you in the right path.

Love,
Mom, Dad, Imad and Nadia

Colin Devlin

Colin,
Just seems like yesterday that you were digging for dinosaur bones in the backyard! We are all very proud of your many accomplishments and the fine young man that you have become. God bless you as you continue on your journey. Always keep your sense of humor and know that we love you!
Mom, Dad, Andrew, and Maura

Pamela Castello

We can't believe that time has passed so quickly. The wonderful gift that Jehovah God gave us, a baby girl has become a beautiful young woman inside and out. She has always filled our home with such happiness. We feel very proud of you and wish you happiness. These are the wishes of your parents.
Jesus and Martha

Christopher Cain

Chris,
You have been blessed with a keen intellect and a "one of a kind" sense of humor. Use your abilities to the fullest.

We love you,
Mom, Dad, and Ryan

Kimberly Barron

Kimberly,
For seventeen years you have filled our home with laughter and our hearts with love. We are so proud of the exceptional person you have become. May God bless you with a future that is as special as you are!

Love,
Mom and Dad

Lauren Steele

Lauren,
You have been a joy to us from the start. Please remember to be true to yourself and we wish God's many blessings for you.

All our love,
Dad, Mom, Kimberly and Daniel

Ashley Perrone

Ashley-
It feels like yesterday when you started kindergarten, and now you are graduating from high school. We are very proud of you. Your caring and loving ways are so wonderful to have in a child. We wish you all the best in the years to come. Congratulations Ashley!

God Bless-
Mom, Dad, Aly, Armond and Anthony

Kenneth Loy

Kenny,
It seems like only yesterday that you were that curly blond-haired little boy running around our neighborhood at 100 mph. You've filled the last 18 years with entertainment, enthusiasm, and determination...all good keys to success. We are very proud of you, all you've accomplished, and the handsome young man you have become. Keep laughing and enjoy life. We wish you the best of health, happiness, and continued success in college.

Love,
Mom, Dad, Joey (and family), Kerri (and family), and Kaitlyn

Kevin Uranker

Dear Kevin,
Over the years you have shared many special times with your family, friends, teachers, and coaches. We hope that you will live by what they have taught you and will cherish some of the very special memories of them. As you pursue your future goals and dreams, we hope that you will always use your abilities to their fullest, follow your heart, and most of all enjoy life. We are very proud of the fine young man that you have become and hope that you will find lots of happiness and success in your future.

Love,
Mom & Ron

Zack Gawlas

Zack-
You are on your way to a future full of hopes and dreams. As you face life challenges, stay true to your values and keep your winning smile!

Anna Langsdale

Dearest Anna,
Compassion...Ambition...Delight...
Charm...Persistence...Optimism...
Determination...Humor...
We see you express these qualities with grace and style that are all your own. How wonderful you are and will always be. Love you so much,
Mom, Dad, Andrew, and Scotty

Abigail Seng

17 1/2 yrs. ago you were born weighing only slightly more than a bag of sugar. We cannot measure the love, joy, and spice you have brought to our family. A heart as big as the ocean, determination as tall as a mountain. How proud we are of you and hope all of your dreams come true.

*Congratulations and love,
Mom, Dad and Max*

Anika Wagner

Anika,
It's hard to believe how quickly this year passed. We remember the first days, Rules #1 and #2, making a "th" sound and the excitement and energy you brought us. Thank you for being a part of our family. This past year will never be forgotten and you are always welcome in "your" home away from home.

Love,
Don, Janet, and Natalie

Alyssa Amber Cox

Allie,
They say that beauty is only skin deep. Your beauty shines all the way through. God blessed me with you for my daughter, and He has given you many gifts. May He continue to bless you as you share these gifts with the world.
All my love,
Mom

Jarrett Smith

Jarrett,
We are so proud of you and all you have accomplished. You aimed for the moon and now you are a star! Work hard in college.
We love you.
Mom, Dad, and Ben

Jessica Feinberg

Jess,
You are the most loving daughter and sister in the world. Thanks for filling our lives with love and happiness. May all your dreams come true. You are the guru of fantasy football!
With love,
Mom, Dad and Mike

Andrew Kelly

Andrew,
You'll always be our "little wagon rider" and wheel expert. We are so proud of you.
Love,
Mom and Dad

Stephen Paine

Stephen,
We are so proud of you. This is an exciting time in your life. Remember, as you soar into your future, our love goes with you.
Love,
Mom, Dad and Amy

Caitie Murray

Caitie, Love,
Dad and I were always so proud of you- we loved your music, your sweet smile, your heart of gold, your scholastic and athletic abilities- we love everything about you. Dad will always be in our hearts and he will be watching over you as you make your way through the world.
Much love,
Mom & Mike

Katie Flickinger

*Katie,
It has been such a joy watching you grow into a beautiful young woman. You have enriched our lives in countless ways with your loving heart and gentle spirit. As you begin college, be confident and secure in the love of family and friends. We are so proud of you! Most importantly, stand strong in your faith, knowing that wherever you go, God's love goes with you. Shine on! (Prov. 3: 5-8)*

*Our love always,
Mom, Dad, Elizabeth, Jonathan, and Mary Grace*

Julie Fitting

Julie--you little firecracker!
Your smile lights up a room. Your eyes shine like beacons for others to follow. Your spirit lights up everyone around you. You are bursting with life. Lucky are those who bask in the warmth of your personality. We are lucky to be your family.

Love,
Mom, Dad, and Stephanie

Tiffany Schmidt

Tiffany,
It's hard to believe four years of high school are almost done--and how it's time for a new chapter in your life to begin. We love you and are so proud of you. May God bless you wherever you go.

Love,
Mom, Dad and Zachary

Derek Heiss

Derek--
You are a joy to us. So follow your heart and achieve your dreams, we'll always be proud of you. God bless you.

Lots of love,
Mom, Dad, Valerie and James

Jessica Heinnickel

Jessica,
It seems like only yesterday when we snapped this picture at Grandma's. You will always have a special place in our family. The future is now yours to own! We love you and congratulations.

Dad, Sharon and Aimee

Andrew Foster

Andrew,
I am amazed at what you have accomplished over the past few years. Words cannot express how proud we all are of you. I hope you are excited about what your future holds and what you have become as I am.

Love, Mom, Mark, and Maddie

Joe Crowley

Joe,
We have been blessed since the day you were born. We are extremely proud of the man you have become. We know that you will continue to succeed in the next phase of your life. We will miss you terribly. We will support you and be there to assist you in following your dreams. We will always love you, no matter what.

Mom, Jim and Laura

Philip Michael and Matthew Hodes

Taylor McNickle

Can it be, that our little girl, all dressed up with nowhere to go,
now is a beautiful young woman with everywhere to go?

*All our love,
Mom, Dad and Kady*

K.J. Steiner

You are a special gift. The combination of all your incredible qualities become apparent daily: You are thoughtful,
caring, understanding, sincere, funny,
smart, honest, talented and a real cutie!
Because of this wonderful package that you are- you will be the VERY BEST of whatever you choose to be. I am so incredibly proud of you. And I love you like crazy!

Mom

Stacey Asman

*Stacey,
Every end has a new beginning. As you travel on to your next adventure...dare to dream, explore,
trust people, giggle, climb trees,
always look ahead, never forget where you came from.*

*We love you,
Mommy, Daddy, Erin, and Gabe*

Gina Jamieson

Gina,
Our eyes blinked and you were grown...into a young girl with beauty, talent, creativity, and intellect that continually amazes us.
We love you and we are so proud.

*Love,
Mom, Dad, J.T., Nanny, and Poppy*

Aaron Libman

Aaron,
You are the "coolest" son and brother. It has been a joy to watch you grow into such a fine young man.
Continue to reach for your dreams knowing we will always love and support you.

*Love you forever,
Mom, Dad and Meggie*

You light up our lives.
May your joy always shine with peace and contentment.
May you always feel our love wherever you go.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Rose Charlton

Rose,
We are so proud of the caring young woman you've become. Let your strong faith guide you, and you will continue to share your gifts to make the world a better place. Congratulations! We love you dearly.
Mom, Dad and "the Gang"

Jessye Bobinis

The miracle of your birth still so fresh in our minds, gave way to the amazing progression of body, mind, and soul. Through first steps, first books and first dates, you have become a beautiful young woman full of life's promise, seeking your own course, increasingly independent.
A fellow traveler through life.

Love,
Mom, Dad, Annie and Schutz

Christy Brodbeck

Christy,
Always keep the smile on your face and pursue your dreams.

Congratulations to you and your friends on a memorable high school experience!

Love,
Mom, Dad, Scott, and Carolyn

Diana Ketch

Nana-Banana!
The past 18 years seem to have flown by! Where did my little 'school girl' go? My life has been blessed by your loving and generous spirit. I cherish the memories of yesterday and eagerly anticipate sharing your future. You're a shining star, and we love you very much!

Love,
Mom, Jordan and "the gang"

Lisa Shiwarski

Lisa-
This refrain from LeeAnn Womak's recording says it best: "We hope you never lose your sense of wonder...Whenever one door closes, we hope one more opens...Promise us you'll give faith a fighting chance and when you get the choice to sit it out or dance, we hope you'll dance!"

Love,
Mom, Dad, and Matt

Cheri Kaplan

Cheri,
We can hardly believe how quickly time flew by. It doesn't seem so long ago, when you were small and full of questions. Preschool, grade school, high school. To watch you grow into a beautiful young woman, sensitive and caring. We are very proud of you. Congratulations, Cheri!

Love,
Mom, Dad, and Aaron

Ryan Klutch

Ryan-
Time has flown by so quickly...you have always been a genuine, caring and intelligent person.

May you always have the happiness you give to others inside of yourself. We love you and are very, very proud!!

Love,
Mom and Ian

Colin Chrestay

Life moves pretty fast. If you don't stop and look around every once in a while, you could miss it! (Ferris Bueller)
We love you and hope for the best for you. Congratulations!

Love,
Mom, Dad, Emma and Kyler

Alex Williot

How do you tell your wonderful daughter that she is an absolute treasure, that she has filled your lives with joy and is a constant source of pride? Words can't express the warmth and love you feel when you look into her eyes and remember the little angel you rocked in your arms and you blink and see the bright, beautiful, talented young woman she has become. Alex, we are the luckiest family in the world, for you are a gift from God.

Love,
Mom, Dad, Carl, and Gabrielle (and Baci!)

Marissa Bradford

...Poised excitedly for tomorrow... Everything seemingly changing except our love and devotion to you every single day.

We will always love and stand with you as you make your future unfold!

Love,
Mom, Dad, and Marla

Scott Godwin

Scott,
Such joy you have brought to us! We are so proud of you. Always smile...you have our love and support forever.

Love,
Mom, Dad and Michael

Simon Pongracz

Simon,
You have grown into a wonderful young man and we are proud of you. You have so many great talents, God help you develop them. Remember Him always to direct your path. Love you so much!
Dad, Mom, Faith, AJ, Baby, and Chaco

Becca Gunn

*Smart. Independent. Caring.
Fun. Reliable. Sassy. Lovable.
Kind. Considerate. Loving.
Outrageous.
We love Becca!
Mom and Jessie*

Jackie Christmas

*Dear Jackie,
Your beautiful smile,
Your incredible sense of humor,
Your endearing personality,
All of your life you've made an everlasting impression on so many people...most of all us.
We have been so blessed to have you in our lives.
We love you,
Mom, Dad and Lauren*

Andrew Loftus

Andrew,
Your smile has always brought joy to everyone around you.
We are so proud of your success through high school,
and know you will achieve
whatever you set your mind
to. Congratulations!
Love,
Mom, Dad, Patrick, Matthew and Mark

Alex Tarbert

Alex...
Our journey together has been extraordinary. You have found your unique path and have taken us along for an exceptional ride.
Our love...
Dad, Mom and Ian

Margot Scheiferstein

Margot,
God gave us a special gift when He gave us you. We have, and always will, enjoy every minute we spend with you. You've grown to be a thoughtful, lovely and kind person.
What more could we ask for? Here's to Queen Margot.
Love,
Mom, Dad and the kids too!

Laura Beynon

Laura,
We have watched you change so much from the little girl in glasses to a strong and mature young woman.
Your spirit and strong determination will help you accomplish whatever you choose in life.
We love you-
Mom, Dad and Julie

Abbie Maravalli

Abigail- "source of joy." Truer words were never spoken. You are a treasure and a precious gift. It is a privilege to be your parents. Trust God's plan.
Jeremiah 29:11
We love you,
Mom, Dad and Ian

Daniel Wilen

Daniel,
You are a source of joy in our family. We wish you the very best and hope you fulfill all your dreams and reach all your goals
in life.
All our love,
Mom, Dad, Jennifer and Jonathan

Stacy Barron

"Is this the little girl we carried?
...Sunrise, sunset
Quickly fly the days
Seedlings turn overnight to sunflowers
Blossoming even as we gaze."

We have enjoyed every day with you, Stacy, and we are so proud of who you are and what you have accomplished. You are "simply the best!" May the sun continue to shine on you in the days and years ahead. We love you!

XOXOXO,
Mom, Dad, Harrison, and Matthew

Alaina Cauchie

Alaina,

We've always been proud of how you have been so unique and sure of yourself--from Academic Games to a captain of the Rifle team! Hold on to that as you start this exciting time of your life! We love you very much!

Mom, Dad and Arienne

Zak McAdoo

Zak,
"The more that you read, the
more things you will know.
The more that you learn,
the more places you'll go."

-Dr. Seuss

Enjoy your journey!

Love,
Mom, Liz and Schlomie

Jessica Simon

Jess,

It is said that the measure of one's life is their ability to touch the lives of others in a meaningful way--and you have been blessed with this very special gift. We will always hold dear the beautiful memories that you have given us and look forward with great anticipation to those that you will share with us in the future.

All our love--always,
Mom, Dad and Chad

Tara Lee Buck

Remember this report card? "Tara is extremely artistic, creative, beautiful, alert,
kind, has a loving and gentle nature,
intellectual ability, is like a ray of sunshine, always thinks of others first. I don't think

I have ever known a child as truthful, unselfish and caring as Tara." Well, you haven't changed.
Mommy loves you...

Lacee Griffith

Lacee,

You've made all our dreams come true. Now it's time to work on yours.
Follow your heart.

Love,
Mom

Susanna Lee

Keep on smiling no matter what happens.
We are so proud of you and we wish you the best of luck.
Love,
Mom and Christina

Bridget Alex

Bridget:
Best wishes for continued success. We are very proud of you.

All our love,
Mom, Dad, Chris, Dave, Leah,
and Duncan

John O'Connell

John,
You have been God's gift to us from the start-full of joy, creativity and a zest for life. You have always made us proud. Keep pressing on to fulfill God's purpose for your life. You bless all whose lives you touch. May God continue to bless and guide you always.
(Isaiah 40:31, Prov 3:5,6) Congratulations,
John!
Love,
Dad, Mom, Dan, Jen and Sarah

*To our very own Polish Princess, I'm sure it was only yesterday that we walked you to Kindergarten. And now today you are graduating from high school. Even though the years have raced past us, we are constantly filled with joy, delight and pride at the beautiful and wonderful person you have become. The future is yours--Go after it with gusto!
We love you dearly,

Jeff Simons

Jeff,
Self motivation, determination, and a relentless positive attitude are just words to some people. To you they are life.
You have been a constant source of pride to our family. Let your wonderful personality and your great sense of humor continue to help you reach all of your dreams.
We love you,
Mom, Dad, and Greg

Richard James Smith

Richard,
You have been a joy and blessing in our lives. We are so proud of all that you have accomplished. Good luck in all you do. May all your dreams come true! God bless you.
Your loving family,

OUT WITH

The Class of 2004 has certainly made a mark on Mt. Lebanon High School. The senior activities that occurred, such as Senior Boatripe, Prom, and Senior Pledge Day all served as bonding experiences for us, bringing the class together for the last time. Though our high school days will be sincerely missed, we look forward to the bright and thrilling futures that await us.

When it's all out in the open . . .

It has been a year of changes for the students, faculty and staff at Mt. Lebanon High School. Our world was turned Inside Out. Students were unsure what to expect of new administrators Dr. Margorie Sable and Dr. Zeb Jansante, but eventually found them to be progressive and open-minded. Inspired by this change in leadership, the school district adapted a new mantra of "On the Move." The new administration motivated students and staff, and the same changes that turned the school Inside Out created a better learning environment that characterized Mt. Lebanon as a school district "On the Move."

-Joe Crowley

Above: The soccer team prepares for a game on their new turf. Sports are a significant part of student life at Mt. Lebanon, so the administration made an effort to make new facilities like this for Mt. Lebanon's athletes over the summer.

A student pays for a soft drink in one of the school's vending machines. In an attempt to beautify Center Court, these machines were moved to a separate room over the summer.

Left: Students work in one of the recently upgraded writing labs. Students returned to school last fall to find brand new computers coupled with a new fiber optic network.

Below: A banner in Center Court displays Mt. Lebanon School District's motto, "On the Move."

1. Some of us weren't ready for the many changes.
2. We thought we were in over our heads.
3. It wasn't always easy.
4. But through it all we kept our sense of humor.
5. When times were tough, we looked out for each other.
6. And once our year was turned Inside Out, we didn't want to see it end!

Colophon

Produced by Taylor Publishing Company in El Paso, TX and Malvern, PA., the 74th edition of the Lebanon LOG is quarter-bound with Blue Lexatone and White Vellum. The cover features Superblue Top Mylar Foil and is both embossed and chiseled debossed. Endsheets are White Index Stock printed in a 10% screen of black with original student artwork in a 40% screen of black. Fonts used throughout the book include: Headlines in Shabby, subheads in Sleepwalker, captions, quotes, and body copies in Eric. Color was used in the thirty-three page Senior Section and the first Student Life signature. Super Blue (No. 11) Spot Color was used in all Sports pages. After the last page is the Taylor Yearzine of current events for 2003-2004 followed by an autograph section.

Acknowledgements

The yearbook staff would like to thank everyone who was involved with the production of this yearbook. Especially Taylor, for sending us cool posters and putting up with all of our late deadlines and Mrs. Dorothy Albright for coming in to help us many days after school. To our saviors from tech support and Laura Martinez, our account executive. From Mt. Lebanon, Mrs. Cathy Rogers, our business manager, who takes care of all of the finances, technology, and data entry, Mrs. Chris Moore in the athletic office for gathering team pictures, Mrs. Gina Stein, Mrs. Joanne Vadino and Mrs. Carol Unger for their vast knowledge on pictures and names. Also, Mrs. Patsy Kirkpatrick who created and recreated many lists and ASCII files and Mr. Dale Smail for keeping our office clean and bringing us a new table. To the men downstairs, Mr. Chuck Stevenson and Mr. Jerome Turner, thanks for making our mailings a bit easier. And finally, thanks to our official school photographer, Mr. Michael Good, for coming in on short notice to take club pictures and senior superlatives. The six editors designed pages, found pictures and captions, and bonded over the mystery bag and the broken table. The three senior editors graduating this year will be greatly missed by us all. Katharine, we will remember you for your penmanship, Bridget, for your ponytail, and Ariela, for lovecalculator.com. Josephine, thanks for all of your trips to Ritz, ensuring that all of Chelsea's pics got developed. We would also like to thank Ms. Peg Grasso for all of her advice in making a smooth transition into this year. Ms. Mattern, thank you for your unfailing dedication to this publication despite all of the difficulties we have faced, namely Bridget's inadequacies and Steve's attention span. In addition, thanks for bringing us into the 21st century with mailboxes, white boards, and mass amounts of sarcasm. Your constant laughter, no matter how bad the situation gets, will never be forgotten.

U.S. troops in Iraq

The biggest news event of 2003 was unquestionably President Bush's decision to employ American armed forces to oust Iraqi dictator Saddam Hussein. The regime was toppled quickly, forcing Hussein and top members of his Baath political party into hiding. After an exhaustive manhunt, U.S. forces captured Hussein in a small underground hiding area on the banks of the Tigris River.

MOVIES

an epic conclusion

In 2003, the one film at the top of everyone's must-see list was The Return of the King. In the final chapter of The Lord of the Rings trilogy, Frodo (Elijah Wood) journeys to Mount Doom to dispose of a very dangerous piece of jewelry. Meanwhile, Aragorn (Viggo Mortensen) and Gandalf (Ian McKellen) lead humanity in one last stand against Sauron's massive army of Orcs and airplane-sized elephants. Will the One Ring be destroyed? Will humanity survive? Will director Peter Jackson finally get a Best Picture Oscar® for his amazing work? All of Middle Earth wants to know....

MUSIC

workin' it at the VMAs

As always, the MTV Video Music Awards provided many of the year's most memorable music moments. Coldplay got accolades for Breakthrough Video, '80s popsters Duran Duran won an award for Lifetime Achievement, Justin got the nod for Male Performer of the Year, and Missy strode off with the coveted Video of the Year award for "Work It." To top it all off, the King of Pop saw some of his biggest hits covered with extreme verve by Lars and the gents from Metallica.

TRENDS

to swap or not to swap

With the launch of Napster V2.0 and the new iTunes music store, the Internet continued to reshape the way we listen to music in 2003. But not all was rosy on the World Wide Web. Fearing that online music swapping was eroding profits, the Recording Industry Association of America (RIAA) tried to curb unlicensed music downloads by supporting litigation against alleged copyright violators.

TECH GEAR

the future is digital

The march toward the digitalization of everything continued in 2003. Music fans embraced ones and zeros, downloading MP3s from iTunes and other new sites. Digital cameras became more affordable and more powerful, while cell phones integrated a host of functions, from MP3 playback to digital photography to video games. Even the family pet got in on the digital act, as Sony unveiled the newest version of its AIBO robotic pooch.

TELEVISION

Fear factor

a little too real

Impossible to believe but true—2003 saw even more reality shows on TV than the year before. It seemed every person on the planet was being followed by a camera crew, from those searching for love (The Bachelor, The Bachelorette, For Love or Money, Average Joe, Joe Millionaire) to those seeking adventure (Fear Factor, Survivor, Road Rules, Beg, Borrow and Deal) to those looking for a sixteenth minute of fame (The Surreal Life). Of course, the show that started the craze, The Real World, was still going strong on MTV. Just promise us, please, no more Puck.
