The spotlight that always shines on us is motivation to do our best. Our name is found in local, state and national news for a wide array of reasons.

Successes throughout our diverse organizations and challenging academia have resulted from our hard work and cooperative efforts to better our community.

Students are proud to be recognized for their achievements.

From winning WPIAL championships to national recognition of two senior band members, we have reasons to celebrate. As a school, our accomplishments have earned us the right to be Spotted.

INVESTIGATING ACTIVITIES AND GAMES AT KID CAMP

As a fundraiser for a trip to Switzerland, a local Girl Scout troop held Camporee for the younger residents of our community. Activities ranged from splashing around in a local creek to playing games of tag. ○

A highlight of the camp was an adventure the older Girl Scouts had during a free afternoon. At the entrance of one camp was a huge field scattered with bales of hay. The hay was inviting and the older girls couldn't help but run towards it.

As the girls reached the bales, they became sillier. After investigating the four-foot-tall bales of fun, the girls got a running start to try to jump on them. They finally made it to the top after many failed attempts.

The girls realized they should have had a plan of action. Once they finally reached the top, the stench of the hay was so overpowering, the girls immediately jumped off in search of another adventure.

A competitive pick-up game of rugby completed the day. Similar to jumping on the bales of hay, the girls decided the rules of rugby should have been studied prior to the start of the game. ○

YOGURT AND A CANTALOUPE

Waking up every morning to a breakfast of yogurt, freshly-made bread, berry jelly, and cheese flavored cereal inspired a number of girls to make their own yogurt. After intense research and acquiring of ingredients, the girls could finally attempt their lofty goal. ○

On their first attempt to make yogurt in Switzerland, they failed, creating a horrific aroma throughout the undersized kitchen. Fortunately, this did not sabotage their mission. Once home, the dream lived on.

One afternoon, the girls decided to attempt to produce a flavor-filled yogurt. Two of the girls, Julie and Emily, went shopping for ingredients. "The shoppers" bought everything from chocolate to bananas, even a cantaloupe.

Once at Emily's house the girls found the directions they had acquired in Switzerland. After countless failed attempts, and nearly eight hours of antagonizing dedication, the girls successfully created the final product. These directions along with new ideas and ingredients created a snack the girls enjoyed.

The long process would have been enough to ruin the pleasure of eating yogurt for others, but it continues to bring back memories of the journey to Switzerland for these girls. ○

Good Days Revisited ELEMENTARY GROUPS CHANGE TONE OF FALL SPIRIT ASSEMBLY

Have you ever missed recess? Do you wish you still had some time built into the school day for fresh air and running around with your friends? ○

Seating students by elementary schools to compete in classic games such as kickball, tug-of-war, and relay races helped to relive those days. The new grouping reconnected students with old classmates and rekindled elementary school pride.

Though far removed from elementary school, the competitive spirit and pride pulsed through the crowd. From “Bow to Howe” t-shirts and the large spirit flag waving over the stands for Markham Elementary, spectators and participants showed a vibrant energy through all of the activities.

While the positive recognition of amazing athletics and outstanding organizations is vital to confidence and morale, the new planning gave the students a chance to connect on different levels. Never before have students been grouped by elementary schools, but it proved to be a success.

The pride was still there, only a bit louder. ○

A Place Like Home

SPOTLIGHT: Mrs. Henderson

When the Activities Director Mrs. Henderson considered retiring last year, students knew her replacement would be difficult to find. Luckily, with all of the other administrative changes, she was willing to stay and keep things running smoothly.○

When asked what the worst part of her job is, Mrs. Henderson replies "nothing." Working in the A.O. every day is hard, but she never misses a beat. From 7:30 a.m. conferences to late Prom Fashion Show rehearsals, her schedule is packed.

"The best part of my day would have to be lunch, because everyone here can just be themselves and have fun," she says. "I want everyone to feel like they have a place here."

Seniors relax on couches, play games or use computers during lunch and study hall. Mrs. Henderson recalled when once, a boy was dancing and kicked off his shoe accidentally. It got stuck in the ceiling tiles! Everyone fell silent. But in the end, no one cared because as the year goes on, the students who visit regularly, start to feel at home.

Mrs. Henderson believes that by the end of the year, "we are like a family."○

ONE TEACHER ALWAYS STANDS ABOVE THE REST

Blue n' Gold and Black n' Gold days are held regularly for students and staff to show their spirit. No one takes advantage of these days better than social studies teacher, Mr. Lumish. He says "I've always really enjoyed these days. Any time you can dress up, be more casual, have fun and not take yourself so seriously, I go for it!" ○

Students are often seen wearing Steeler jerseys, but not many of them add the shoulder pads as Mr. Lumish has done. He also once dressed as The Bus in a full-size cardboard refrigerator box. The box was engineered by his father-in-law and decorated for countless hours by his wife.

Along with local spirit days, Mr. Lumish also dresses up for Halloween. Recently it has been his favorite because his three-year-old daughter is really into it. This past year, they dressed as a mini-Pooh Bear and big Pooh Bear.

Prizes are often awarded for these days, but Mr. Lumish feels his prize is "getting to be a teacher [here]. It's just fun to watch people's reactions and enjoyment over my outfits and creativity." ○

AN UNEXPECTED JOB OFFER

One random summer day my friend Raphael and I were forced to go to the mall with my mom to buy new clothes for our summer camp. Of course, I didn't want to go to the mall so I was in a typical bad mood. I needed a way to cheer myself up because I also didn't want to make my friend mad at me right before we would be spending three weeks at camp together. ○

In an effort to make the shopping trip more tolerable, I started teasing Raphael about his wardrobe. I told him he wore all black and that was not acceptable. It was boring and it looked like he wore the same thing

I picked up a shirt from American Eagle and after holding it up to him, I told him his color was definitely Sea Foam Green. I was joking about the whole thing, but an employee of the store was right behind us and thought I was serious. He told me I would make a great salesperson one day because "I was so convincing in my tone." I couldn't help but laugh on the spot.

Raphael and I still dream about someday becoming successful in sales. ○

HARASSMENT TO HOSPITALS: PLAYING INTRAMURAL SPORTS

Dan Greenwald, Nico Domino, Matt Wollaghan, Josh Grollman, Brian Luchini, Scott Dreifuss, Joe Vibonese and I picked the name "The Entourage" for our team because the HBO show is one of our favorites and we are all good friends. My favorite sport was basketball because it's a game of constant action, you always get equal playing time and you have to use teamwork to win. ○

A good memory from the year was when, in a display of terrible sportsmanship, a team we beat drove back and forth yelling at us after they lost the game. One of the worst parts was when Scott Dreifuss needed to leave the team for a few games to recover from a collapsed lung. Also, the volleyball team often wouldn't leave the gym so we and the other teams could practice.

The only negative impact intramurals had on our lives was occasionally not having enough time to finish schoolwork. Regardless, intramurals are a good option to have in school because it is a good way to stay in shape during the off season and have fun with just a team of your friends. ○

Spotlight: Dominique Hudson at Panera

Does Panera ever give food for donations of fund-raisers?

Q

Well, all of the leftover bakery items that we have at the end of the night usually go to churches that ask for donations, or anyone that asks for food for fund-raisers. Also, a great part about working here is that the food can also go to the workers, like me!

Does Panera ever do anything special other than sell food?

A

Panera has a V.I.P. room, which holds anything from birthday parties to business meetings. I also know that every other Saturday a group reserves the room for Bingo, and people sell jewelry and makeup there as well. Panera caters the food for any function in that room.

STRANGE ORDERS FROM STRANGE CUSTOMERS

I work at Panera Bread in the Galleria and our staff is so funny that I always enjoy my time at work. Occasionally we'll have a customer that creates memories for us. ○

One unforgettable moment was when a man who looked like Jafar from Aladdin came in. It looked like he came right out of the movie! He had the beard, the cape, everything. All he needed was a bird on his shoulder to complete the outfit.

When he came to the counter, he ordered just cheese! He asked for three slices of Swiss cheese on a plate. When I asked him if he wanted a drink or bread, he refused everything and said that cheese was plenty.

My co-workers and I were amused and scared at the same time. "Where did this guy come from?" was all we could think. He also commented as he was leaving to the manager on how beautiful all of the lady workers were. That was the weird part that made us a bit nervous.

We see a lot of different people coming into Panera, but that was the weirdest customer and order and I have ever seen there. Every time I go to work, I can picture him standing there. Bizarre! ○

Chances to Improve FOSTERING A STRONGER, HEALTHIER SCHOOL CLIMATE

Events in recent years led students to reevaluate their attitudes and relationships. Initial polls of students and teachers found a common problem: a sense of entitlement. ○

To address the issue and find ways to improve, four mornings were set aside for activities that united freshmen with junior homerooms and sophomores with seniors.

The mornings were planned by a joint student/teacher Moving Forward committee that met monthly. According to sophomore Katherine Oxenreiter, "we feel that these activities will build stronger bonds between students and create an overall better atmosphere."

The committee also designated its many purposes through the school year such as fostering a sense of respect for others in the school community, promoting a conscious mindset that reflects these values on a daily basis, and maintaining the reputation of the school district as one that promotes excellence in its students socially through various community service projects.

The committee has been very open to suggestions and has worked hard to have all students represented. ○

Recognition for awards is not often publicized by recipients. It may feel like bragging or gloating, but many students should be congratulated for their hard work. ○ newspaper has won the All-State Award from the Pennsylvania School Press Association for three of the past four years.

Along with these awards of distinction, there are selfless contributions made like donating blood. The Central Blood Bank is frequently in need of donations and the fall blood drive was one of the largest in Mt. Lebanon history with 128 students participating.

New Family Dynamic

A LOCAL CHILD, MOTHER AND FATHER TURN HEADS

Tucker Vento looks unhappy as he tugs on his collar before a football game. The uniforms are especially uncomfortable on hotter days. ○

Creative and interesting costumes among students such as Ava and Dana Sander dressing up as gifts and the overwhelmingly popular Hannah Montana and Miley Cyrus being sported by Julie Pacilio and Emily Sofayov were highlights of the Halloween season. ○

Perhaps the most unusual and unforgettable twist was the family of costumes created by Jessie Nolla, Shane Jordan, and Shannon Davis. "I dressed up as the husband, while Shannon dressed up as my baby, and Shane dressed up as my pregnant wife," says Jessie.

Laughter and smiles followed the trio as they toured the neighborhood, but they had the most fun while they were getting ready. Jessie and Shannon helped Shane with curlers, outrageous shades of eye shadow and bright pink lipstick. However, his look was not complete until he stuffed the pillow for his pregnant belly.

POP CULTURE INFLUENCES SENIOR STATUS

Boatride was like Gilligan's Island, stranded in the middle of nowhere, except not quite stranded on an island. Instead, we were on a boat chugging along down the Ohio River. ○

Meanwhile, the Gilligan, the actress, the millionaire, and the scholar, not accepted by each other at any other time, were now united as we were. Everyone had the same goal of enjoying our senior year.

As we drifted down the river, it was apparent that we were celebrating the beginning of the end. We have finally made it to senior year and all of the long-awaited events will soon be over.

It is time to face the reality of living on our own, managing our time without having bells ringing to end every period and deciding where the future will lead us.

Hopefully we have something in common with our future roommates, teammates and co-workers and that they will find us as cool as we find ourselves now. Some may find it unfortunate that our coolness will no longer be judged solely by our ability to do the Soulja Boy. ○

Worth All The Effort

PREP FOR DINNER AND DANCE

Choosing a restaurant, deciding which group of friends to go with, and having a tie be an exact match of the dress are a few of the typical preparations for Homecoming. Instead of stressing out over the perfect ensemble and best reservations, you should be asking yourself, what will make this one of the best nights of the year? ○

Underclassmen might say it is worth the trouble because it is the only big dance to look forward to in the fall semester. Anyone could argue, however, that the effort in finding the perfect shoes and matching purse is completely wasted.

After greeting the principals, most student stop in the South Gym to dump off their belongings. Parent volunteers patiently hang up coats and store personal items so the night can be carefree for students.

Now having nothing to do but hang out or dance, students enter a transformed Center Court. Blow-up aliens were taking up seats on benches, hovering above the crowd and looking down on us from the walls.

Last Minute Success

LESS PLANNING PROVIDED BETTER DRESSING

After finding out that Scott Schorr, our tuba section leader, was participating in Senior Pledge, we were ecstatic. Everyone but James bought tickets and Adam Eckel, our baritone sax player, won. After much debate over the costume, we decided to simply bring in random objects. ○

Julie brought in bright yellow short shorts, a tropical striped polo, a teddy bear, a cookie monster inner tube and big bird arm floaties while Kyler brought a canteen and a pirate hook. Soon the transformation was complete, and Scott looked classier than ever.

Rocco Duranti also partook in the day and was worried that “Scott’s costume might be a favorite over [his].” We were so proud of the popular costume that Adam decided to march him through the cafeterias. After that, Scott was escorted to Adam’s class where he was slandered in Japanese.

Scott’s younger brother Kevin, a future member of the tuba section, continued the insults by commenting that “he disgraced our family.” ○

Spotlighting: Jill Murray's Book Drive

How did you collect all of these library books?

Q

Mrs. Kramer and I sent e-mails to all of the librarians and asked elementary school teachers to collect books at their buildings or to bring them to the ETC show. We collected over 800 books and shipped them to Joseph A. Craig Elementary School in New Orleans in early January.

What sparked your interest in doing a project like this?

A

We talked about Hurricane Katrina in my literature class and then my homeroom group considered a book drive for inner-city schools as the project at the first Moving Forward meeting. It was outvoted, but it was something I still wanted to pursue.

The Phantom Tollbooth ADVENTURES IN THE KINGDOM OF WISDOM

This year, the Evening Theatre Company put on the children's show The Phantom Tollbooth directed by Michelle Kramer, a Fine Arts teacher. We wore elaborate costumes and the show was warmly received by the community and student body. ○

With Beth Rudoy playing the lead character, Milo, the cast members produced a fun and energetic show. Rehearsing for the play was long and tiring, but worth it, as always.

At rehearsal, we bond over junk food, hang out backstage with techies, jokes about our student director Shane Jordan, and many other things.

After the last show, the cast went to a party at Brianna Laffey's house. The seniors were welcomed with a nice surprise: posters for each one of them with pictures and memories from the production. In addition, seniors received Etch-a-Sketches and little toys that were related to their role in the show.

This fall semester was especially memorable for graduating seniors as it was full of talent and produced a new group of committed theatre students. ○

First Time Jitters

Spotlight: Leigh Poulton

For some, winter concerts are about showing up to play for the grade. For senior flutist Leigh Poulton, it meant three hours of daily practice for her solo concerto. ○

She picked the first movement of Mozart's Concert in G because it is a "piece with an upbeat tempo." Leigh did extra research on the history of the piece so she could "play it the way Mozart wanted it when it was first written; to interpret it the way he wanted it."

Leigh was nervous because this was her first solo opportunity. She didn't need flute trouble, but that's what she got when she borrowed her teacher's flute. "There was tape on it to make the headjoint stay in place, but the tape shrunk. I panicked because I thought I had done something wrong!"

Frantically calling for her teacher's help, they retaped the flute minutes before the concert began. Leigh had to calm down by giving herself a pep-talk. "I told myself that the flute messing up didn't reflect my talent or ability. I just took some deep breaths and went over some sections."

The performance went well, giving Leigh experience for future solos as well as her college experience at Duquesne. She will major in Music Performance. ○

TALENT FOR A CAUSE AND CANDY FOR THE AUDIENCE

The 2008 Holiday Show was filled with laughs and talented acts. Definite crowd pleasers included Anthony Argentine, David Offner, Dan Palka, Matt Neiderberger, Matt Todd, and Taylor Westbrook's rendition of "The Village People." Another show stopper was "The Spice Girls" number with Jackie Coffin, Holly Scheiferstein, Kathryn Trout, Kelsey Janiscin, and Anna Sims. ○

Some of the more theatrical performances that also received overwhelming applause included Ted Bushman, Jun Sato, James Bursley, Dan Kleifgen, and Neal Emery's performance to "Drops of Jupiter," and Courtney Neville's "Only In New York" performance.

As always, the show was filled with memorable moments and over-the-top performances. The audience was treated to a show that never slowed and was full of laughter.

WHAT MAKES AN AFTER PARTY THE BEST PART OF THE DANCE

Snowball is an anticipated event, but for different reasons. Some enjoy dinner and pictures while others have the most fun at the dance. For Junior Theresa Riley, it was the after-party that made her night. ○

"There were about twenty people who came to my house afterwards," says Theresa and "eleven people slept over." The guest list was not limited to students in Theresa's dinner group, but all friends that attended the dance.

The food was a favorite aspect of the party with a spread including a choice of fruit with whipped cream, homemade bagel bites, or hot dogs in crescent rolls. The seating arrangements consisted of a pull-out bed, pillows, and randomly scattered chairs. Everyone gathered around and settled in to watch Saturday Night Live and Date Movie.

Overall, Theresa's after-party was a huge success. It was a great way to still hang out with friends, but to get cozy at home. The atmosphere was so laidback and calm that it was also refreshing after a long night of dancing. Theresa said that she thought that it went really well, and she had a good time too. ○

The Drumline marches down the field during "Hey Look Me Over - Look Sharp" on Parents' Night.

Katie McDonald, Brennan Petras and Katie Pasternak play during "Sousa Spectacular." The trumpet section is featured while the rest of the band forms the infamous "Lebo Circle."

Amanda Neville, Andrea Corona and Emily Mamula snap a quick picture while watching the game. The band has to play from the stands at the end of quarters and big plays.

Creative Entertainment

After every halftime show, when the band needs a little pick-me-up, everyone receives a cookie and a water bottle. Both are finished in less than 5 minutes, but the parent chaperones collecting trash take their time. This leaves us with ample time to destroy our water bottles.

Clarinets, the innocent ones, simply sit and rip off the wrapper. The saxophones, however, have mastered the art of launching the water bottle cap across the stands. Their target: the timpani. This skill was envied by the clarinets and the saxophones surprisingly agreed to teach them.

First, the cap must be completely tightened while the water bottle is full of air. Then, the bottle is twisted completely around multiple times until there is a lot of pressure. If the cap is slowly twisted off, it will shoot off.

Before the launching, it had to be clear that the chaperones and band directors were looking the other way. The saxophones had better aim than the clarinets, but they obviously had more practice as well. Eventually, one sailed over the heads of the entire band and landed on the timpani.

Clarinets and saxophones were ecstatic that it finally happened, but it put Miss Marino on watch for the rest of the night.

What's your favorite part of band?

"Plumes, bus rides, and having a close group of friends that you get to see nearly every day!"

Cooling Off On A Hot Day

It was the second week of summer band camp and the temperature was 96 degrees. We were all scorching hot and needed a break. It came to the point where the drumline started spelling out water with their drumsticks to get Miss Marino's attention.

One of our drum majors decided to start a water balloon fight to cool things off. It was section against section, and the Rockettes and Silks had a great plan. All we needed to do was pretend we were helpless and run around until everyone else was out of water balloons.

We ran around pretending we didn't have any balloons to throw waiting for just the right moment. Finally, everyone was out of balloons and starting to clean up when the Rockettes and Silks struck!

Throwing balloons at every section and soaking them to the skin, we overcame our helpless position showing even the toughest sections that we had beat them for good! Everyone else will pretend to forget that fateful day, when the Rockettes and Silks dominated the field, but it did happen, and will never be forgotten in our minds.

A Year in the Life

Throughout the summer, cheerleaders run and strength train for the physically demanding two weeks in August of Cheer Camp. Paid professionals teach all three squads dances, cheers, and stunts, and the coaches encourage positive attitudes.

In the fall, practices are held twice a week and cheerleaders attend all soccer and football games, each squad cheering for about two games a week. Before all home football games, a senior from the varsity squad hosts a pre-game dinner. The dinners have delicious home-cooked meals and also let the girls dress and get excited for the games.

The Homecoming football game is the only one of the season where all three squads cheer. A routine including all three squads is also performed.

During the winter, the squads cheer for all basketball games and occasionally at wrestling matches. When the winter season comes to a close, the girls have a few months to prepare for the May try-outs.

Over 100 girls try-out each year with just over 60 making the cut. A cheerleader's heart and spirit need to be strong as their season barely rests.

A Season of Practice

Every morning of football practice, several events take place, both team-oriented and individual. During the summer, athletes participate in a session of cardiovascular exercises, such as jump roping and running 40-yard dashes before the real exercising.

After an hour of physical application, the team heads to the weight room for an equal amount lifting. After the lifting session, all players go back outside, and participate in exercises, such as 'monkey rolls,' where each player lies down next to each other much like a line of logs, and rolls over each other as fast as they possibly can.

During the school year, the practices begin to change from more general training to skill-building. After the usual stretching, the team separates into groups depending on their position on the field, and takes part in specialized activities.

As a team, members scrimmage and work on offensive and defensive drills. The practices are consistent, but if any players start to slack off, the work increases for a few days to ensure everyone stays in line. By the end of each practice, the players are one step closer to becoming better than before.

Q & A with

Bart Eckel

When did you start running? I started in 7th grade.

What is your fastest time? 5k 16:33

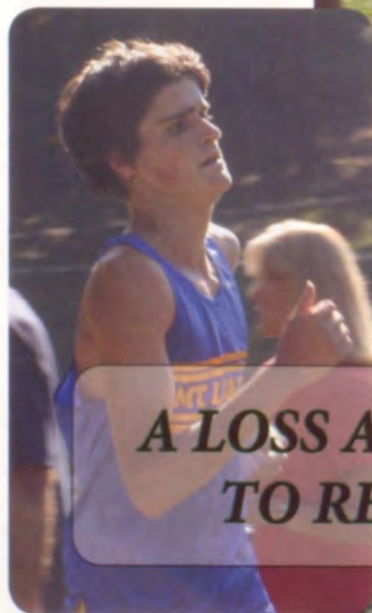

What is your favorite course to run? The Slippery Rock course. To me it feels shorter than most courses.

Do you plan to run in college? Yes, I'm not sure what division yet, but I'm definitely running. I'm looking to get a scholarship for running.

Do you someday want to run in marathons? Probably. If I do it will just be to challenge myself and not to compete.

The boys start off their meet against Baldwin in a sprint. A quick start helps to separate the pack.

An exhausted but determined Joe Fogoros catches up at the end of the race.

A LOSS AT WPIALS ENCOURAGES RUNNERS TO REACH FOR STATES NEXT SEASON

Bart Eckel concentrates as he runs to the finish line to beat Baldwin.

John Harrison and Brian Connelly surge ahead at the beginning of the race. It is always important to have a good start when running.

Eric Shrum waits patiently for his turn to race. The girls run first, leaving the guys more time to mentally prepare for their race.

Staying Motivated

Participating in a team sport that relies very much on individual performances can be draining. The Boys Cross Country team kept everything in perspective this season and celebrated their group and individual victories.

Motivated by what could be accomplished at states, it was a crushing blow to the entire team to lose the WPIAL championship. The team expected a huge year and after that loss, they knew there was no way to recover.

Having to pick yourself up after a hard loss is probably the most difficult part of cross country, or perhaps any sport. Luckily, the team did not find every loss to be detrimental. As long as the team was satisfied with their performances, they considered the event a win. The strong team mentality encouraged runners to judge themselves based on their personal performances, not whether they had placed in first or not.

Along with the difficult losses, the team also had great wins. The wins at duel meets and at the Red, White and Blue meet will be remembered fondly.

With the loss of strong runners at the start of the season and the loss of strong senior leaders, the team will start fresh next season with hopes of a better WPIAL performance.

Cool and Energizing Treats

Running between five and ten miles every practice, cross country is both a mental and physical sport. Like other fall sports, the girls' summers are cut short with preseason beginning during the hottest months of the year and continuing into November. Running almost everyday could get boring if the girls didn't use a little humor. This is why the smoothie fun runs keep the girls motivated.

The smoothie fun runs add humor, but also help build team unity and friendship. Breaking up into teams of five, the girls get a map of houses where they then ask for a single piece of fruit. Gathering enough fruit can sometimes take hours, but the end result, a delicious smoothie, is well worth the hard work.

During the course of this season, the girls took many yummy smoothie fun runs. Strawberry, banana and chocolate smoothies were just a few of the wonderful flavors created.

The successful season of many wins and smoothie runs are the highlights of the year. Bonding over success and smoothies transformed a great season into a very memorable one.

First-Time WPIAL Champs

Motivation, perseverance, and team work set the foundation for the most successful season in school history. The team worked in a cohesive and productive manner to earn a stellar 13-1 regular season record. The girls also tied for first in their WPIAL section after defeating arch rival, Peters Township, for the first time in four years.

The team received the right to play for the WPIAL Team Championship trophy at Cedar Brook Golf Course on October 18th. Five of the Mt. Lebanon girls, Crough, Veights, Ray, Galli, and Viggiano, competed for the cherished title. After a long day on a difficult course, the Blue Devils proved victorious with a cumulative score of 358, edging out second place Peters by 10 strokes. The girls were ecstatic and proud to earn the first WPIAL title in girl's golf for the school.

In addition to the team's success, several girls competed on individual levels. Crough, Veights, Ray, and Galli played among the best players in the WPIAL at Individual Qualifiers. Three of the girls came in the top nine at this event held at Frosty Valley Golf Course and moved on to the next level at Allegheny Country Club. At that event, Toni Crough played an excellent round and her 83 earned her a third place finish. She then advanced to WPIAL Regional Finals, where her score of 85 fell just shy of placing.

All in all, the team had an unforgettable year.

Intense Concentration

For the 2007 season, the varsity golf team came through with five returning players, and chances for team success were great. Unlike last year, the team was much older and more experienced, and we were also ready to take on the challenges posed by being in such a hard division.

Coach Kmec made it very clear from day one that it would take a tremendous amount of concentration in order to meet our goals for this season, and because everyone had practiced intensely over the summer, these goals were not hard to reach. Making it only one win short of advancing to the WPIAL team qualifiers, the Varsity golf team still put up a good season going 13-5.

Three members (Shane Killeen, Doug Rowles and Jeremy Silver) represented Mt. Lebanon well, making it to the individual semi-final rounds of the WPIAL division.

Like all of the past seasons, this upcoming team will be more acclimated and determined to reach the WPIAL final that the team has been looking for since 1989.

A Sweet New Tradition

The season had a few ups and downs, but the Field Hockey team was proud of their playing overall. They had a great season and incorporated fun into the practices and games.

The lowest point of the season was a loss to North Allegheny, one of their biggest rivals. The final score was 0-5. The upsetting loss did not discourage the team, but instead inspired them to play hard. They later won against Woodland Hills with a crushing shut-out that ended with a 9-0 score.

While perfecting their skills through tough practices, the girls found ways to keep spirits high. A favorite new tradition started to keep the tension low was to eat gummy bears before every home game.

One highly anticipated game was a late season one against USC. The tradition of snacking on sweet bears served its purpose as the team fought hard for a close win of 1-0. The Peters Township game was another stressful game where the team tied 1-1.

With 11 of the 19 games having a combined score of three or less, there was plenty of stress. There was also plenty of celebration after the eight shut-outs this season.

Spotlight: Sinead Maguire

Q: What are the benefits of being on the team?

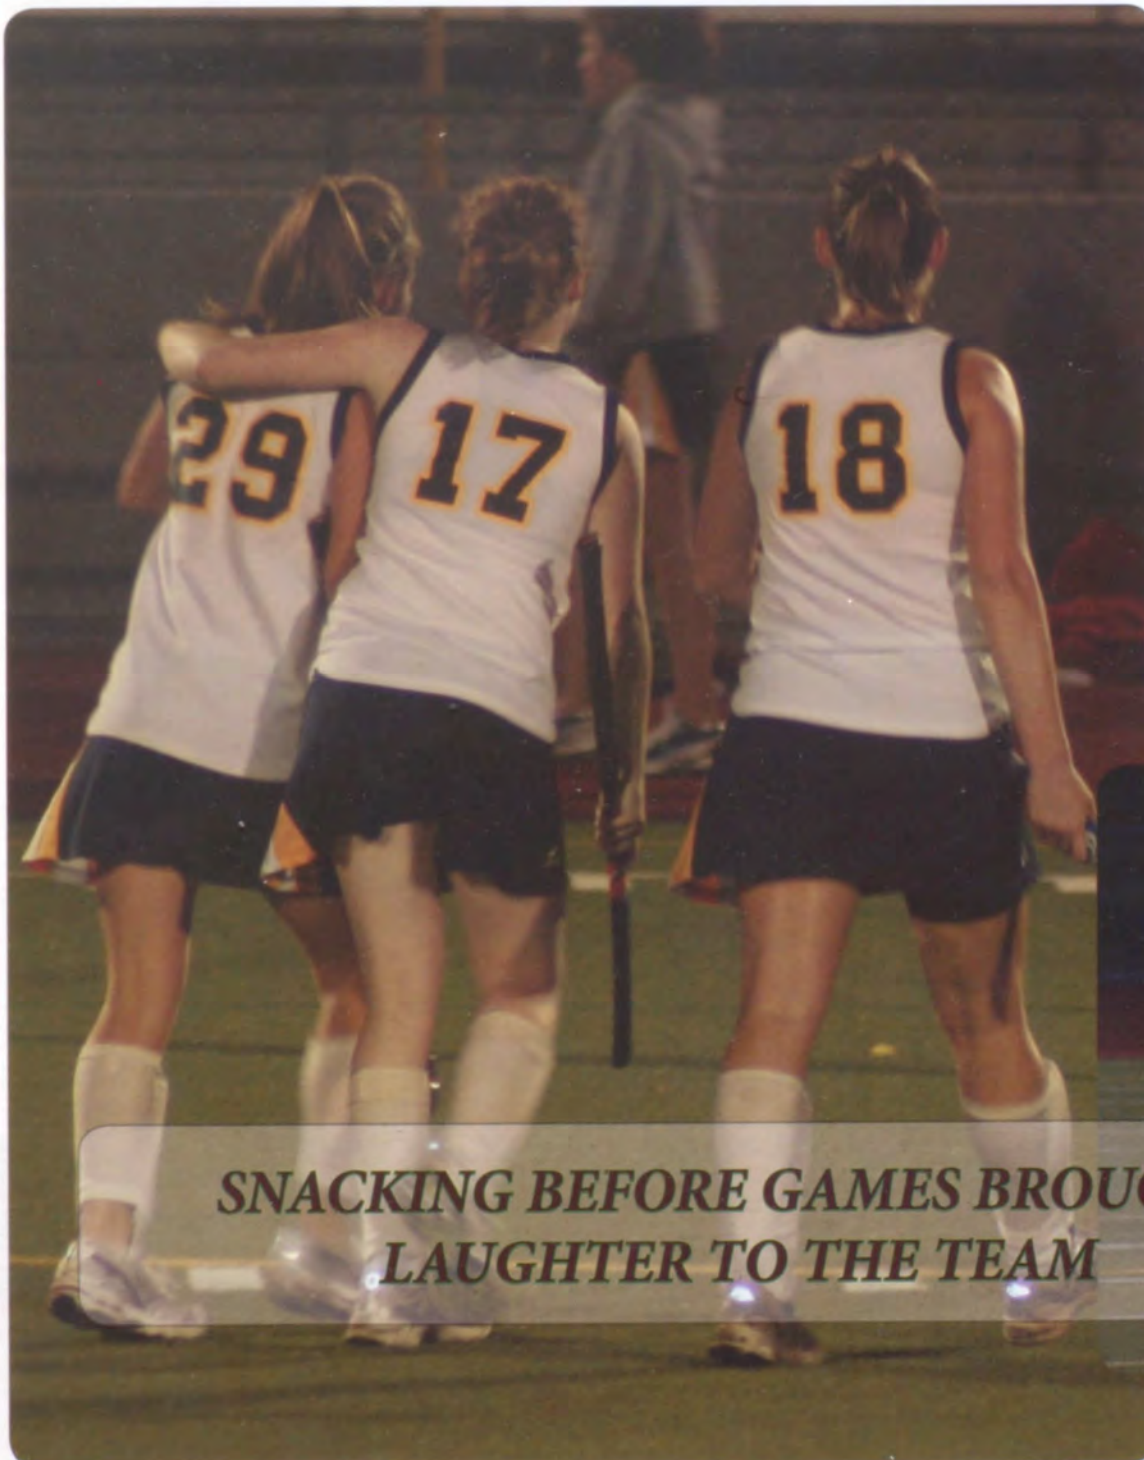

A: I really learned about motivation, dedication, and hard work. I think that these skills have helped me in other aspects of my life as well, not just sports.

Q: What would you recommend for younger players to do to become the best they can be?

A: Always make sure you are in shape, which means attending preseason, running, and working out. Make sure you really love it and have your heart set on being the best you can. Lastly, remember to never get down because you have played a bad game. There is always room for improvement.

Q: What was your inspiration to begin playing Field Hockey?

A: Well, I had heard about it from some friends, and I had never played it before. I thought it would be fun to get started and learn.

The Road to Victory

The team had a great season this year. We had an almost undefeated record, our only section loss being to USC. We had a bye the first round of WPIALS, and the Quarterfinals were at Home vs. Shaler. We won in three games.

We went on to the semi-finals against North Allegheny which we won in five games. The WPIAL finals were against our biggest rival, USC, whom we beat.

The team this year worked really well together. We definitely believed we could do it, and winning WPIALS felt amazing for everyone. It showed how much work and effort we put into our season. Then we went on to the PIAA State Championships. The first round was against Carrick who we easily defeated in three games. Then we went to the State Championships in York PA. The competition was tough, and after an intense weekend we tied for fifth in the state.

Overall, it was a really great experience for the whole team. We had so much fun together and learned the true meaning of what it takes to work together. It really paid off and the WPIAL win was really special for all of us.

Challenges Started Early

The Fall 2007 season started in an enviable position. We were ranked #2 by the Post Gazette, but we had many challenges ahead of us.

We started with new coaches. Jeff Holliday, a Mellon teacher and former boys' coach, was named our head coach while Christine Medwig, a former college All-American goalie and Mt. Lebanon alumna was our assistant. We didn't know them or what to expect. Our preseason was strenuous. In fact many would say it was painful as, at one point, the majority of our returning varsity players were injured during the three-a-days and spent more time with the trainer than on the field.

Our first section game was played against our arch rival Moon Township. Remembering how they beat us last year to end our season made us nervous, but also excited. We rose to the occasion and defeated them 4-0. This victory set the tone for a season where we became section champs and finished with a record of 12-0-2. We enjoyed traditions including breakfast at Denny's, team dinners and the secret soccer dessert, but we started some of our own as well. As the season progressed, we strengthened our friendships and our play reflected this closeness.

We'd rather not talk about the WPIAL semi-final where we lost in the final three minutes. We got on that bus and cried, knowing we could only continue if USC played in the finals. They did and we got our second chance.

In the first round of the State Playoffs, the Lady Blue Devils redeemed ourselves by defeating the WPIAL champion, Seneca Valley, 2-0. The momentum continued as we moved on to the State Quarterfinals and defeated Pine Richland 4-0. We were only one game away from Hershey and the State Championship. Unfortunately we fell short of our goal, losing to Penn Trafford in sudden death overtime.

Years from now, when we reminisce about our 2007 season, we will remember many things. Yes, we were State Semifinalists, but more importantly, we were very good friends.

More Than A Trophy

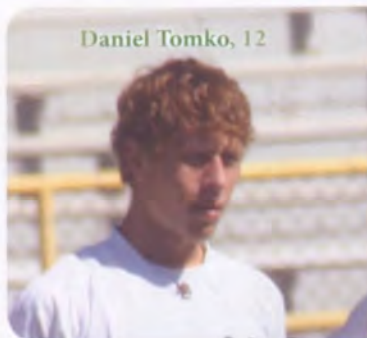

When a season fails to produce a trophy, as players we are forced to look within ourselves for our medals. We have no concrete evidence of any accomplishment and this forces us to examine our own individual aspirations, our own reasons for the blood and sweat spilt on the turf we call home. So many of us this year truly cared, and that is what makes our losses hard to bear.

If you measure our season in the experiences had, the bonds formed, and all the other classic clichés in team athletics, then this season was invaluable. Despite all the frustrations it was still priceless. Some of the best times of my life I have spent on that field with some of the greatest kids I have ever had the privilege of calling friends.

When others talk of past triumphs we never had, or lesser players win trophies we never saw, it will not bother us. I've accomplished something in my own mind, I've reached a level in my ability that I am proud of, and no score line, player, newspaper, or medal can add or subtract from that. I sincerely hope my teammates have that same piece of mind, many of them deserve it.

The only evaluation we will ever accept is our own, and so in the face of those who judge us by our stats or those who smile smugly with their medals around their necks dismissing us, I have this to say: Our winning season was not a success, but it was worth it, and it always will be.

A Frownie Brownie Deal

What is it like staying in somebody else's house that you have never met before? Well, it is quite the experience, especially when you are competing against them in the Altoona Tennis Final 2007.

With Bailey Moorhead, Alyssa Hansen, and Katie Healy, I stayed over night for three days in these mansions in the middle of nowhere for our tennis tournament this year. The girl that we stayed with was Emily, and while we were there, she took us to all sorts of places. We went to the Altoona football game, which was fun, but then we went to Kings which is where the party began.

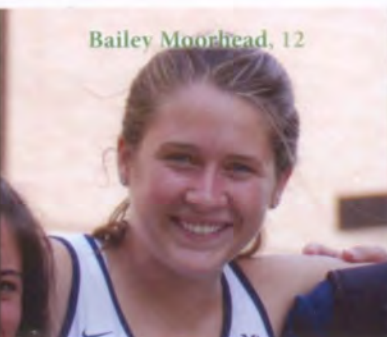

I ordered a Frownie Brownie Sundae, the biggest sundae they had. I remember it having at least 10 brownies in it, with ice cream, chocolate sauce, you know, the works! They told me that if we ate the whole thing we got a free poster. What did I do? Of course I ate the whole thing and walked out of the Kings with the Frownie Brownie poster.

It was a great bonding experience, and I made really good friends with Emily until the following day when I beat her in the tournament and came in second.

Zach Hoskin and Adam Crowley show just how long the crew oars are.

Every Seat Counts

Knowing your facts is a very important step in becoming a good crew member. The terminology and strategy is very unique and rowers need both to be effective.

For instance, there are eight seats in a crew racing shell or a crew boat. The seats are as follows: Bow, two, three, seat four, five, six, seven, and the stroke. The coxswain sits in the stern, having his or her own separate seat, and faces towards the bow. The interesting thing is that only the coxswain can see where the boat is going because the rest of the rowers are facing the stern. Therefore, trusting the coxswain is a very important part of crew.

Also, the side that you sit on is important. You only get one oar, so a rower must be comfortable with the side he or she is on. You can either be on the starboard side or the port side either of which are equally important in rowing the boat. Everyone in the boat must work as a unit to keep a straight path.

Last, the placement in your seating is also very important. The rower with the best timing sits at the stern because rating of the strokes must be kept steady. Then, the rowers with the most power sit toward the middle of the boat, and the rowers in the back help to steer the boat.

What is the most important part of crew?

"Teamwork! This is one of the few sports that is about the group, not the individual."

-Matt Krugh, 12

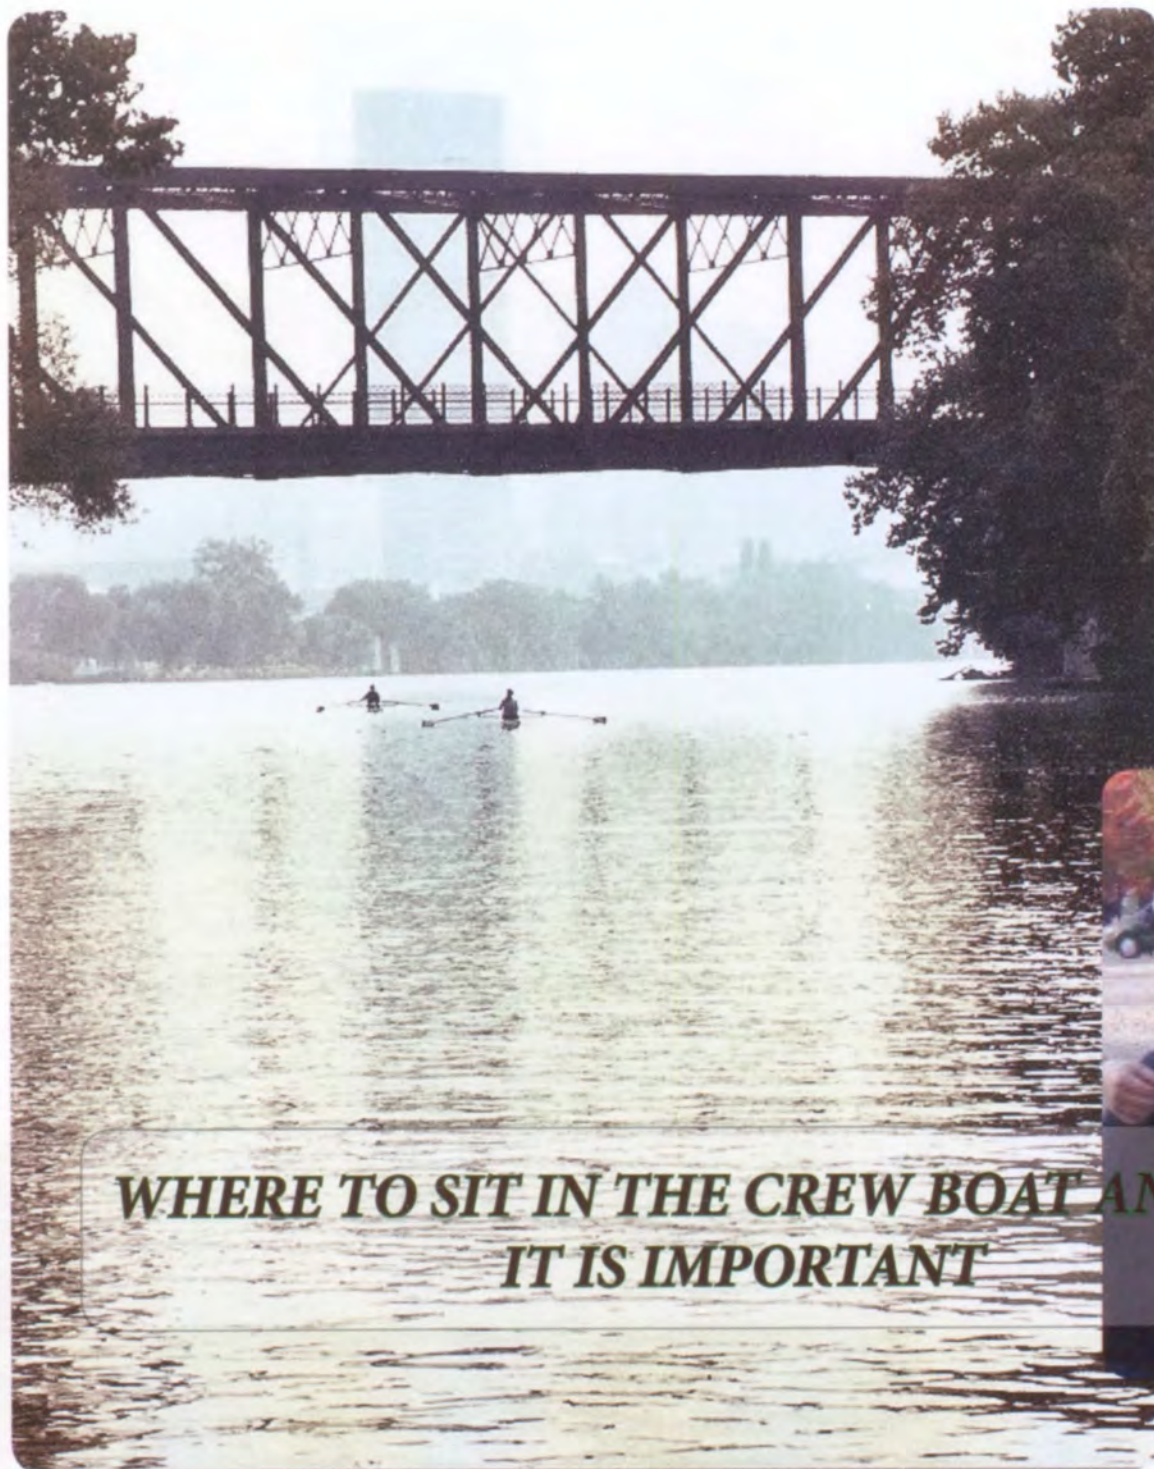

"I would say being able to get the timing right because without timing, you hold the boat back."

-Annabelle Ketchum, 10

"Being able to discipline yourself because of crew's vigorously demanding reputation."

-Joe Hoskin, 12

Striving to Win

This year's wrestling team has accomplished a lot as a result of several changes which has earned them extra recognition and respect from other teams. New to the team is three-time national qualifier Coach Allemang, and Olympic bronze medalist from Bulgaria Coach Kirov who taught the team special throws and headlocks. Coach Hnath also enjoyed his first year as everyone was lead by six year veteran Coach Lewis. The leading positions were given to hardworking athletes and several seniors received the title.

Due to multiple losing years against several schools, all wrestlers stepped up their game as much as they could, and worked harder to do more. One memorable win was Trinity, a long-since defeated-by-Mt. Lebanon team, with a score of 39-21.

As with most sports, a few freshmen do a good job, but this year, several were outstanding during training and competing.

As far as competitions go, Lebo placed fourth in the Seneca Valley Invitational. "It's been a great year," Mr. Allemang reports. "The players have done great, we've done more than I thought we could, and I'm happy to be coaching."

First Outdoor Game

The Mt. Lebanon Hockey team's goals for success are evident. Before every game players stretch in a large circle and then line up in a horseshoe formation and take practice shots against the goalie. To end the warm-up, the captain of the team speaks about improving their play with solid teamwork. Their hard efforts this year took them to the Penguin Cup Semifinal Game at the Mellon Arena. The game was exciting, but ended in a Blue Devil loss in the third overtime.

"Our most anticipated game would have to have been the game against Bethel Park," says junior Brooks Behling.

It was the first ever high school hockey game to be played outside with the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Hockey League. Playing against Bethel Park, our biggest rival, added to the thrill of playing in the ground-breaking game. The game also helped to raise money for juvenile diabetes.

Although the game initiated because of the Bethel Park coach, Mt. Lebanon brought home a win with a score of 2-0. Bethel is traditionally a strong team and the game was competitive. The outdoor play is very different for both teams as practice is usually in an indoor rink.

Strong Wins All Season

Outscoring opponents by twenty or more points was not unusual this season as the Lady Blue Devils dominated many of the teams they faced. This team is one of the best in the state made evident by their numerous wins on the way to the PIAA Championship game at Penn State. Even without a win, the girls showcased their amazing talents and undying motivation and made the school and community proud of their hard work.

Two great wins were against Upper Saint Clair and Peters Township. These local rivals always make for an exciting match because the student body wants the win as much as the team. Throughout the season, players recognized how important the support of fans is to the morale of the team. With high attendance and a loud audience, the energy of the game and the support of the players is increased tremendously. The team truly believed that added to their success.

Before the playoff games, morning announcements were made letting the student body know where games would be played and asking them to attend. Having the support of fellow classmates away from home is just one factor that helped the Blue Devils reach the Championship game.

Ryan Mackin jogs down the court after a Lebo basket.

Paul Lang stops to focus while everyone gets into position for the play.

A Rival Waiting to Play

Before the season began, the basketball team endured hours of running and training. Because practices filled most days during the season, a sacrifice for the team was necessary, and participation and presence were evident if an iota of success was in the team's future. Before each game, a team-wide prayer was spoken, and a speech got the team pumped to do their best.

The worst loss, according to sophomore Grant Latus, was against Baldwin because of a call at the end of the game by the referee. It turned the tables completely and brought the team to a loss at Upper Saint Clair, which was the most anticipated game of the season. USC is a game that every sport looks forward to because of long time rivalries.

The team also had excellent games like the win over McKeesport. It was a fortunate last game of the season and the fifth-ranked upset in the area.

Overall, the season featured some great times and some not so great times, but it was definitely an enlightening experience nonetheless for all the players and coaches.

Traditions Keep on Going

This year's swimming season, as always, was competitive but fun and exciting. The boys remained undefeated through the season and the girls, though they suffered a few losses, pulled together an exciting win against USC.

One of the boys' highlights was beating North Allegheny 50 to 44. Despite the girls' efforts throughout the Bethel Park meet, they suffered their biggest loss of the season, losing 78 to 95.

The best parts of being on the team are the friendships you develop, knowing that your individual event is important to the entire team, and the traditions upheld.

Pasta dinners were held before big meets with the whole team. Other traditions, like seniors decorating the girl's locker room for senior recognition, the Victoria's Secret Santa around the holidays, and the team going out to Denny's for dinner after a home meet, remain popular throughout the years and help strengthen the bonds and encourage success.

Ahh! It's a Spider!

I was ready to shoot for States. I had on all my gear and had calmed myself down. I stepped up and assumed the prone laying position knowing I could do it, when all of a sudden out of the corner of my eye, I saw something moving.

Who could be in here with me? It wasn't Mr. Walsh, my spotter, because he knows better. I turned my head slightly and saw a spider crawling right in front of me. I was deathly afraid of spiders, so I froze, knowing I would miss my target if it wasn't moved.

I had to do something. I ruled out blasting it with my gun, because there were too many shells around from previous shooters that would fly everywhere and create a mess. I also ruled out running away, because then I would not be able to shoot at all. I finally ruled out ignoring the spider, because I knew I would shoot badly with it there.

I finally decided to start screaming for Mr. Walsh. He came running over, but by the time he got there, the spider was gone. I told myself that it had gone somewhere far away, and that I could still shoot, even though I hate spiders. Mr. Walsh told me to calm down as well, because I could do this. When I was finally okay, I started shooting.

Overall, I did very well, even after that scary incident. I shot my best, and got second place!

Andrea Martin and her brother Tyler pose for a picture at the Best Buddies movie and Valentine's Day party. Andrea loves the involvement Best Buddies has with the student body.

Best Buddies is an organization that helps students who have intellectual disabilities meet classmates with similar talents and interests. Each student is paired with a volunteer in their high school.

Throughout the school year, each pair of students has many opportunities to grow as friends. The buddies become more comfortable around their peers, and they are not afraid to shine. Their confidence grows through the experiences they have with the students and volunteers of Best Buddies.

There are meetings held once a month where upcoming events are planned and ways to interact with buddies are discussed. Events held by Best Buddies include holiday parties in December (where Lebo Claus makes an appearance), movie nights in the Activities Office, pizza parties, and Pirate games.

Also, before Valentine's Day this year, Best Buddies hosted a movie night where they watched High School Musical 2 and made valentines to give to their friends and parents. The arts and crafts are always a popular activity.

There is even a Best Buddies Ball, where the Best Buddies chapters in Pittsburgh come together, dress formally and enjoy an evening of dancing and dining together.

Students who are interested in the organization and don't have time to make the commitment due to conflicting activities can still participate. These students are not paired with one buddy but still attend the meetings and group activities.

A Sweet Tradition

GINGERBREAD HOUSE CONTEST

I went into the German Club Gingerbread House Contest with high hopes of winning because of my victory last year. My partner, Ryan Stephenson, and I spent the first 30 minutes shaping the dough and the remaining hour and a half assembling and decorating the house. Prior to the contest, the gingerbread dough took an hour to prepare.

We found most of our decorations at CVS. They were cheap and looked really nice on and around the house. One of the decorations was a candy cane tree. It was made up of candy cane rings stacked one on top of the other, increasing in size from top to bottom. When we were voting during class, Frau Haines mentioned that it was her favorite part of the house.

For the seasonal wintery feel, we decided to color the roof of the house blue by adding dye to the icing. We completed the decorations with gumdrops, marshmallows, Twizzlers, and more candy canes.

After many hours of preparing and decorating, we were happy with our final product. We forgot to brainstorm a name for our house, but Ryan quickly decided on Sprinkle Wonder.

Our prize bag contained German crackers and chocolate as well as postcards. There are four categories: most traditional, yummiest, most creative, and best overall. Each of the four winning groups received a different bag to divide amongst their team members. I find this contest to be a perfect way to celebrate winter and the holidays, and I plan on participating for the next two years.

Reading specialist, Mrs. Coleman and English teacher, Ms. Vetere get a quick lesson in using chopsticks from Ling An. Mrs. Coleman jokingly asked if they could "put the rubber band around it like they do in restaurants."

Mrs. Burrett passes out Lo Mein for everyone at the party. The food was ordered and delivered from the Sesame Inn.

Patrik Petrsek is shown by Yingqian Wang that if you hold the chopstick closer towards the center, they are easier to control. It can be difficult to get the chopsticks to actually meet when you close them.

Sharing Culture

DIVERSITY IN CHINESE CLUB

Many cultural clubs have been added to the list of activities available for students in the past few years. Chinese Club is one sponsored by Ms. Pam Burrett that frequently hosts meetings and activities throughout the school year.

All students and teachers are welcome to attend the activities and learn about Chinese culture. For example, Ms. Vetere and Mrs. Coleman attended the party that was centered around learning how to eat with chopsticks. With students from various Asian backgrounds, it was discovered that the technique for eating with the wooden sticks is very similar in different countries.

The food for this party was ordered from the Sesame Inn on Washington Road. This popular local restaurant was also the host for the New Year's celebration held by the Chinese Club.

While food is a major component of culture, the club also recognizes other customs. Discussions regarding holiday celebrations, history, dress and music can often end up becoming the center of the meeting.

These discussions aren't centered around the Chinese culture, but are held to compare all cultures. This is one aspect that makes the Chinese Club different from other organizations, language club or not. The purpose of the group is to celebrate diversity and share the unique aspects of a culture with all students so students may experience a culture beyond the language they study during the school day. Overall, the Chinese Club increases students' international knowledge and experience along with enjoying some good food.

Katie Peters, Betsy Karras and Eileen Wang enjoy their first course from the side of the room. Because of the many different courses students work on during one class, Mrs. Burrett has the desks in the room strategically placed for group or private lessons.

RELAXING DOGGIE BAG DINNER

It was Friday evening, the first full day of committee sessions. We were tired and hungry after debating for three hours, and looking forward to a relaxing dinner. Part of the group, mostly the picky eaters, opted to eat at TGI Friday's. The more adventurous eaters chose Asia on the Parkway, a well known Asian restaurant featuring Chinese, Singaporean, Thai and Vietnamese dishes.

Both restaurants were only a few blocks away, so we spared the bus driver the trouble and decided to walk. Unfortunately for us, it was pouring down rain when we walked out the front doors of the hotel!

My group finally made it to the Asian restaurant. Pleasant conversation circulated the tables as we waited for our food. Someone glanced at their watch and realized that we had fifteen minutes before we had to be back at the hotel for the night session of committee.

Beginning to panic, we grabbed a passing waiter and politely asked if he knew when our food would be ready. He went to the kitchen to check and came back with some upsetting news; they had forgotten about our food! A few students did have their food, but the rest of us waited very impatiently for our food to be hurriedly prepared and put in doggie bags. Finally every student had some food in their stomachs (or their hands!) and we sprinted back to the hotel.

We were all a bit late for the evening session, and some of us even had to eat out of the Styrofoam containers during the meeting, but it definitely was an exciting end to our day!

Student-Centered

WHAT MAKES A GOOD SHOW

MTLSN, or Mt. Lebanon Student News is a student news program that focuses on stories that relate to students or are from a student's perspective. It is broadcast every other Friday on cable channel 19.

MTLSN is an exciting opportunity for students to get a taste of television news and the process of producing a quality program. MTLSN has a great team of students who work every aspect of the production from the teleprompter to the camera. By operating the machinery and taking the role on camera, every student involved observes the work and effort that goes into just one show. Whether it is on or behind the camera, every episode requires a significant amount of work.

Each show's goal is to improve the production and outdo the top rated student news shows in the country. If the goal is met, the show can win a Student Emmy Award. They are rated on skills such as eloquence, projection, smooth transitions, and stage presence.

MTLSN is produced by Christa Owens and Austin Wright who coordinate the people on and off camera. The show is also anchored by Austin Wright and Eugenia Finizio. MTLSN is Student-run and Student-centered news so all of the students can watch it and understand the issues and ideas that are arising in our school.

The wish is that students are more enlightened. The production crew also hopes that the students are more inclined to watch it because it is their very own classmates who run the show.

Peter Vogel and Paige Bongiorno wait patiently for the next segment of taping to begin.

CREATIVE FUNDRAISERS

Not only did Hay Thuppall, Eric Reidy and all of the other members of Emergency and Amnesty International raise money, but they raised awareness about education of children in northern Uganda. This was done through Schools for Schools which is a charity associated with Invisible Children. The organization pairs schools together and helped pair Lebo with Sir Samuel Baker Secondary.

Fundraisers included Loose Change Days, Beards for Baker, Battle of the Bands, a Chili Cook-Off, and a benefit dinner. The total raised of $13,091.26 was one of the highest in the country.

"Battle of the Bands and Beards for Baker were definitely the most successful fundraisers," says Hay. Battle of the Bands showcased four students bands competing for a winner position. A faculty band, The Green Lights, opened the show.

The Hardliners (Nicco Pandolfi, Neil Emery, Spencer Fields, Harry Griffin and Jim Rose) were the overall winners selected by four student judges and faculty "celebrity" judges. The celebrity judges were Dr. Davis, Mrs. Henderson, Mr. Wentzel, and Mr. Brown. Bands were judged on stage presence and audience response.

"My favorite part was when Mr. DiNardo got his head shaved," reveals Hay. He said that it was a good connection between Battle of the Bands and Beards For Baker.

Because the fundraising had gone so well, Mr. DiNardo promised that if the student body raised $2000 dollars, he would shave his head in front of everyone.

"Overall, I'm glad we did this," Hay says with satisfaction.

Harry Griffin rocks out on his guitar trying to gain the audience's approval to win the Battle of the Bands Competition.

A Fashion Arts Freak Out

Katherine Englert and Katie Whaley transfer pattern markings for their dart seams.

It was the last day to finish our final project for Fashion Arts 1: a tote bag. I dropped my bag off before school to have it embroidered with my initials.

I was on my way to class sixth period and passed by another student in the hall. She stopped me and said, "I'm preparing you, don't be mad about the bag." I didn't know what she meant and so I ran to the room. Mrs. Silver told me that the embroidery machine broke while it was working on my initials. My bag had half of an 'M' written on it!

A friend in class spent a whole period trying to rip out the 'M', but it was too difficult. I decided to cut a piece of fabric that was the same as my bag, embroider that, and stitch it over the 'M'.

Luckily, the machine worked on that embroidery, so I asked my teacher if she could help with the sewing. While she was sewing the patch on, my sewing machine broke!

During my seventh period French class, I had to rip out all of the seams on the patch. I went back eighth period and successfully sewed the patch overtop of the 'M'. It took me until 3:50 to finish the bag, because I still hadn't sewn the bottom together.

It actually turned out really well, but it was one of the most frustrating school experiences I've ever had.

Lilly Osthoff sorts through souvenirs of symbolic images at the Hindu temple. Each emblem represents a different deity. Other items include prayer beads and books.

After months of studying five of the world's major religions: Hinduism, Buddhism, Judaism, Christianity, and Islam, the Comparative Religions class took a day to visit major religious sites in the Pittsburgh area.

The day started at St. Augustine's church in Lawrenceville. A retired Mt. Lebanon teacher, the trip's tour guide, explained to the class the history of the beautiful church, decorated for the advent season.

The group went next to an Islamic mosque where a member of the community shared her experiences as a Muslim.

The class then took an unexpected visit to the Quaker House of Friends. A Friend told the class about the spiritual sessions held. Prayer ceremonies consist of the Friends sitting in a circle in silence until the spirit moves an individual and they stand up and say whatever comes to them.

Next was a visit to the Jewish Reformed temple, Rodef Shalom. The class spoke about Jewish traditions that take place in the synagogue.

The last stop was one of the two Hindu temples in Pittsburgh. The temple was full of different compartments with different Hindu deities in them, dressed for the season. Members of the temple can go there and offer dried fruits and other offerings to the deities.

Morgan Visnesky shows deep concentration while throwing a pot. The slightest mistake could mess up his artwork.

Concentration in a Creative Form

Matt Menegazzi uses paint to color his project. Students get the opportunity to work with many different mediums in class.

Junior Sally Bateman concentrates on a second coat of glaze during seventh period study hall. Many art students use study hall to complete their art pieces.

Most students choose to take art because it provides an outlet that is not often found elsewhere during a stressful day. Learning facts and dates is not required to pass, but deep concentration and a commitment to the work is necessary to create a valuable piece. Also, for talented students who haven't had direction until high school, it is their chance to expand their ability and understanding through the help of Mr. Kuhar and Mr. Carlin.

For Fabienne Hudson, acrylic paint is the best medium because "it is easier to express yourself" despite the mess it makes. Her favorite piece this year was called "The Uncommunicating Muteness of Fishes." She enjoyed it because the guidelines for the project were really lenient.

She also finds it easier than three dimensional art. One three dimensional method the typical art novice wonders about is how to "throw pots." While it appears quite simple to put a hunk of clay on the spinning wheel and gently smooth it to the desired form, there are skills that form the masterpiece and ensure that it remains in one piece.

Similarly, sophomore Maura Kearns enjoyed lead drawing because it was new and a good chance to explore art's various forms. She, like many students, takes art to express feelings and showcase her creative abilities while getting school credit.

Abby Wohlfarth and Kelsey Brown review for a test in a small group with Mrs. Trumbull in the Math Lab.

Endless Possibilities

Sydney Zalewski studies with two classmates using notes and worksheets. The many tables in the Study Center make it very easy to work in small groups.

Dan Stang, Peter Slavonic, Kyle Goodyear and Josh Sklar research Gandhi in the Writing Lab. Teachers are able to schedule a period for an entire class to use the lab or students can obtain individual passes for study hall.

Even though it's a far trek, the Library is worth it. From books to read and enjoy, to complicated reports covering anything from history to hemoglobin, it's all there.

If you ever have the chance to take Speech Communications with Mrs. Kramer, the Library is a huge advantage for any of your speeches. You might think that the internet is the best and only place to go, but there are so many books targeted to whatever your speech topics might be, and it really helped my entire class.

If you are using the internet, the section devoted to the site is full of great resources as well, from online databases such as ABC Clio and Student Resource Center, to the dozens of specific research sites, for example, the Auto Repair Reference Center, available in Power Library.

If technology or the written word isn't your thing, then the librarians are another great option. If they don't know how to find what you're looking for, then there's probably no chance, since they are experts on practically all that encompasses the word 'research.' If any sort of information is needed, they're great sources for what to do.

So, even though the second floor is far off from most places, it is definitely worth the hike to get whatever you are searching for.

spotlight: Mrs. Miller

What was the topic of the best college essay you've read?

There's a tie. The first is a student who wrote about his life as though it were a mathematical function. It was wonderfully written and a very clever choice. The second was a student who wrote about his experience as an international exchange student and used a single family meal during the trip as a metaphor for the entire semester.

What aspect do you miss about teaching?

I miss the wonderful books -- The Things They Carried, Inferno, Poisonwood Bible -- and I miss things kids produce after reading and discussing them. Most of all, though, I miss the preparations for and the ultimate product of students' final projects for that course. They are truly the capstone of four years of English work and it is a privilege to see students come alive with what they've learned.

Hundreds Attend Mole Day Party

Brigitte Byrne takes time out to pose with Andrea Martin decked out in her Mole Day finest.

Ben Kernion plays the guitar with his band Chimp Underground at the Mole Day Celebration.

Mole Day is one of the most exciting days out of the year for any student who has ever taken Chemistry. Not only is it a blast to wake up at 5:30 in the morning, but for students like Luke Bushman, who couldn't get a ride, you have to trek through the dark morning all the way to school.

When you get there, you don't go inside, but wait outside until 6:02 AM, all the while listening to Mole Day songs, Mole Day jokes, eating Mole Day food, and watching intense chemistry demonstrations.

"A lot of people really get into it" says Honors Chemistry student Elena LaQuatra. Elena made twenty Mole Day apples consisting of caramel, an icing face, and Twizzler whiskers. She also handmade a Mole Day t-shirt and told three Mole Day jokes.

Many others made masks and decorations in celebration of the day. But why? If waking up so early is such a bummer, why do people go? "The answer is simple" says a former Chemistry student, Julie Pacilio. "It is the experience of getting up that early once a year to be with your friends and celebrate the wonder of the mole. It's just fun."

And that's what many students will say as well. It's the tradition, the decorations, and massive amounts of sugar that make Mole Day worthwhile.

Mr. Greenawalt references an uncommon term during a lecture. Music Theory is so broad that resources are very important.

Brian McDonough and Maureen Conway say "We love Music Theory!"

Cosé Aguirre copies down notes from Mr. Greenawalt's lecture about a musical period. Students take notes on the history of music and also on the piano lessons.

Advanced Placement Music Theory is just another class on their roster to some kids, but to Kirsten Ashbaugh, it is much more. Kirsten's love of music and the arts inspire many of the kids in her class to do better.

First, Kirsten has been playing two instruments since she was eight or nine years old. She has played the cello for eight and a half years, and the piano for nine and a half.

Not only does she play, but she gets recognized. Last year, she was a part of the District Orchestra, the Regionals Orchestra, and the State Orchestra for cello, and this year has been in the District Orchestra, placing fifth chair. She says that she was accepted to be in Regionals Orchestra, and it all depends on the chair that she gets in Regionals to make it to States.

Not only does she play out of school, but she is also second chair cellist in our orchestra. Also, she has many favorite styles of music but says that one of her favorites would have to be Classical, and narrowing it down, would be Romantic and Contemporary Composers.

The reason she entered A.P. Music Theory is because of her love of music and because the class is so different than any other class she has taken. She says that she can finally take a class based on the pleasure she gets from playing music.

What music classes do you take other than Music Theory?

Not only do students learn about the food of certain countries, but they experience the traditional way to eat food as well. Alexis Churner and Caroline Shoen show this by teaching their friends how to use chopsticks to eat Japanese cuisine.

When I first started making the Authentic Spanish Saffron Rice and Chicken (Arroz con pollo), I thought I would just have to fry the chicken, cook the rice, add a little spice, blend it all together, and serve. But, I found out that was not the case.

First, I had to collect all of the ingredients from the store, and that wasn't easy. The saffron spice, which is a very rare spice, was very expensive and cost me fifteen dollars for a tiny jar. I also had to get a certain kind of green olive, tomatoes, onion, garlic, red bell pepper, rice, chicken, chicken broth, and wine.

Finally after collecting all of the ingredients, I was ready to cook. The hard part about the cooking was that it wasn't just cooking the rice, but cooking the rice along with the chicken, and chopped onions, and making sure to add them just in time for it all to simmer. Talk about multitasking. Also, when it was time to add the saffron, the directions said to add just the right amount, but considering I am not a native from Spain, I wasn't quite sure what just the right amount was.

Overall, I tried my best, and the rice turned out okay. It was a little bitter and burned in a few places, but the important thing is that I now know what goes into making one simple rice dish, and have a greater appreciation for Spanish food.

Mistaken Course Selections

Within the first week after turning in the course selection forms, I realized the electives I had chosen did not make sense. I had picked Food and Nutrition to be a first semester elective and Child Development 1 for second semester.

My mom pointed out that Child Development 1 and 2 were supposed to be taken together, which means I would split them up between sophomore and junior year. I opted out of Child Development 1 until junior year so that I could also take Child Development 2. I chose to do this because as a sophomore I will be driving and I felt Power Tech would be a helpful class to take because it deals with cars.

Also, Child Development 1 and 2 would look good on my college application because I want to major in Child Psychiatry, and junior year is about the time when college becomes a reality.

I went to my guidance counselor, Mr. Johnston, and we talked about the class change and how it would affect my future and college career. He really helped calm my nerves and answer questions I had had for a while. He was very supportive of my decision and my willingness to work the situation out.

I was happy I talked to him, and now next year I will be able to figure out possible problems with my car.

1. Yes, I was actually a long-term substitute in this very office (same part of the alphabet) on two occasions.
 2. I worked in the Peters for three years. Before that I coached women's soccer at Duquesne University for seven years.
 3. I definitely enjoy counseling students about their futures more than anything. We have many talented students in many areas here. It's rewarding to be able to help students in realizing their potential.

Textbooks can sometimes be dull, but the Geometry text is colorful and uses silly characters. While her group laughs at the character names, Menna Awadalla prefers to get started on the work.

Learning geometry this year was an interesting experience for me. Going into math I didn't have many expectations. My previous geometry knowledge was based off the Pythagorean Theorem briefly mentioned in sixth grade and some surface area work in seventh.

The biggest adventure for me was learning proofs. It was an initially challenging concept at first, but they ended up becoming so second nature that I ended up thinking in proofs for a short period of time.

I think that one's experience with geometry also depends on the teacher. I had a teacher who I enjoyed very much and learned a lot from, even though we always seemed to be moving at a slower pace than the other classes. I learned many different aspects of algebra, and I liked the variety of lessons and methods we were taught. This year the monotony of angles and measures was broken up with the occasional algebra skills review, which I enjoyed a lot because it was a refresher of algebra from the previous year.

Personally, I don't think that knowing the measure of an exterior angle of a dodecagon or what $(x-5)(x+73)$ equals is going to get me into show business, but I do enjoy learning geometry and it has been an overall pleasant experience for me.

Andrew Colaizzi, Kush Purohit, Luv Purohit and Dan Smee wait outside of the North Gym for a ride. Having one high school puts some students much farther from home than the middle and elementary schools did.

I heard...

The homework isn't so bad as long as you understand what's happening.

True or False

True or False

All seniors will torture you from the first day of the school year.

It takes forever to get acquainted with the school.

True or False

I heard...

Connor Bahr listens to World Card questions during an Academic Games meeting. A-Games is open to everyone where meeting people with similar interests is easy.

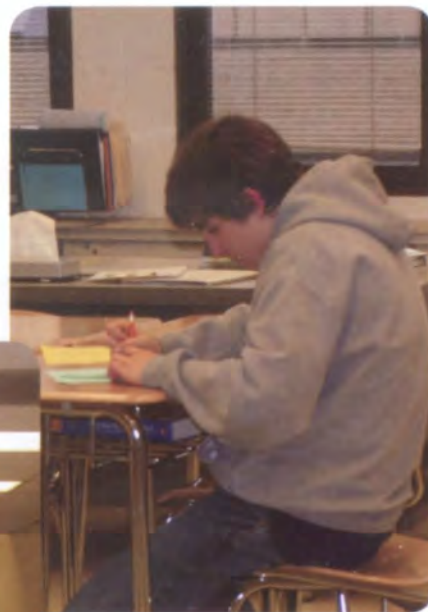

Taylor Christy hurriedly finishes her math homework after eating lunch. Most students take advantage of the long lunch period to complete forgotten homework.

Freshman Ellen Stork talks to sophomore Keturah Musuraca about plans for the afternoon. Making friends with upperclassmen is a good way to get adjusted to the new environment.

Ryan McGrady makes up a geometry quiz after school. The class of 2011 are the first to have the new math curriculum instead of the integrated program.

Joe Galley and Brendan McKnight stand in the Fine Arts wing after school to practice percussion. Participation in musical activities is very popular for all grades.

A New Beginning

FRESHMEN ADJUST SMOOTHLY

Rebecca Bergee, Jaime Schoyer, Paige Kassalen, Erin King, Courtney Holmes, and Molly Snyder receive some awkward attention from sophomore Brian Connelly.

As the days of my middle school career waned, I started to wonder what life I would be granted as a freshman. I heard so much about my next four years: seniors hate freshmen, the school is practically impossible to figure out your first weeks and a multitude of 'blow off' classes were available. Would I become the type of student who spends every waking moment out of school studying, or the type that sits in class, does nothing, and fails?

Once the week before school arrived, a degree of fear set within me. Why was I so scared? I mean, it's just school. I've seen the movies where just one small incident ruins your life. I imagined myself in that position: people pointing and laughing at me in the hall. But I shook that thought away, realizing that life rarely plays out that way.

And so far, it has turned out okay. I wasn't surprised that most of the rumors I heard were false. It didn't take much time to get acquainted with the school and seniors never put me down. All in all, nothing much has changed since middle school and I'm comfortable where I am and ready to confront the future.

Flashlight and paint-covered gloves are evidence in Mock Trial

In the court of Pennsylvania, also known as Civics class, a trial is held to see if high school student Casey Clevenger is guilty for the crime of breaking into the school at night, vandalizing the computer lab, and changing his grade and other students' grades to A's instead of B's.

Each student gets a role in the court as a jury member, a witness for either prosecution or defense, the defendant, or one of the attorneys. Each side is given a week or two to plan their case.

After the court is in session and opening statements are read, both sides call their witnesses and ask a series of questions like "what kind of student was Casey?" or "do you think he would have committed such a crime?"

The evidence, a flash light and a pair of gloves, is also shown. The gloves were found in Casey's locker and covered in red paint, just like the paint that vandalized the computer lab!

After all questioning is done and the closing statements are read, the jury must then decide the verdict: guilty or not guilty?

The Simple Steps to Passing

Take a three hour class seven times...

Take three one hour sessions of the driving simulator...

Take a three hour test at the last session...

The Simple Steps to Passing

Maura Kimball demonstrates how real the driving simulator is. It has exact speeds, sounds, and sights so that students understand what it is like to be in a car.

Alexa Hagenbrock shows that sometimes the Driver's Ed lectures are not on the most interesting of subjects.

Hannah Warne take notes about safe driving during one evening of her Drivers Ed class.

Police officers frequently guest teach for one session, showing students real life consequences of driving under the influence and encouraging safe driving skills.

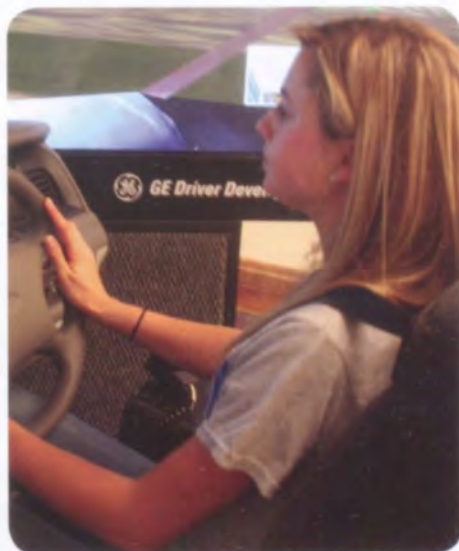

Bre Tongel goofs off instead of taking notes during a Drivers Ed class. After a long day at school, the class can seem to take forever.

First Thoughts

Initial Expectations on Driver's Ed

Taylor Linnaburg practices driving in simulated winter weather. This helps students become prepared for the real slippery road and icy conditions.

On the first day of driver's education class, it is common to question what Mr. Sliacky will be like. From the start he tries to change student thoughts like "as long as I am a good driver, nothing will ever happen to me" or "there is no way that I will be the cause of any accident/damage." He quickly teaches the students that being a driver is serious, and drivers have the lives of themselves and others in their hands.

Over the rest of the classes, he would lecture about something stupid a driver has done in his direct observance. And even through his casual nature after the initial meeting, he must have thought to himself, "there still will be someone in here who will eventually do the same thing when they are on the road."

Along with his own personal stories, Mr. Sliacky also found guest speakers like local law enforcement to reinforce the topics learned.

In the end, the first thoughts about Mr. Sliacky were untrue, and all of his students really enjoyed him.

Where do I go next year?

Earth Science	_____	Biology	_____	Chemistry
Biology	_____	Honors Chemistry	_____	Honor Physics
Honors Chemistry	_____	Biology	_____	Honor Physics

Where do I go next year?

Mrs. Meer teaches her Honors Chemistry class how to write and balance equations. This is an important skill to learn, because most of Chemistry is working with equations and reactions.

While Julie Bowers cleans out her beaker, she demonstrates how careful you have to be with the equipment. Some teachers take off points if you break equipment or don't pick up your workspace.

Ian Macleod carefully counts the number of grass seeds he puts into his pots for his control-dependent variable experiment in Biology.

Serafina Lanna works on a time line of evolution to hang up in the class. She says "Evolution is great!"

While Mr. Schrader teaches his lesson about the Animal Kingdom, Liz Moore follows along intently so she does not miss any important information.

The Big Decision

The Big Decision

Which Science Course to Choose...

As Cissy Woodyard explains to the class how evolution started, her face clearly shows how much fun Biology can be.

Why is choosing a Science course to take next year so confusing? This is what all of the tenth grade students are asking themselves while filling out their course selection sheets.

The change in curriculum has affected many students in making the right decision. For example, the students who took Honors Chemistry as freshmen are not able to take Biology as an honors credit. The school will not have an Honors Biology until next year.

Also, the students who took Biology or Honors Chemistry freshmen year did not have an Earth Science course. This will cause problems on the PSSA's because one third of the PSSA's are Earth Science related.

So what should the Class of 2010 take? Should the students who need an Earth Science course take that or Honors Physics? Because after all, colleges like to see Physics as part of a student's high school career.

It's really all up to the students at the point. To choose what class they really want to take, and to realize that it only affects the class of 2010. How about bad timing...

Time Spent

Hours spent preparing for all of the Blue Books: 6-8 hours

Hours spent taking all of the Blue Books: 3.20-4.30 hours

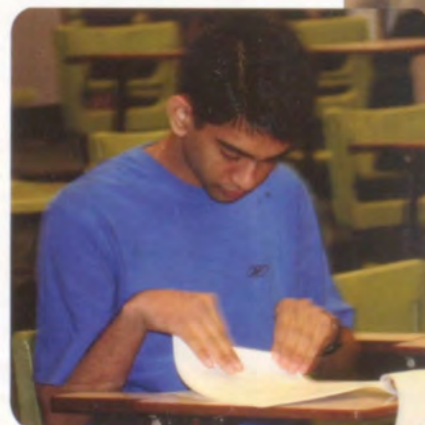

Hours spent grading all of the Blue Books: 7-8 hours

Time Spent

Half asleep, Maggie Blehar and Leigh Pleta struggle to keep their eyes open as they socialize before blue books begin.

Kishore Jayakumar prepares diligently for blue books, taking advantage of Mr. McCloskey's extra review sessions.

Matt Barron and John McGinty chill out in the hallway while using their AMSCOs, a popular study material, to help them prepare.

Kevin Modrak and Emily Galli prepare for Mr. McCloskey's review session. Many students find these extra sessions to be valuable in their preparation.

Larry Wang organizes his notes and outlines after reviewing them quickly before the actual exam begins.

Blue Books

The Joys of Being a Junior

Cole Potrocky and Logan Baird discuss the Blue Books and listen to music to calm themselves down before they begin.

The dread of taking blue books awaits every student as they approach junior year. Between reviewing countless years of history, gathering evidence, and outlining possible prompts, students are consumed with preparation for this exam.

Juniors trudge into the school like zombies, heavy with loads of information and the stress of writing one, or even two, essays in an hour. The few moments given to prepare before the start are precious, but often used as a chance to express just how badly each expects to perform.

When the secretive prompts are finally revealed to the collective sighs of relief or pain, the room explodes with stress and frantic scribbling hands. Racing to beat the clock, one tries to recall months of information spanning hundreds of years, and organize them into a coherent essay.

Time flies, and there's five minutes left before you can catch your breath. Finally, time runs out, and the feeling of relief sets in; only giving way to the new stress of awaiting these important scores.

spotted: Mrs. Booth

Favorite book in the course: Grapes of Wrath, because it is the epitome of all the themes we study in American Literature.

Book you wish you could teach: The Things They Carried by Tim O'Brien. It is currently taught in the AP English 12 course, though.

Favorite essay you assign: The Their Eyes Were Watching God voice essay because it shows the students that writing should be fun, and not always analytical!

spotted: Mrs. Booth

Students in Mrs. Booth's Honors American Literature classes planted beans in cups representing themselves to symbolize Emerson's oversoul. Checking on and caring for the beans became a fun activity for the class.

Great American Classics such as The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn and One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest are just some of the classic novels read in Honors American Literature.

Dale Wang searches for a quote to use on his card for homework. Students in Mrs. Booth's classes complete index cards for each reading assignment.

Melvin Davis III gives a presentation while simultaneously conducting the class in their discussion of literature.

New Experiences

Whitman in the Winter

Mr. Petrich leads his classes as they share their favorite lines of poetry in the freezing morning air.

It was one of the coldest winter days, practically sub-zero, but that didn't stop Mr. Petrich's Honors American Literature classes. They risked the harsh elements and ventured outside to shout out their favorite lines from Walt Whitman's poetry for all to hear.

Rather than stay inside and simply read the poetry, the classes hoped to better connect with the poetry outside. Bundled up in heavy winter coats, students marched outside to the rhythm of Mr. Petrich's harmonica.

Standing in a small semi-circle and huddling for warmth, each student mounted a bench one-by-one to yell their chosen lines. Striking dramatic poses, throwing their heads back and yelling helped bring the excitement of the poetry to life.

Once everyone took a turn sharing their favorite stanzas, they headed back to enjoy the warmth of the school and discuss their experience.

Even though it was freezing outside, students were given a very unique opportunity to learn and share in a different way.

Caylin McKee, Fudge McGreal, Sydney Zalewski, Lauren Cicozi, Katie Healy and Isabella LaQuatra wait patiently in the convertible before Boatripe.

Jon Wilen, Tim Barr, Mac Mathison and Glenn Isralsky get comfortable together on a loveseat before heading to Homecoming.

Right: Still smiling after the NHS Induction Ceremony, Zak Boss, Ryan Mackin, and Jordan Steranka complete the night by congratulating each other in the auditorium lobby.

especially hockey! Winning a state championship is something you will never forget. We enjoy being your biggest fans, cheering you on in whatever you do!
Love,
Mom, Dad, and Colin

Sebastian

Emily

Dear Emily,

You have enriched our lives beyond our dreams. Continue always to share your joy and exuberance with those you meet. We waited for you for so long - and you were truly worth the wait.

Lots of love,
Mom and Dad

Shields

Tory

Tory,
From big wheels to two wheels, you discovered your neighborhood.
In what seems like a minute, you were driving a car, and your world expanded again. Now you have wings, and the destinations are limitless! Follow your bliss and find adventure wherever your wings take you.

Love,
Mom

Wuycheck

Daniel and Jenna

Dan and Jenna,

Can't believe you are all "growed" up!

Congratulations!

Love,
Dave, Mom, Matthew and Evan

Compton

Courtney

Courtney,

The years have passed by quickly from being our little "cupcake" to a beautiful, caring and funny young lady. We are so proud of all you have accomplished. Follow your dreams and your heart.

Love,
Mom and Jen

Englert

Matt

Congratulations, Matt!
We are so proud of you!
You make us smile!

Love always,
Mom and Dad

Gillenberger

Stephen

Stephen,

Good luck in college.
Leave the orange shoe laces at home.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Good

Dominique

Dear Dominique,
Almost 18 and where did the time go? What a ride we have had with you so far! You amaze us again and again - your smartness - your kindness - your love of theater and dance - your writing skills - your inner and outer beauty. Keep growing "little girl" and never stop amazing us. We love you more than a few words can express.

Luv,
Mom and Dad

Hudson

Zach

Zach-

"You are my sunshine." It has been such a joy watching you grow. We are so proud of you and all that you have accomplished. We look forward to your exciting future as you close this door and open another. "Enjoy."

Love,
Mom and Dad

Lamport

Kim

Kim,

You continue to make us proud, not only through your kindness, beauty and talent, but through the person you are. Whatever the future holds, our wish for you is happiness. (FOQ)

Love,
Mom, Dad, Kristin, Kelly and Lee

McCafferty

Leanna

Leanna,

"Wha' happened?" In the blink of an eye you have grown from our Leanna banana into a beautiful and amazing young woman. We are so proud of you.

Love,
Mom, Dad, Emily and R.J.

Mihalko

Frankie

Frankie,

You are a treasure. You have made us laugh and made us proud. Remember "the best and most beautiful things in the world cannot be seen or even touched. They must be felt within the heart."

We will love you always,
Mom, Dad, Billy and Anthony

Paladino

Andy

Thank you for the joy of being your parents. We are so proud of you! Good luck!

Mom, Dad and Bobby

Penev

Jonathan

¡Felicitaciones! Congratulazioni!
Parabéns!

We are very proud of you, Jonathan! Always remember that our love, support and prayers follow you wherever you may go - all the way around the world! May God continue to bless you abundantly.

With all our love,
Dad, Mom, Adam, Rachel and Andrew

Being spotted results in the ability to achieve more than seemed possible before. We as the student body are able to succeed to such a degree that, in some instances, we get national attention and recognition.

In order to increase the caliber of our recognition, we highlight those who break the barriers of normality, such as in the fields of sports and fine arts. And because of those achievements, we say thanks.

Thanks for all the hard work you put in, and the great results that came from it. You earned it.

2007-2008: We'll always remember it as the year...

Well, the year of the what, exactly? It was the year of the high-tech iPhone, but also the year that good old-fashioned letter writing became popular among students. It was the year that Southern California burned while the Midwest was crippled by ice. This year we saw the bottom fall out of the mortgage market and a bridge in Minneapolis. In Washington, Alberto Gonzales and Karl Rove stepped down; in Boston, the Celtics, Sox and Patriots stepped up. In theaters, Bourne, Shrek, Spidey, and Pirates all came back for "Threequels," but our favorite TV shows were cut off after only a few episodes due to the writers' strike.

And so, with Hollywood on hold and nothing good on TV, we decided to focus our attention on re-thinking our lifestyle and coming up with ways to produce less waste and use less energy. Being Earth-friendly became fashion-forward. Champions of planet preservation are hoping that environmentalism catches on as a new lifestyle rather than a flash-in-the-pan fad.

If so, then we may be able to look back and call 2008 "The Year We Saved The Planet."

Hate to burst your bubble

The housing bubble finally burst, big time. Defaults on subprime mortgages rise steadily. As a result, a slew of mortgage companies fail and financial institutions recognize losses exceeding $135 billion.

Nobel committee warms up to Gore

Former Vice President Al Gore and the U.N.'s Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change win the 2007 Nobel Peace Prize for their efforts to raise awareness of global warming.

The pen is mightier

Seeking fair compensation for content distributed through the internet and DVD sales, the Writers Guild of America goes on strike against the Alliance of Motion Picture and Television Producers causing reruns, reality TV and game shows to overwhelm the airwaves. The strike costs the entertainment industry over $1 billion, and forces us to watch even more YouTube than ever before.

Don't eat that action figure!

More than 20 million toys made in China are recalled amid concern over items made with toxic lead paints and magnets that pose a choking risk to children.

"Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows"

The final installment of the Harry Potter series breaks sales records as the fastest-selling book ever, selling more than eight million copies in the first 24 hours following its release. Rumor has it that all eight million copies were read immediately, in one sitting, to avoid having the ending spoiled.

California wildfires

A series of wildfires burns across Southern California resulting in the death of at least ten people, the destruction of over 1,500 homes and leaving over 500,000 acres of scorched earth.

"Taps" plays for bottled water

The same people that turned bottled water into a $15 billion industry are now regretful that 38 million plastic bottles a year are made with 1.5 million barrels of oil. Back to tap water, everybody!

Fuel-friendly flyer

Boeing brings us a super-efficient airplane, the 787 Dreamliner, which uses 20% less fuel than similarly sized airplanes.

Drew Carey, come on down!

After Bob Barker's retirement from hosting "The Price is Right," Drew Carey steps in to host "America's favorite game show."

Of mice and men

By rewinding infected mice's skin cells to an embryonic state and manipulating them to create healthy replacement tissue, scientists grow ever closer to curing Sickle Cell disease in humans.

The tides are turning

More and more people, politicians, and scientists are starting to acknowledge the possibility of global warming as a reality, launching a trend to "go green" and take better care of our planet.

The Cat in the Hat turns 50

In 1954, Ted Geisel (a.k.a. Dr. Seuss) was challenged to write a more exciting version of the boring "Dick and Jane" children's reading books. In 1957, "The Cat In The Hat" was born, and Dr. Seuss's famous feline has been teaching kids to read for 50 years.

One Laptop Per Child

The idea is simple: provide children with opportunities to learn and explore, and they will do just that. The XO laptop developed by OLPC is built just for kids, and is designed to be affordable for every school-aged child in the world.

Oprah's high school challenge

This revealing new program shows us high school as high schoolers see it - challenging issues much deeper than prom or pimples.

Queen Rania of Jordan

With lots of press for her philanthropic work advocating women's and children's rights, including appearances on "The Oprah Winfrey Show," Queen Rania is quickly becoming the Queen a lot of young women are looking up to.

Hillary Clinton

John McCain

Barack Obama

The race for '08

John McCain, Hillary Clinton and Barack Obama begin mudslinging through the Presidential primaries in hopes of becoming a candidate for President in 2008.

A smorgasbord of spoof

Don't have time to see all the big movies of the year? Why bother when there's "Epic Movie," which parodies all of the popular box office hits.

Back in black

In "Spider-Man 3," a strange black sludge bonds with Peter Parker and causes inner turmoil (and a sweet new black costume!) as he battles with new villains, temptations, and revenge.

"Hairspray"

Based on the 1988 cult classic about star-struck teenagers on a local dance show, "Hairspray" puts John Travolta in a dress and shows us a side of him we didn't see in "Saturday Night Fever."

The odds are 13 to 1

Danny Ocean and his crew of high-rolling casino robbers are out for revenge in "Ocean's Thirteen," the third installment of the Las Vegas heist series.

Rink of fire

Will Ferrell and Jon Heder star in "Blades of Glory" as two rival ice skaters banned from competition until a loophole is discovered that allows them to reluctantly skate as a pair.

Bourne again

Still seeking clues about his past and possibly his future, Jason Bourne races around the globe while being pursued by a mysterious assassin in "The Bourne Ultimatum."

One ogre to rule them all

In "Shrek the Third," Shrek's plans to settle down and raise a family are disrupted by the sudden death of King Harold. Rather than take on the duty of ruling Far Far Away, Shrek decides to track down the true heir to the throne, Fiona's cousin, Artie.

Power to the penguin

The penguin has been Hollywood's go-to animal recently. You've seen them march, seen their happy feet dance, and this year, you see them hang ten in "Surf's Up."

"Ghost Rider"

Motorcycle stuntman Johnny Blaze sells his soul to save the life of his beloved, Roxanne Simpson, and becomes "Ghost Rider," a blazing skull-o-justice determined to get his soul back.

Funniest health code violation of 2008

Pixar serves up "Ratatouille," a deliciously funny tale of a French rat named Remy who wants to be a chef despite the obvious problem of being - EEK! - a rat in the kitchen!

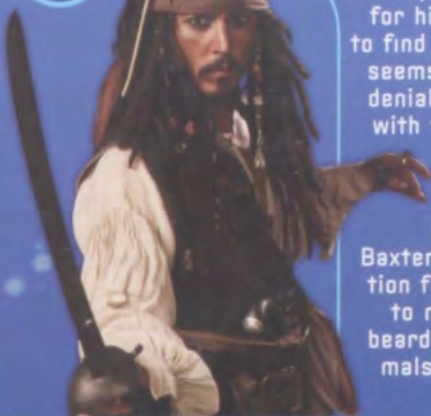

"Hot Rod"

Self-proclaimed (yet lousy) stuntman Rod Kimble prepares for the jump of his life - to clear fifteen buses to raise money for his stepfather's life-saving heart operation.

"Pirates of the Caribbean: At World's End"

Swashbucklers Will Turner and Elizabeth Swann are allied with Captain Barbossa in a quest to free Captain Jack Sparrow from his mind-blowing trap in Davy Jones' Locker.

"Harry Potter and the Order of the Phoenix"

Harry Potter returns to Hogwarts for his fifth year of studies, only to find that the magical community seems to be in a curious state of denial about his recent encounter with the sinister Lord Voldemort.

"Evan Almighty"

God tells Congressman Evan Baxter to build an ark in preparation for a great flood. God forgot to mention that a lengthy white beard and countless pairs of animals were also part of the deal.

Raking in the D'Oh!

After 20 years of small-screen success, "The Simpsons" blow up the big screen in their first feature-length film. The film grosses over $500 million, and leaves everyone singing the Spider-Pig theme song.

"Wild Hogs"

Tired of their humdrum lives, four middle-aged friends decide to temporarily ditch their responsibilities and take a motorcycle trip.

The scariest mom since "Psycho"

The epic poem we all have to read in lit class comes to life on the big screen. "Beowulf" saves the Danes from the indomitable monster Grendel and later, Grendel's mother, who begins killing out of revenge.

Motor Trend's Film of the Year

A war erupts on Earth between the heroic Autobots and the evil Decepticons, leaving the fate of mankind in the hands of a kid and his Camaro (with a little help from Optimus Prime).

"Bus driver - move that bus!"

Ty Pennington and his crew of demolition and renovation experts are back for a fifth season of "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition."

Can you be Frank with us?

Celebrity impersonator Frank Caliendo gets his own sketch comedy show, "Frank TV," where he showcases the hundreds of voices that live inside his head.

"American Gladiators"

A revamp of the 1989 series, the all-new upgraded version pits recreational athletes against fierce warriors wielding giant Q-tips in the ultimate David & Goliath battle.

More like "Two and Three-Quarters Men"

Since 2003, CBS' "Two and a Half Men" has been a ratings powerhouse. But the older child-actor Angus T. Jones gets, the more they might want to re-think that title.

EMMY AWARD WINNERS:

Comedy Series: "30 Rock"

Variety, Music or Comedy Series: "The Daily Show With Jon Stewart"

Reality-Competition Program: "The Amazing Race"

Actor, Drama Series: James Spader, "Boston Legal"

Actor, Comedy Series: Ricky Gervais, "Extras"

Actress, Drama Series: Sally Field, "Brothers & Sisters"

Actress, Comedy Series: America Ferrera, "Ugly Betty"

"The Hills" are alive with controversy

Sure, we like keeping tabs on LC, Heidi, and Audrina - but how "real" is this MTV reality show, anyway?

"Chuck"

One day you're a computer geek working for the Nerd Herd, and the next day your head is full of government intel and you're running secret missions for the CIA ...and you STILL work for the Nerd Herd.

"Deal or No Deal"

After three seasons, "Deal or No Deal" has yet to give away the million-dollar prize. As a result they keep adding million-dollar cases, building up to a $100 million cash prize.

Weirdos in Wisconsin

The CW launches "Aliens in America," a politically incorrect satire about two high school students who just don't feel like they're fitting in - a feeling that 99.9% of high school students can relate to.

"Are You Smarter Than a Fifth Grader?"

Most game shows offer big money, but "Are You Smarter Than a 5th Grader" puts something bigger on the line: pride. Losing contestants have to look into the camera and declare "I am not smarter than a 5th grader."

Bart Simpson is older than he looks

It's a big year for America's Favorite Family, as "The Simpsons" celebrate 20 years on television and 400 episodes.

Bad day at "The Office"

Most of the actors on "The Office" are also the show's writers. Therefore, there are no new episodes produced during the writers' strike, even though scripts had been written.

Holding out for a Hero

With no new episodes in the foreseeable future, fans of "Heroes" turn to the NBC website for "Heroes: Evolutions." Here they get their fix of new stories during the writers' strike.

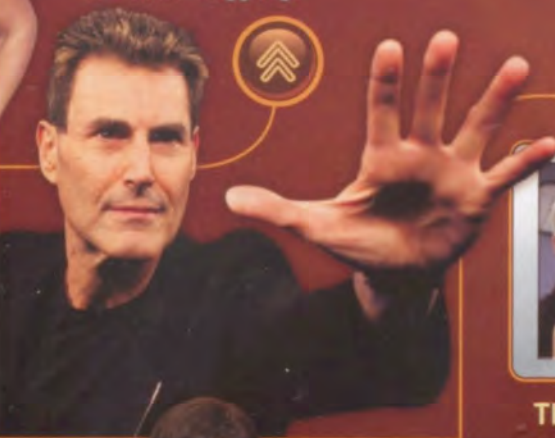

Sanjaya sits idly as Sparks flies

Seventeen-year-old Jordin Sparks beats out Blake Lewis for the title of "American Idol," while the rest of America breathes a sigh of relief that Sanjaya Malakar was finally voted off the show.

Do you believe in magic?

Uri Geller and Criss Angel head up the search to find America's next great mentalist on "Phenomenon," a reality show where the contestants' talents are mind-boggling.

"Samantha Who?"

After becoming the victim of a hit-and-run accident, Samantha Newly develops amnesia and has to rediscover her life, her relationships and herself.

Karma is a funny thing

What goes around, comes around: Could it be that the reason "My Name Is Earl" wins so many entertainment industry awards is because it makes so many people laugh?

The sew must go on

Fortunate for fashionistas, the Writers' Strike didn't affect production of "Project Runway," now in its fourth season.

Dangerous curves ahead

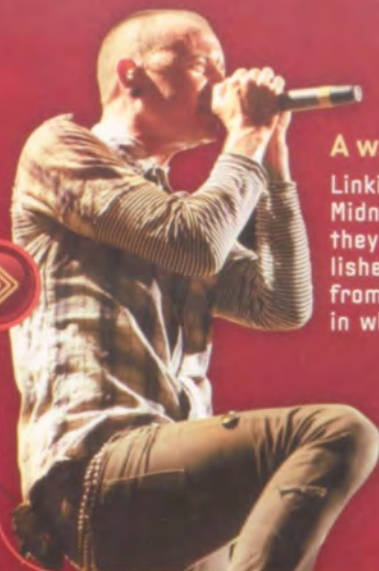

Indy 500 champion Helio Castroneves and his dance partner Julianne Hough show that they're driven to succeed after they win first place in "Dancing with the Stars."

Ugly never looked so good

After a stellar first season, "Ugly Betty" starts its second season with two Golden Globe awards, an Emmy, and two Teen Choice Awards, among others.

A walk in the park

Linkin Park releases "Minutes to Midnight," an album in which a) they experiment with their established sound and draw influences from a wider range of styles, and in which b) they totally rock.

Fallout unlikely

With their latest album, "Infinity On High," topping the 2007 Billboard charts, Chicago pop-punkers Fall Out Boy spend 2007 teaching us the difference between a scene and an arms race.

Popular before she was popular

Colbie Caillat was a MySpace Music phenom before her first single, "Bubbly," was widely released.

Shawty got low, low, low, low

Flo Rida's club-based single "Low" featuring T-Pain hits No. 1 and becomes a dance-floor jingle selling Apple Bottom Jeans and "boots with the fur."

Justin likes your girlfriend

What better way to impress the ladies than to release the "Deluxe Edition" of your No. 1 album and then put together a world tour that grosses over $100 million?

Avril doesn't like your girlfriend

Avril Lavigne's third album debuts at number one and her single "Girlfriend" rockets to the top of the Billboard charts. Keep your eyes on your guys, ladies.

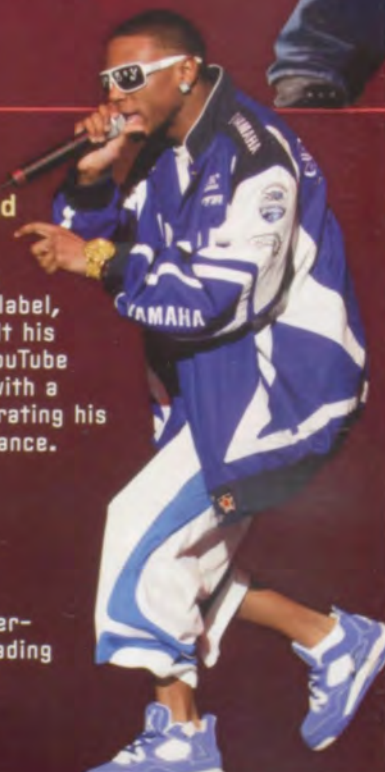

Beyoncé still soaring

With her chart-topping singles and dazzling performance in the movie "Dreamgirls," R&B's leading lady shows us that she's still "irreplaceable."

Unsigned and still major

Before signing with a record label, Soulja Boy built his following on YouTube and MySpace with a video demonstrating his "Soulja Boy" dance. Crank THAT!

Gym Class Heroes

They're MTV's Best New Artist of 2007, and they're always picked first for dodgeball.

Big Dog Daddy

Toby Keith unleashes his mega-successful album, "Big Dog Daddy," proving once again that his music is good for more than just selling Ford trucks.

Chris Brown

With acting appearances in "The OC," "Stomp the Yard," and "This Christmas," and a Grammy nomination for "Kiss Kiss," Chris Brown shows that he can do just about anything he pleases.

Plain White T's

Hey there, Delilah, are they America's hottest new band, or just a clever ad campaign for Fruit of the Loom?

Jason Michael Carroll

Carroll's single "Alyssa Lies" earns him Billboard's Top New Country Artist of 2007.

How to Carrie a tune

Carrie Underwood releases "Carnival Ride," which is certified double-platinum, and she is named Billboard's Best Country Artist of 2007.

The poor girl still struggles with algebra

At 18, Taylor Swift already has three No. 1 singles, one of which she wrote in 9th grade math class.

Featuring T-Pain

List the songs you liked this year, and T-Pain probably had something to do with one of them.

Daughtry dominates

Chris Daughtry gets four Grammy nominations and wins three American Music Awards, which he probably keeps next to his 4th Place American Idol trophy.

Pray for rain

Rihanna's single "Umbrella," featuring Jay-Z is named one of the 10 Best Songs of 2007 by "Time" magazine, and Rihanna earns six Grammy nominations in 2008.

Finger Eleven

We all seem to be struck by Finger Eleven's "Paralyzer," the band's second Top 40 hit in 5 years.

MUSIC

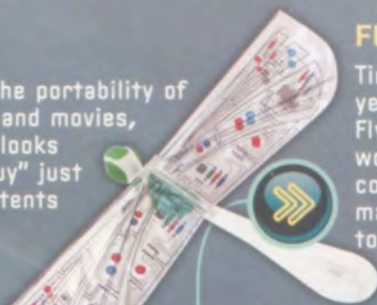

Samsung Q1 Ultra

All the power of a PC, all the portability of a handheld. It plays music and movies, it runs Windows XP, and it looks oh-so-suave. This "little guy" just might revolutionize the contents of our backpacks.

Flytech Dragonfly

Tiny helicopters are yesterday's news. The Flytech Dragonfly is the world's first remote-controlled flapping flying machine, and it's a blast to play with.

The only way to go Blu-ray

Sure, you can watch Blu-ray discs on your PS3, but if you're serious about picture quality, the Pioneer Elite Blu-ray player could be the best thing to ever happen to your plasma screen.

POPULAR VIDEO GAMES

It's like Guitar Hero, but adds drums and vocals.

BURNOUT PARADISE

Blazing-fast race game with a wide-open map.

SUPER MARIO GALAXY

Super Mario in outer space!

Send it to my screen

The Slingbox throws your home television controls to any internet-connected computer or cell phone. Now you can watch "Aqua Teen Hunger Force" on your phone, or surf channels from any couch in the world!

Games people play

Whether you want the expandability of the Xbox 360, the exceptional wi-fi and Blu-ray capabilities of the Playstation 3, or the four-player fun of the motion-sensing Nintendo Wii, there's no doubt that home game consoles are bigger and better than ever. And best of all, Guitar Hero III is available for all three platforms.

A little video for everyone

Apple totally redesigned the iPod nano from the ground up, making it shorter and wider. They also added video capability, so you can watch movies, TV shows and music videos on the go.

High interest R8

From Audi comes the all-new R8. Race inspired with it's mid-engine design and high-revving 4.2 liter V8, the new R8 is not only powerful, it's also gorgeous enough to forgive it's 15 mpg fuel rating.

This is your wake-up call

The iPod alarm clock from Boyq is a pretty little bedside accessory that lets you wake up to your favorite song. And the remote-controlled snooze button practically guarantees that you'll never be on time for anything again.

Slide over here and look at these pix

The reason we have to have a Nikon CoolPix S51 is because we can create an in-camera slide-show set to our own music and view it on the huge 3-inch display.

Image is everything

Canon's latest PowerShot SD870IS is ultra-compact in looks only. It features a 3-inch display, 8-megapixel resolution, and face detection technology.

Spion Digital Binocular Camera

What did you expect from a company whose name rhymes with "Spy on?" Binoculars with a built-in digital camera can either get you great close-up shots or a restraining order. Use them wisely.

High-def Sony Handycam

Tired of lugging that big camcorder to the skate park? Sony's ultra-light and compact HDR-CX7 is the best way to capture high-def video on the halfpipe.

Apple's new flat-top

Apple's MacBook Air is the world's thinnest notebook - thin enough to fit in an envelope and slide under a door - and it may start a trend towards totally wireless laptops.

King of the shiny things

People stand in line for hours to get their hands on this highly anticipated cell phone from Apple. This über-gadget combines cell phone technology with a fully functioning touch-screen iPod. The iPhone contains tons of on-board features and looks unlike any other phone on the market, making it the must-have gadget of the year.

GADGETS

Barry Bonds breaks HR record

On August 7, 2007 Barry Bonds hits his 756th home run, breaking the all-time career home run record formerly held by Hank Aaron.

The Stanley Cup gets quacked

The Anaheim Ducks defeat the Ottawa Senators four games to one to win their first ever NHL championship trophy.

Mercury rises

The Phoenix Mercury defeat the Detroit Shock 108-92, clinching their first league title in Game 5 of the WNBA championship series.

Spurs stick it to Cavaliers

The San Antonio Spurs prove they can do no wrong as they defeat the Cleveland Cavaliers to win their fourth championship since 1999.

THIS YEAR'S CHAMPS

NBA: San Antonio Spurs
NFL: New York Giants
MLB: Boston Red Sox
NHL: Anaheim Ducks
MLS: Houston Dynamo
WNBA: Phoenix Mercury
Arena Football: San Jose SaberCats
NASCAR: Jimmie Johnson
NCAA Football: LSU Tigers
NCAA Baseball: Oregon St. Beavers
NCAA Men's Hoops: Florida Gators
NCAA Women's Hoops: Tennessee Lady Volunteers

Pro before prom

Tadd Fujikawa is one of the youngest golfers to have competed in the U.S. Open, and at 16 announces that he is turning pro.

Yo! Adrian!

Former Oklahoma running back Adrian Peterson plays his first season in the NFL, where he sets a single-game NFL rushing record of 296 yards, and is named the league's Offensive Rookie of the Year.

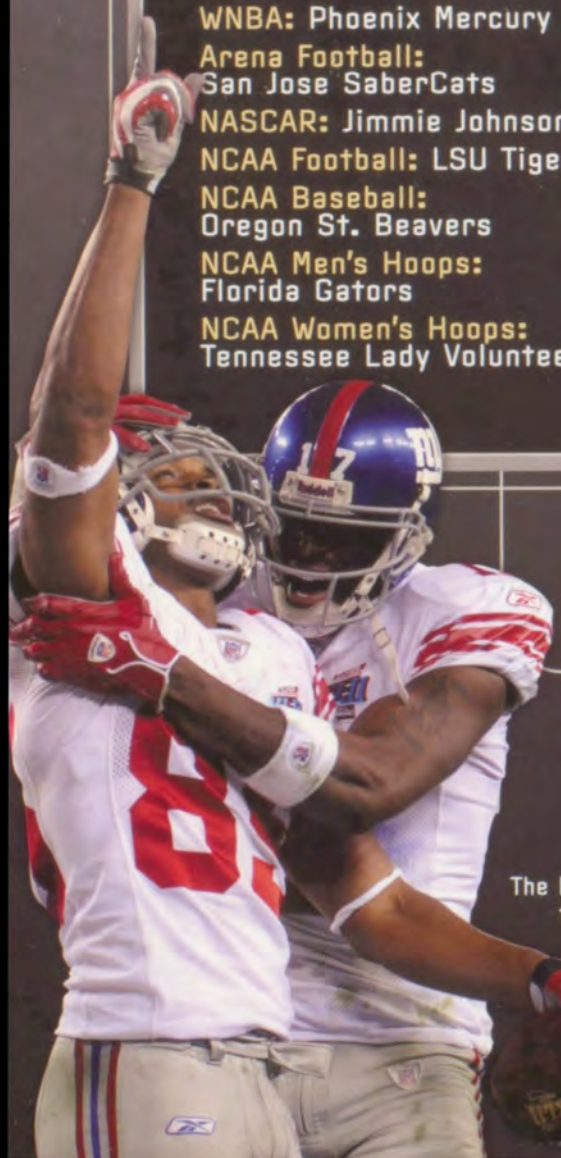

Giants step on New England

The New York Giants upset the New England Patriots 17-14 to win Super Bowl XLII.

Gators bite back-to-back

The Florida Gators men's basketball team becomes the first college team ever to win repeat championships with the same starting lineup.

Crazy year in the BCS

It's a system designed to calculate a college football team's ranking based on statistics. But until this year, the system never encountered so many upsets by low-ranking or un-ranked teams.

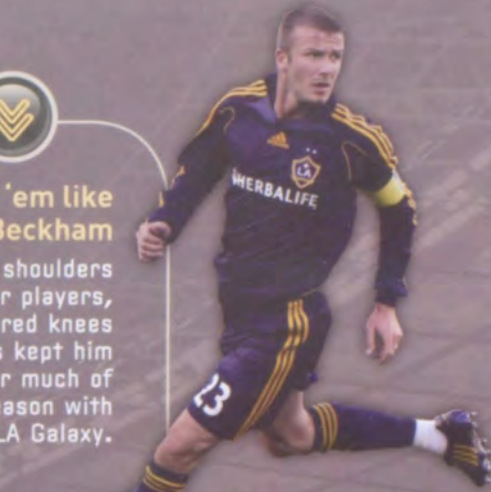

Makes Volunteer work look easy

The Lady Volunteers of Tennessee defeat Rutgers to win their 7th NCAA Women's Basketball championship.

Bench 'em like Beckham

He's head and shoulders above other players, but his injured knees and ankles kept him sidelined for much of his first season with the LA Galaxy.

Jimmie Johnson

With 10 wins in 2007, Jimmie Johnson is NASCAR's Nextel Cup Champion.

The New England Patriots have a perfect 18-0 record until they face the NY Giants in Super Bowl XLII.

The Boston College Eagles start their season at 8-0 for the first time since 1942, and go on to beat Michigan State in the Champs Sports Bowl.

The Boston Red Sox win the World Series, sweeping the Colorado Rockies in four games.

The boys from Beantown

Ray Allen, Paul Pierce and Kevin Garnett put the Celtics back in the NBA, and the Patriots winning streak is rubbing off on everyone from Boston College to the Red Sox. If you're a Boston sports fan, this is your year.

I'm NOT A Plastic Bag

I'm Not a Plastic Bag

Bringing along a reusable shopping bag reduces waste, and this trendy canvas bag by Anya Hindmarch is wildly popular on both coasts.

Earth-saving vows

This year a popular wedding trend was to have a "green" wedding. Brides and grooms are selecting organic caterers, hybrid limousines, and outdoor garden venues to help reduce our ecological footprint.

Reverb gets good feedback

Eco-friendly musicians turn to Reverb, a company founded by musician Adam Gardner of Guster (right), to help them plan greener tours. Reverb "greens" concert tours by providing biofuel for tour busses, biodegradable catering products, and on-site fan outreach.

Subaru, Lafayette Plant

WAL-MART

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc.

The only trend that matters

Sure, what you wear, what you buy, and how you style your hair and make-up define the trends of the past year. But the biggest and most ubiquitous trend of 2008 is to "go green." No longer just a niche cause for "tree-huggers," environmentalism goes mainstream and everyone from brides-to-be to major corporations begin doing their part to radically re-think how we can function with less waste, less pollution, and a brighter future for our planet.

Drive a Hummer, plant a tree

"Carbon offsetting" is a method by which people and companies do good deeds such as building turbines, planting trees and converting methane into fuel to make up for the ozone-depleting CO₂ generated by their energy-consuming lifestyles.

The big, green corporate machine

Big businesses across the globe have begun to radically re-think their operations. Subaru's plant in Indiana has achieved zero landfill status. Wal-Mart hopes to one day soon be supplied by 100% renewable energy. Hewlett-Packard, S.C. Johnson and Continental Airlines are among other corporations being applauded for their environmental efforts.

Changing light bulbs

Office buildings and schools everywhere are switching from fluorescent lights to Compact Fluorescent Lights or Light Emitting Diode bulbs. Both last 10 times longer than fluorescent bulbs and can reduce energy usage by 50-80%.

Could a Brushfire save the planet?

Musician Jack Johnson converts the offices and studios of his Brushfire record label into a model of ecofriendliness, with solar power, recyclable CD packaging and energy-saving air conditioners.
