Moments

Remembering what makes this school year different from any other is a challenge.

It is not one awards banquet, watching the same movie 20 times with our best friends or the first game of the season that is the most important.

What is important is remembering all of the events and the details that make each one unique.

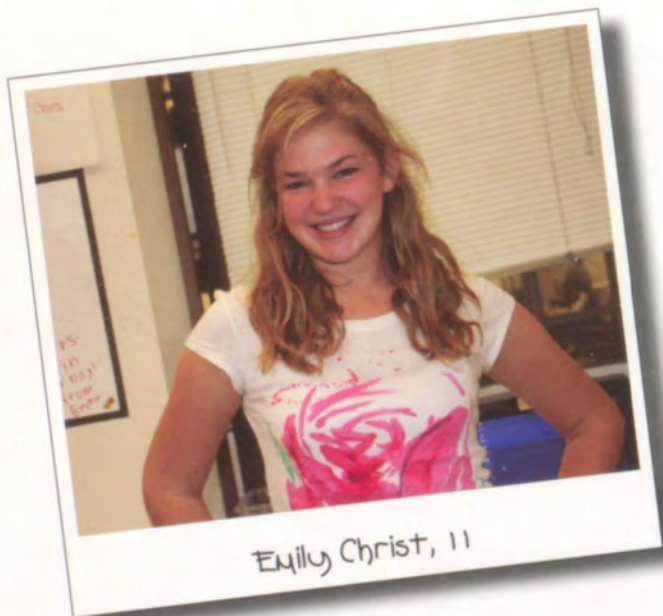

What day of the week was it, what time was it, was it raining, snowing, or was the sun shining, what funny thing was said or done that you can't stop laughing about?

How can we remember the exact MOMENT in time that defines the memory?

Culture Shock

After only being in Mexico for a few hours, I wasn't quite used to the culture. I had completely forgotten what I knew about our neighboring country from Spanish class, and now I had to practically live there for the next seven days. Soon after landing, my family's first task: take the bus to dinner.

As I stepped on the bus, I noticed how much more crowded it was than the ones in America. As I walked to my seat, I was surprised to find how many of the people riding the bus weren't Mexican, which made me feel a little bit at home.

The bus driver pulled an enormous stick shift to drive and pressed on the gas, my back hitting against the seat. I immediately realized buses in Mexico drove much faster than I was used to.

Then, a man with a painted face walked slowly to the front, and turned around, facing all of us. Chills started to crawl up my arms as the man started declaring something in a fast-paced Spanish, too fluent for me to comprehend.

A few minutes passed. The man still talked, and my fear rose. My skin must've been pale by now. Just as my head started to feel light, my dad leaned over to me, and told me he read about this in a magazine once. He just wanted money.

Cool Place to be

Where do you HANGOUT?

Whether it is breakfast or lunch, Kathy Guerra always knows to go to the cafeteria for relaxation and a fun time with friends.

If you wander through the hallways and pass by the same classrooms day after day, you start to notice a trend. You find that the same group of people congregate at the same spot and time. These "hangouts" range from places like the cafeteria and library to teachers' rooms and the student sections at the football games.

Every morning the fourth floor cafeteria is filled with students grabbing a quick breakfast with a few friends and others who are busy finishing up homework or studying for a test. Similarly, the library is a hotspot these days among study hall and lunch students. "It is a more relaxing atmosphere than lunch or study hall. Plus, you don't feel the pressure of teachers telling you to work on something," says Junior Carolyn Schoen.

Often times, if you pass by Room 444 you will see students relaxing around a coffee table in the back of the room. Students find APUSH teacher Mr. DiNardo's room "a cool place to be" according to Katherine Oxenreiter. Students go there during their lunch periods and study halls just to hang out and relax.

Of all these hangout spots, the most popular is the student section during football season. Students get excited and have a great time while cheering on the team. Seniors sit in the front of the stands and usually command the underclassmen to MOVE BACK!

During a pre-homeroom snack, Kaitlyn McGloth carefully discusses her math homework.

Caitlyn Depp and Melanie Danver show why homeroom is not just a time to listen to announcements by sharing a funny story.

While lounging in Mr. DiNardo's room, Lauren Headrick reviews her homework before turning it in for points.

Jim Dowd reads The Devil's Advocate during his study hall in the library.

Working on his English in the middle of the hallway, Andrew Munson shows that any place can be a productive hangout.

At their usual meeting place, Brigid Mackey, Maggie Spahr, and Lauren Sambolt talk in the fifth floor hallway after school.

ADVENTURE

A I N ' T C H E A P

Many students have cars and have to pay for their own gas. This year a gallon of gas has ranged from just below $2 to about $4.

Sporks are a small expense for seniors, but still a very serious game. Gina Federico teases Brianna Laffey about the back-ups in her bag.

Over Thanksgiving break, Julie Balsamo and I went on an adventure downtown. We thought it would be more exciting to pick a location we could get to on the "T" rather than picking one we'd have to drive to. Eventually it was decided we would go to Station Square and see all the different shops.

Our first stop was at the train shaped picture taker that said "Stop! Get your picture taken!" It would have been so fun if it would have taken our $5 bill. Since it wouldn't, we needed to shop around first in order to get some change.

We looked around and saw the Soxx Shop. My dad works in Station Square and has mentioned this place before so we thought we'd try there first. Julie and I walked in and were drawn to the wall of expandable socks. They were like the washcloths you got when you were a little kid that would come out of condensed shape. I had never seen or thought of anything like that in my life. Our purchase of some classy crocodile socks gave us the change we needed for our picture.

The picture taker offers a bargain deal of a second picture for only $3 which would require another visit to the Soxx Shop. While the bargain was a great deal, we realized we were going to end up with a lot of socks and not that many pictures. The socks would be put to good use, but we couldn't justify buying more when we were really only interested in pictures.

Many students buy tickets to go to shows like Auntie Mame. The cost is worth the entertainment and worth showing support for friends.

Senior Pledge Day should be a way to raise money, but it all depends on the cost of the outfit and the unique accessories like the ones Emily Stack wore.

This year about 1100 student bought yearbooks during Log Week for $50 while about 120 procrastinators paid $60 for theirs.

FLASHY NEW STYLES

With every new school year comes a new fashion trend. Last year the fashion was UGGs. This year, it's things like wearing leggings as pants. We understand wearing leggings and a dress, but aren't leggings and a t-shirt a little bit inappropriate?

Yes, it is the twenty-first century and we realize styles are getting more promiscuous, but cutting out pants all together is a little too much for our taste. What ever happened to the long skirts with knee high socks? Now, that's school appropriate.

Another interesting fashion trend is wearing see-through shirts and brightly colored bras. Now, maybe that isn't actually a fashion trend per say, but people do it. Is that really appropriate? We don't know about you, but we are not compelled to see the undergarments of others. Keep that for your eyes only!

We're also starting to see the growing problem of the ever-exposed mid-section. Reality check - it doesn't get that hot around here.

Well, styles are more unique every year and we enjoy the diversity. What we are wondering is when it became okay to start showing your body to the entire Mt. Lebanon student body.

Cheering and Painting

Students go all out for the white out night with masks and face paint.

From 80 degree days when our body paint was melting down our stomachs, to 20 degree nights when our lips turned blue, the pain was worth the fun times that the Lebo Lads had throughout the field hockey season.

The season began with only four scrawny boys painting their stomachs to support the team, but as the season went on, the cheering section grew incredibly, reaching a total of eight to ten Lebo Lads per game. At the games we painted our stomachs with "GO LEBO" and had a plethora of chants to help the team get psyched and play better.

Not only did we help the girls with their game, but it was also a lot of fun for the rest of the crowd. The Lebo Lads were such an inspiration to the team and fans that some parents wanted to reveal their bodacious bodies and join us by painting their chests for some games. However, the parents decided against it due to the risk of embarrassing their daughters.

The Lebo Lads went to every home game, and even some away games. From chanting, bonding with friends in the cold, and supporting our field hockey team, it was a very spirited and successful season.

Personal

Awkward moments

Seniors Ian Thompson and James Greeno compete in the tug-of-war for Markham School.

It is always somewhat awkward for the Cheerleaders, Rockettes, Silks, Band, and Drumline to perform in front of the whole school. You think, who is actually watching me, and if so, are they making fun of the way I look? But this year, it was even more awkward than usual.

Obviously, everyone has fun while performing, but since the Fall Spirit Assembly was inside, things were a little different. On the field, student performers are at least ten feet away from the students and fans in the stands. In the South Gym, they are up close and personal.

One moment in particular that caused quite a commotion was the Rockette and Silk squad flag work. Being a member of the squad, I know it is already a challenge to stand in front of my fellow students, but the fact that I then had to twirl a flag, catch it, and not hit my partner, all in 5 feet of space, made it even harder.

Speaking for other performers, I know the drumline felt the same way. It was hard for them to stand towards one end of the gym, while their backs were to another, very disappointed side, and try to play. Plus, the gym echoes. It is extremely difficult to keep a good beat with an echo. Even though these difficulties may keep some band members from performing to their full potential, most of us are always willing to perform for our Mt. Lebo student body.

For Senior Recognition Night, the Rockette Squad did things a little differently. It is tradition to go to the captain's house before the game for a nice dinner, but since the call time for the band was so much earlier than past years, they weren't able to go.

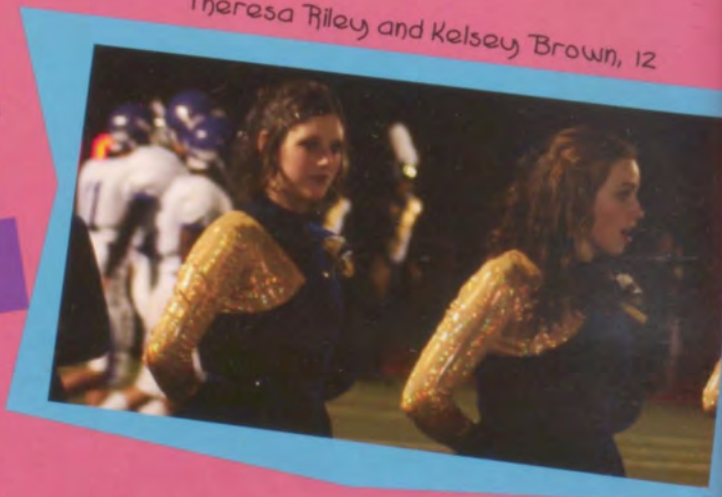

Everyone was disappointed and worried that a celebration wouldn't take place. The juniors, knowing how important it was to their senior friends, came up with a plan. They decided to meet at school before the game and order pizza. They also purchased gifts for each individual senior to honor their dedication to the squad and to show how special they each are.

Everyone met at the high school at 4:30 P.M. They had a half of an hour to celebrate before call time. The pizza came late, but the time spent waiting gave the girls a few more minutes to celebrate the great season they had with each other. Gifts were flaunted, hugs were exchanged, and by the time the pizza arrived, everyone was in a great mood.

The 2008-2009 Rockettes were forced to start a new tradition. They realized that being together was more important than a fancy dinner at someone's house. The seniors were happy, for their Senior Recognition was special...in a different way.

Mount Lebanon Trends

Have you ever noticed how Mount Lebanon students always stick their tongues out in pictures? While they think it makes a picture funny, it is kind of gross... As years progress, this trend is becoming more and more popular. Who even started it? Who thought it would be funny to have your tongue hanging out... is that really attractive? Our conclusion is that a tongue was built to be inside your mouth, so keep it inside your mouth. It will be much happier there... and so will everyone who no longer has to stare at it.

BOATRIDE

Katie Ratay, Kara Viggiano, Becky Muhl,
Gina Federico, Jessie Cadle

For the senior class, Boatride is a long-standing tradition that allows them to form collective memories and really kick off the year. Many enjoy the evening spent on the Gateway Clipper Fleet because of the low stress and low pressure atmosphere. No dates, no awkward pictures and no group drama – just a chance to dress up, go out with friends, and party the night away.

Some, like Megan Bone, Stephanie Kuo, and Lauren Kuntz, chose to spend a day on the town before boarding. Their group, accompanied by their German exchange students, watched the hit musical "Wicked" before heading off to Buca di Beppo for dinner. Station Square is always a hot spot for group dinners. With fun restaurants like The Hard Rock Café and The Melting Pot, there are always plenty of seniors to be found.

Another part of the evening that most enjoy is the chance to essentially wear whatever one wants. The motto for the guys is usually the crazier the better. From a neon spotted suit to matching creamsickle orange and baby blue suits, many guys use boatride as a chance to strut their unconventional and hilarious style. As the boat chugged past the great Pittsburgh scenery, the class of 2009 danced the night away, making it a night full of love and memories.

DANCING

Richie Bogdanski and Lauren Dellecker

Every new school year brings with it school dances. Homecoming is an exciting time for everyone, especially freshmen who have the joy of experiencing their first dance.

Traditionally, guys ask the girls. It is the other way around with Snowball. With girls running to hair and nail appointments and guys finding the right color shirt to wear, it can be hectic.

Most couples go to homecoming in groups that consist of their friends. A lot of people go to the dance without dates. It can be more fun just to be with friends and not be attached to someone for the whole night.

Usually, when the fourth Saturday of every October rolls around, Mt. Lebanon's local dining spots are filled with kids grabbing a bite to eat before the dance begins. Popular eateries include: Il Pizzaiolo, Bravo, Sesame Inn, Little Tokyo, Benihana's, and Mitchell's Fish Market.

Even though the dance starts at 8 o'clock, students usually show up "fashionably late", in order to avoid the awkwardness of being the first ones there. During the two to three hours, students socialize over refreshments, dance, and take pictures.

After dancing all night and being soaked from your own and possibly other peoples' sweat, it is time for the dance to end.

To pledge or not to pledge...

Senior pledge is the one day a year where a senior is forced to dress and act a little crazy, and it is completely encouraged. Sam Viggiano is the perfect example of the fun a senior can have if they really get into it.

Dressed by sophomore Anna Wotring, Sam's "Pixie Boy" costume took 20 minutes to put together, excluding the elaborate butterfly face paint that completed his outfit. Decked out in metallic pink spandex, sparkling fairy wings, a turquoise "Pixie Power" t-shirt, and leg warmers, Sam was ready for the day. Aside from the sparkly pink tights, which were a staple for the outfit, Sam's favorite part of the costume was the wings, as he's always wanted to fly. His tasks for the day included skipping up and down the halls singing, at the top of his lungs, "I am a pretty pixie" and also handing out stickers to all of the good boys and girls.

When asked "Are you Sam?" he had to reply "Sam I Am" while spinning and leaping. Yet his biggest challenge was maintaining a perky, sprightly character...all day, no matter what anyone threw at him. To some it may seem a difficult day, but Sam felt that the only way to truly enjoy the day is to allow yourself to fully become something different. "Having someone like Anna to make me 'miserable' allowed me to break the dull chain of events that proceeded this day. If you can't get into the day, then don't sign up."

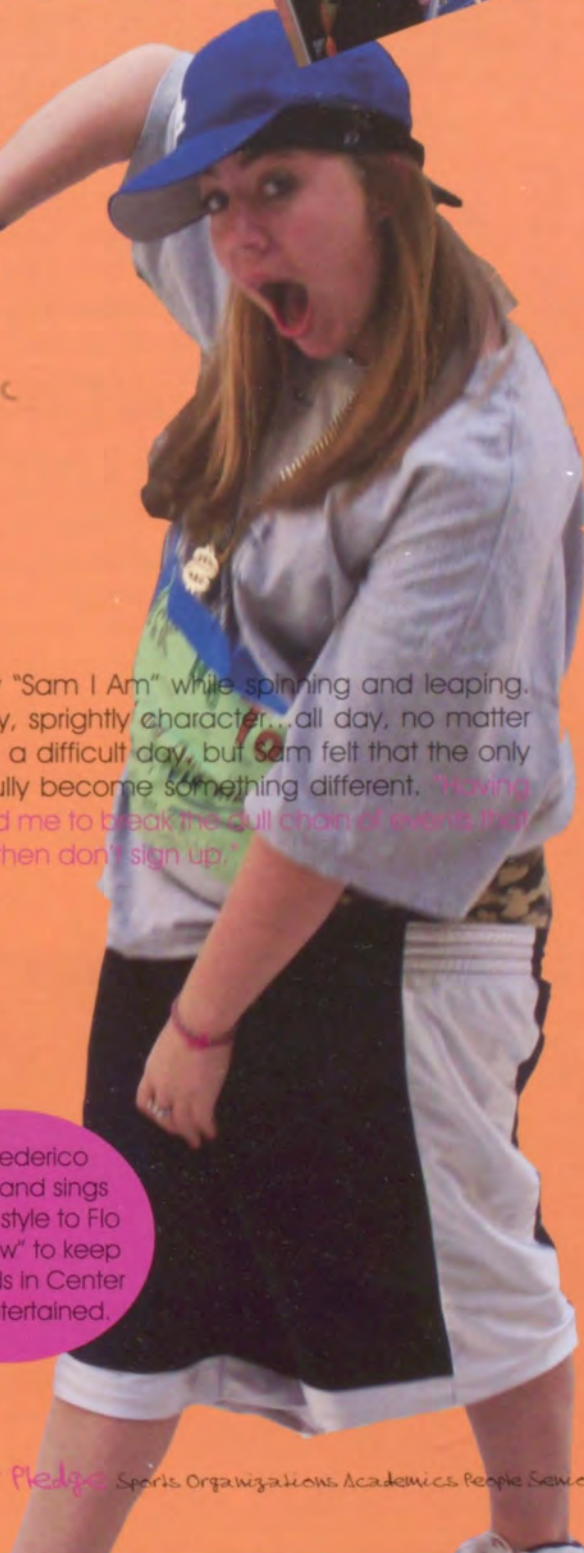

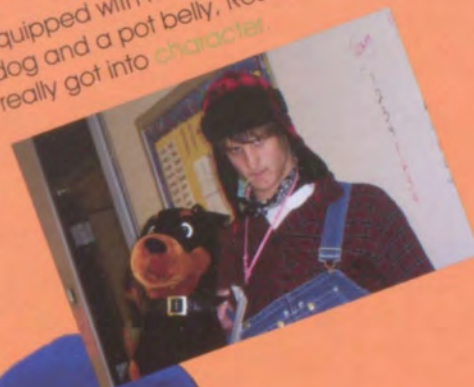

"It was painful. APES was definitely the worst because everyone tried to make me talk all period."

Fun and Games that Never Stop

Coming into ETC this fall, nobody knew what to expect. Seniors weren't sure what the class would be like without last year's seniors and juniors didn't have a clue as to what was in store for the year ahead.

However, all were pleasantly surprised with how much they came to love each other and their first semester production "Auntie Mame", which is about a boy sent to live with his eccentric aunt. Although set during the Great Depression, the play seemed a timely piece to audience members.

Although cast games typically end during warm-ups, they continued after the Friday night performance. As cast members arrived at Denny's, the traditional post-show hangout, they saw that kids from Char Valley had taken their usual spot. But this didn't ruin anyone's night. While waiting for fellow cast members to arrive, everyone played "Little Sally Walker" in the parking lot.

The fun and games only persisted as the thirty-four crazy theatre kids headed to TGI Fridays where they stayed until one in the morning. The memories of that night, along with many others created over the grueling but ultimately amazing ten weeks it took for the cast, crew, and directors to pull together a fabulous production will not soon be forgotten.

This holiday season the Percussion Ensemble had the honor of going to PPG Place and playing for the KDKA Free Care Fund Telethon. It was so cool to see how fast they could turn the lobby of the PPG building into a full T.V. studio; complete with a full boom camera. It was an awesome feeling to play on live T.V. and know that thousands of people were watching.

The weirdest thing was when the camera came too close to us when we were playing. One of the points stressed by the people in charge was to ignore the camera when performing. That was easier said than done.

The person operating the boom camera wanted to be creative and get different angled shots. It helped make the broadcast more interesting, but it would have been helpful for the camera person to know what our shows are like. We don't all stand in the same place for the entire song.

The most nerve-racking shot was when he decided to drop it down right next to us. If we had a run on the marimba, maneuvering around the camera was a challenge. Even the slightest bump would have been noticed by thousands of people.

But no matter what happened, how many times everyone messed up, or how well everyone did, playing downtown was a great honor and a really memorable experience.

WINTER CALENDAR

Full of Talent A Fun Tradition

Accompanied by Zach Einwag on piano, Megan McGonigle performs Christmas Lullaby.

Every school year, the Mt. Lebanon community looks forward to the annual Holiday Show. The 2008 Holiday Show was both entertaining and exciting for participants and the audience. The various acts really brought out all sorts of talent and creativity that our students have. From playing an instrument and singing your favorite song to acting out your favorite T.V. show, students constantly had the audience's full attention on them.

Many favorite parts of the show included the imitation of a Dance Company show, the "Evolution of Dance," and last but not least, Dan Johnston and Ross Kobelak's version of all three High School Musical movies, in one short act. Following tradition, groups like senior silks, cheerleaders and class officers had performances.

There is also always more to the show than the hilarious skits and parodies. Students like Luke Bushman, Lou Emmi, and Alvin Zhu showed off their superior musical talent with piano playing, and in Luke's case, singing. Ms. Weyant was also the first teacher to ever perform a solo in the show. In a display of appreciation, Dr. Robert Rosen was presented with an award for his dedication in producing the Holiday Show for the past thirty years. The proceeds from the show go to numerous charities selected by the senior executive council.

Dan Johnston and Ross Kobalak summarize all three High School Musicals through song and dance in under 3 minutes.

Basketball players Chelsea Apke and Anna Kestler proudly display their WPIAL medals at the dance.

Dance Extended Thanks to Basketball

As often happens with playoff games, a scheduling conflict was created due to the enormous success of both the boys and girls basketball teams. Many students wanted to support their friends by heading to the back-to-back games at the Palumbo Center, but they also wanted to enjoy the plans already in place for Snowball.

Thanks to the persistence of our student government and willingness to spend extra funds on the DJ and security, the dance was extended. It started at eight, as it normally does, but instead of ending at 11, students had the option of staying until one in the morning. This way, basketball players and their dates could make it to the dance by 11, and still be able to enjoy Snowball.

Those who wanted to enjoy both did so in style. Instead of the typical Blue Crew shirts, the student section was dressed to the nines in their Snowball finest. Many groups had ample time to go to dinner, and then enjoy both games before heading to the dance. This proved a nice change of pace, and really broke up the evening.

There were, however, the faithful dancers who stayed from around nine until one. Even with the aching limbs from dancing for nearly four hours, it was definitely worth it. Despite what seemed an eminent disaster, the new Snowball routine proved that changes can be exciting and worthwhile.

The Five And O's

Full Court Shots and 360 Degree Lay Ups

"Intramurals are more fun when you have people on your team that don't actually play for the school team," says Brian Luchini, a junior who likes his team because it's a bunch of friends playing a good game of basketball. "We aren't competitive," he said frankly "That is another reason why we have so much fun together."

One of his favorite games of the season was one of the earlier games of the year. All of the boys on the team came in to play an hour-long basketball game, not knowing how it would turn out. In the first half, one of his teammates, Mike Greenberg, made three full court baskets from his position as point guard. This is very hard to do and even most professionals can only do half court shots.

The very same game, John Bruni made three hundred and sixty degree lay ups that easily went into the hoop. "It was so surprising for all of those great shots to happen in one game," Brian states. His team, the "5-0's," are known for being good. The name itself describes their winning season. The players are Mike Greenberg, John Bruni, Chris Durkin, Brian Church, and Brian Luchini.

They are all proud of their accomplishments in the season, even though it was only an intramural game. Obviously the most important thing is that every player enjoys himself. With a memory of a game like that, how couldn't you have a great time?

During the two weeks of band camp, the drum majors came up with a new theme for each day to make them pass more quickly. This year, one of the days was Cake Day. Every section brought in a cake that was the size and design of their choice. Most of the sections brought in a regular cake, weighing about 7 pounds, with one tub of icing, one box of cake mix and a cute design. The drum line, though, had a different idea.

The drum line decided that each and every one of them was going to make one cake...but they weren't just going to keep all of them as individual cakes. Kevin Duffy was assigned to combine all of the cakes together to make one massive cake, and massive it was. When Cake Day came, the drum line was seen carrying their fifty pound cake made of 47 boxes of cake mix and 52 tubs of icing. It was brought in on a big platform with four drum line members carrying it. The shape was different too with at least three layers, oval shaped cakes on top and decorative icing. The drum line was sure that their cake would win.

Unfortunately, their cake did not come out on top, and with only a second place in design and taste, the drum line boycotted the rest of the theme days to show their disappointment with the Cake Day judges for not picking their cake as number one. Even though it wasn't number one on paper, it was number one in the drum line's hearts.

COMING TOGETHER

Rockettes and Silks Join Forces

Throughout the years, the Rockettes and Silks have always been two separate entities. This year, sponsors Mr. Greenawalt and Mrs. Duffner tried to unite the groups and make them one color guard.

For example, the Rockettes had a flag routine during the half time show. Flag work is usually just for Silks, but in an effort to unite them, the Rockettes had 32 counts of flag work. The Silks explored new territory as well – dance routines, something usually reserved for the Rockettes only.

and Amy Paine, 11

While this was new to the girls, they tried to make the best of it, and ended up having a lot of fun together. They even made up their own routine to "Soldier Boy" and "We're All in This Together" to symbolize how unified the squads had become.

Also, during the stand jams, Rockettes taught a lot of their stand jams to Silk members and vice versa.

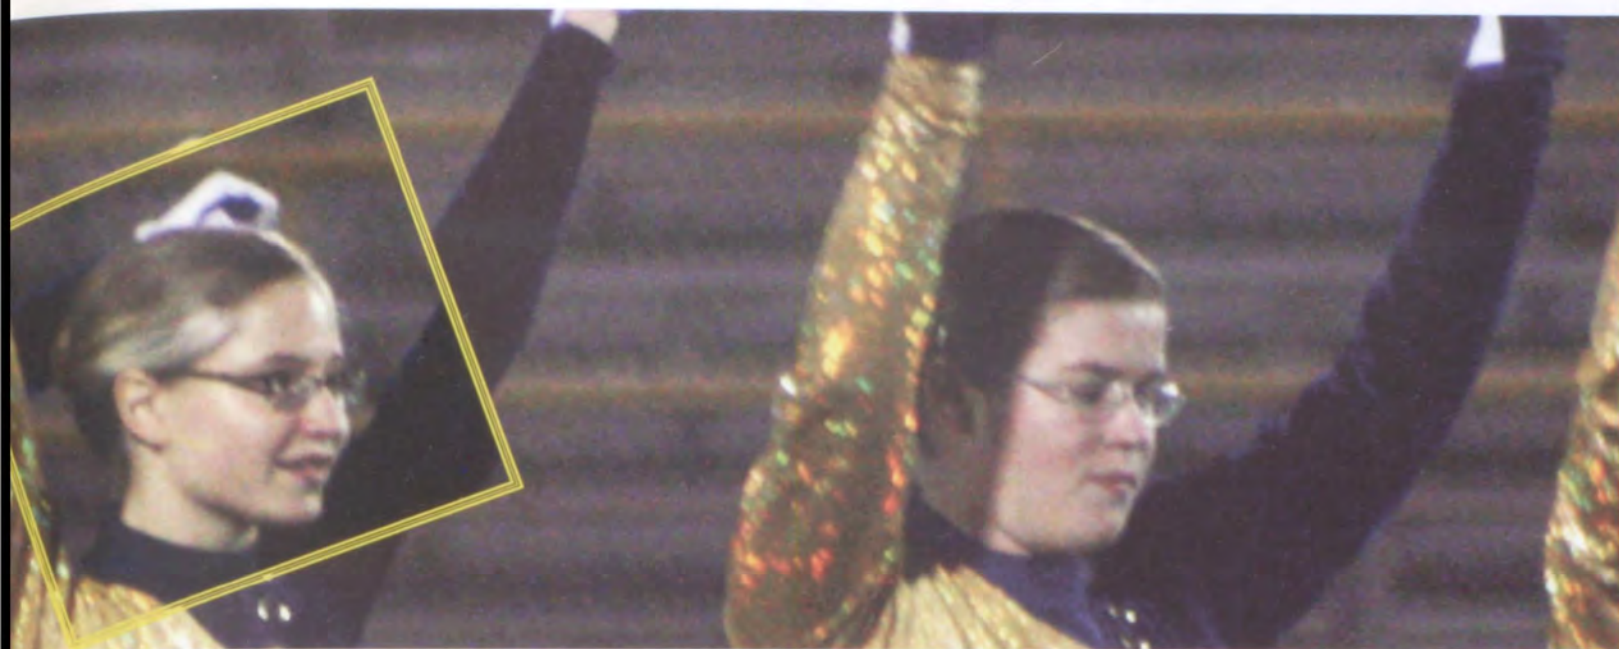

Even though the squads are coming together as one, there is still a defined line between Rockettes and Silks.

Rockettes use pom poms and have flash gloves, while Silks do not. Silks still wear pants, and Rockettes still wear skirts.

Maybe some day the girls will really be one color guard. But for now, they are just great friends, who help each other, but still really know who they are and why they joined band.

Hard Work Pays Off

What Makes It Worthwhile

During the first quarter of a home game, Meghan Kane and Jessie Shorts perform one of their ripple cheers where girls do the same moves at different times to make the cheers more interesting.

After finishing the crowd pleasing LEBO cheer, Shannon Daly and Meredith Wagner shake their pom poms to get the crowds excited before the next play starts.

Katie Hartman kneels in the LEBO cheer to spell out the "L". This cheer is a traditional cheer that really gets the crowd excited for games.

During the last two weeks of summer, cheerleaders prepare for the upcoming fall sports. Each eight hour practice can include weight-lifting, running, and learning all of the new cheers. Once school starts, the cheerleaders practice two times a week and cheer at an average of three games per week. The squad cheers for a number of sports throughout the year, including football, soccer, basketball, and wrestling.

Obviously, the cheerleaders need a break during practices and games, and that is when the fun starts and the girls really become close as a squad. Junior Olivia Kelly says, "the Friday football games are my favorite. It's really exciting. Plus the whole getting-ready process before always give the night a good start." Another opinion about what makes cheerleading so fun is being on the sidelines. Taylor Lawson says that "it is so exciting to be close to the action and it's a great bonding experience with the other squad members."

For the cheerleading squad, the hard practices during the summer and school year does not matter, but the fun that follows is what makes cheerleading a great activity.

At the Central Catholic game, Eugenia Finizio shows her spirit through her hand made megaphone.

At a time out, Ava Sander shakes her blue and gold pom poms to rally up the crowds and show her school spirit. Most cheers happen while the ball is not in play so they don't distract from the game.

Thanks to so many different cheers, Allison Puz concentrates on reciting a new one the squad just learned. The squad switches up their cheers from week to week to make the games more interesting for the fans.

Showing off their Lebo glitter, paint, and bows, Ellese Meyer and Liz Valli also show off their smiles while snapping a quick picture during a game.

Olivia Kelly is caught chatting with her friends during a game. Cheerleaders work hard, but they also leave room for fun.

While Working Hard for Victory

It was a home game with perfect fall weather - just a slight chill in the air. By the sixth week of the season, the team was anxious for their first win. It wasn't a high-scoring game, but it was "suspenseful," according to junior Colin Kerr. "The team practices and prepares year-round," he says, for games like this one against Peters Township and the season's theme of Brotherhood was evident.

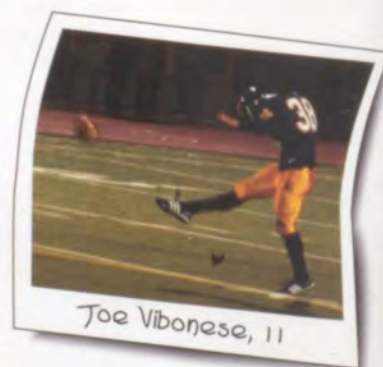

The team forged a stronger bond than ever this year with the quote from William Shakespeare. All of the time spent together will provide any sport with the opportunity to unite, but these players took it to heart. It is so important to function as a unit in football. The entire team was able to enjoy the victory against Peters because everyone shared the work.

One of the difficulties the team overcame this year was the plague of surgeries. Seven players had some injury requiring surgery. Jimmy Lackner ruptured a disc in his back sometime in early August. "I was just lifting when I hurt my back," he said. Although it was his first injury, it was serious enough that he had to stop playing. A late-season knee injury had Tommy Sims in surgery and rehab for a few weeks. He got hit in the wrong direction during a punt return in the game against Canon-McMillan.

The hard work put forth by the team is also evident by the individual recognitions received by the following 1st Team All-Conference players: Luke Alberts - Safety and Vince Cantelm - Defensive Line, and 2nd Team All-Conference players: Andrew Cappucci - Quarterback, Chris Kostas - Defensive Back, Mike Martin - Wide Receiver, Brian O'Leary - Offensive Line, Julian Valdiserri - Wide Receiver, Sean Veights - Line Backer, and Chris White - Defensive Back.

All athletes recognize that playing a team sport is not just about the record or personal accomplishments, but about the camaraderie and relationships created. Players spend hours of their days together all year - during season and off-season. The team this year recognized early the importance of these strong relationships. Inspired by William Shakespeare, the players kept a sign in their locker room to remind them of the life lessons they were learning. A parent was generous enough to have it made.

Everyone finishes their individual stretching routines before the race.

The girls warm up with a short jog before their home race. They don't often run at home and had to run this one in the rain.

Ellen Dietrich and Kayleigh Birks support each other after a difficult race.

Olivia Pitcarin and Alana Powers come down the hill in the park. The course starts at the park, winds around, then comes back to the starting line.

Anne McGinty, 12

The layout of different courses makes cross country a unique sport. The girls don't always run in the same gym or on the same field, but are challenged by a variety of courses. When asked about what course was the best or worse, Marie Barcic said, "CV is actually shorter than most courses, but the hills are so steep you can crawl up them."

Along with the variety in courses is the variety in competition. The most memorable meet of the season was the home meet against Baldwin. "It was an extremely hot day, but we knew that Baldwin was our biggest threat to a section championship. We all put the weather aside and ran our best races of the year," says junior Jen Challburg. Though the pressure to win was high, the girls easily beat Baldwin and became the section champs.

To prepare for this and other important meets, the girls eat a lot of healthy foods and consume tons of calories. Marie Barcic says, "we like to go to the Olive Garden the night before a race and eat carbs together. The best part about the team is the people on it." Sharing meals gives the girls an easy chance to bond.

Although everyone runs for an individual score, the pressures of the races are easy to handle when the girls feel united. The practices and 3 mile races make for a long tiring season, but it helps to have a team that has fun together.

The boys team had a great season winning all of their meets, running at WPIALs and qualifying for states. One great memory from the season is the success of Rad Gunzenhauer. "I was building up to first place. I had gotten second place at the Red, White and Blue meet, and had done well at the Baldwin meet so I had gotten a taste of what it's like to do well. It was the third race that I was in, and I was ready to win," said Rad. He won at the Slippery Rock Invitational even though it wasn't a perfect day for running.

"The conditions were poor, but that did not impede Rad in the least," said junior Brian Connelly.

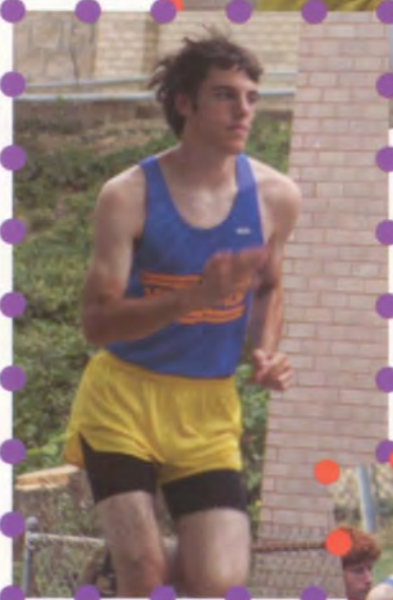

He stretched with Rad that day in preparation for the meet and said that everybody was happy when Rad won.

Along with Rad's first place award at Slippery Rock, the team placed second overall. The undefeated runners also place third in the WPIAL Championship, third in the Red, White and Blue Invitational and second at the Central Catholic Invitational. The seven runners who participated in WPIALs were Bart Eckel, Rad Gunzenhauer, Dan Johnston, Alex Moran, Eric Shrum, Sean Staltari, Lawton Tellin and Kevin Tramaglini.

Michael Hughes sprints to the finish line against our rival, Upper Saint Clair. The team pulled out a great victory USC, finishing 45 to 18.

Graham Bellassai runs up the hill leading to the stadium. The team uses a large area around the high school for warm-ups and home meets.

Bart Eckel runs with the team during warm ups. The runners also warm-up on the hill.

Under the leadership of captains Emily Galli and Alyse Viggiano, the Lady Blue Devil's golf team experienced another successful season. Relying on teamwork and positivity, the girls fought extremely hard under immense pressure to earn a 9-4-1 record.

Seniors Galli, Ray, and Viggiano led the team this year, laboring cohesively to pull out clutch victories, while Byrne, Carver, and Lewis all contributed to the season's wins, each working diligently to improve her game. Because of their combined efforts, the girls placed second in their competitive section and once again returned to the WPIAL Championships held at Cedar Brook Golf Course.

In addition to the team's success, several girls competed as individuals. Byrne, Galli, Lewis, Ray, and Viggiano represented Mt. Lebanon at the WPIAL Individual Qualifiers held at Churchill Valley Country Club. Playing among the best golfers in Western Pennsylvania, the girls played well, but did not place in the top 6.

Attaining success for the third consecutive year, the girl's golf team experienced another great season built upon camaraderie.

Intensity

A Season To Remember

It was a sunny day at the Mt. Lebanon golf course and the atmosphere was intense. Our Mt. Lebanon boys golf team was competing against the Bethel Park team. The boys prepared for this game by practicing as they normally did, and not treating this game any differently than the rest. However, it soon came to be clear that the odds were stacked against us, because one of the best players on the team, Jeremy Silver, was sick.

Bobby Kang, 11

Brian Kluck, 12

He still decided to compete that day, and it really paid off. He and another tough competitor, Kyle Shaffer, ended up sending the Mt. Lebanon team into a playoff. Kyle Shaffer sank an incredible putt on the second hole. They ended up having to play an extra hole just to settle the tie between them. Along with those two, the rest of the team played incredibly well, clearly shown when another Mt. Lebanon player, Dan Solera, birdied on the third hole.

Though our team played incredibly well, Bethel ended up winning the match. This Bethel game would be one to remember because of the intense atmosphere that the playoff hole caused. Despite the loss, the boys golf team had a great season with a couple of the players qualifying for various awards. Because of games like Bethel, this will definitely be a season to remember.

Field hockey is a sport known for the closeness of the JV and Varsity teams. On the pre-season loop, it is difficult to distinguish players in different grade levels due to the integration by everyone. When feeling that the team was separating into JV and Varsity on a bus ride home from Fox Chapel, the girls learned a few new dance moves and introduced new songs. "Be a Man" from Mulan was this year's theme song and could be heard after every warm-up session as the team made its way back to the benches where the LEBO boys were seated.

Many props should be given to those boys who attended the WPIAL playoff game at Norwin in freezing weather, sporting LEBO letters on their chests and continually cheering for the team. Our favorite was when they decided to get us pumped by doing push-ups on the railing.

Through all the pain, temperatures, and tears, we showed the field hockey world what it means to be a team. We came out on top, beating rival USC twice and winning a scoreless game against Peters. With these victories we advanced to playoffs, a feat that eluded us last year. If anything, this year proves the sky is the limit, especially if we have boys with skirts supporting us!

The tension was high as the Blue Devil Girl's Volleyball team entered the gymnasium at North Allegheny High School. The opposition was a tough team, but the girls had practiced hard for the week leading up to the match by studying the offensive and defensive patterns of the North Allegheny team.

The match started out slow for Lebo. Despite the rigorous practice routine, the girls lost the first two games. They were disappointed and weren't sure how they were going to make a comeback. But just then, the junior varsity team recognized the lack of energy on the court and started cheering as loud and enthusiastically as possible.

This cheering section encouraged and motivated the team to destroy North Allegheny in the last three games of the match. Beating the toughest team all season without a home-court advantage was a highlight of the season.

The following individuals also received WPIAL, State and Section recognition: Kate Begor - First Team All WPIAL, First Team All Section and All State, Caroline Dadowski - Honorable Mention All WPIAL and Second Team All Section, Laura Dadowski - Third Team All WPIAL and First Team All Section, Colleen Dougherty - All Section Third Team, Rebecca Riemer - All Section Second Team, Sara Scheirman - First Team All WPIAL, First Team All Section and All State, and Alex Taylor - All Section Second Team.

Going for DETERMINED SINCE

The 2008 season can be summarized by the WPIAL Championship game against Peters. The bitter rivalry began with a Middle School Travel Soccer tournament when the soccer team faced Peters in the championship.

After three rounds of penalty kicks, the game was scoreless. Finally, after the majority of the team had taken their kick, Peters won, after a missed Lebo shot. However, they repeated players to take a kick, which is illegal. As the team bitterly accepted the silver, they knew they would get the gold later.

Sam Kovarik, 12

Carly Lewandowski, 12

2008 was an amazing season. The senior class led the team to victory, only losing one game during the regular season. With high ranking heading into playoffs, girls held high standards for themselves, and would accept nothing but a gold medal. And after so many years, this bitter rivalry met again. Despite having much success in the past few years, there was resentment about the silver medal.

Following the words of past seniors, the team wanted to make history. From the start of the final game, Lebo showed their strength, talent and skill. The season ended as they dominated the game and got the gold.

SENIOR REC TRADITION

The near-perfect boys soccer season started with an impressive 12 shut-outs in 12 games. The team outscored their opponents 75-6 in the regular season and almost finished with a perfect record.

In Brian Church's opinion, the playoff game against Norwin was the most memorable. "It was late at night and freezing," he said.

Mt. Lebanon had a 1-0 lead going into halftime, but Norwin rallied at the start of the second half by scoring twice. The boys fought hard to come back, and with only ten minutes left in the game, Kevin Davis scored the goal to send them into overtime.

"We won with an overtime header by Brian Richardson," recalled Church.

This second-round playoff game was held at North Hills Stadium and the win led to the game against Peters. The game was intense as Peters took the lead early and kept it. Unfortunately this was the last game of the season when the boys lost with a score of 2-3.

After a successful and exciting season, midfielder Nate Sharbaugh and striker Zach Batteer were named to the PA All-State team which led to the honor of Regional All-American.

Jason Dempsey holds his position, waiting impatiently for the ball to reach his zone.

Evan Schardt sneaks up on an opponent to steal the soccer ball away. The team played great defense throughout the season.

The team huddles up before a big game to discuss strategy and psych themselves up. The varsity squad really bonded, which helped them to be stronger on the field.

The girls' tennis team entered its 2008 season anticipating tough matches against USC, North Allegheny, and other section rivals. Carly, the attitude, Sarah, the comeback kid, and Rachele, the drama queen, played singles throughout the season. Emily, the captain, Claire, the freshman, Brianna, the most team spirited, Eva, the girl who ate 28 Chewy bars at once, Caitlin, the competitor on and off the court, Jessie, the girl who played the longest rallies, and Ali, the funky fresh chica, shared doubles playing time.

Singles and doubles provided a forum for intense match play as the team traveled to Altoona for the annual tournament. Mt. Lebanon took first place at Altoona's Mountain Lion Invitational, with individual winners Claire Healy at second singles, Jessie Mewkalo at third singles, and Emily McGinty and Caitlin Duffy at second doubles. The Altoona bonding experience carried the teammates into a spirited second half of the tennis season.

Heated matches with teams like Upper Saint Clair and Pine Richland resulted in both victory and defeat, though the team had no trouble handling most of its section contenders. The season was marked by various memories: adventures to Sheetz, dinner at Moe's, excruciatingly long third sets, carpools, the carwash and many more. The team's success on and off the courts made 2008 a year to remember.

Crossface Cradle

A Winning Pin

Although I had some ups and downs during my wrestling season, one match in particular was a huge turning point for me. It was the eighth week of the season at the Seneca Valley Invitational and in order to get into the Medal Convention Round, I had to win one more match against a Hampton wrestler.

As they called my name to the mat, I got butterflies in my stomach. I held my hand out ready to shake his hand, and then prepared to wrestle. Before I even knew it, I took him down for the first time, making me even closer to the Medal Round. Thousands of thoughts were flying through my mind about what to do next. What move should I use? What is his strategy?

Ty Kiernan, 12

Andy Buttlar, 11

It was then that I decided to try my favorite move: the crossface cradle. It is a pinning combination where you put one hand across the opponent's face, your other hand through his legs, and then lock your hands together. This puts the opponent on his back which wins the match.

Thirty seconds after doing this move, the referee slapped the mat and I won! I was very happy and ended up placing fourth at the tournament. It was one of the best memories of the season.

Scott Allen, 10

-Andy Buttlar, 11

Takedown: Starting from a standing position, two points are given when one wrestler has brought his opponent to the mat.

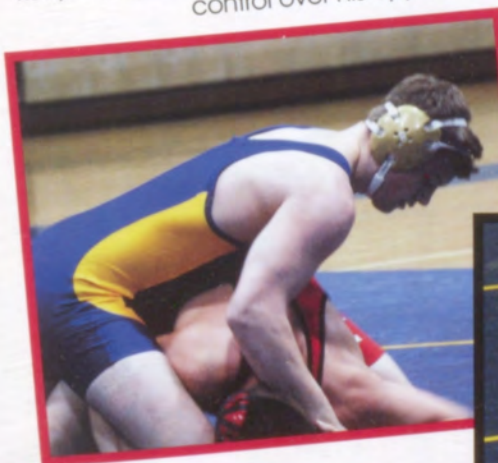

Back Points: Two points are given for having the opponent's back on the mat close to a pin for five seconds.

Scoring Points

Reversal: When on the bottom after a takedown, a wrestler is awarded two points when he gives himself the advantage.

Escape: When on the bottom after a takedown, a wrestler earns one point for freeing himself from his opponent.

Struggling to free his leg, JT Buda tries to keep his advantage by having dominant control over his opponent.

Sophomore Mike Kostas puts his opponent in the arm bar. This move allows him more control of his opponent's upper body.

After winning his match, the referee holds up Evan Brailey's hand signaling to the audience that he has won.

Getting Ready for Playoffs

Wake~Up Call

Pushing his opponent up against the glass, Brandon Bianco steals the puck away from the other team.

James Greeno intercepts a pass and puts Mt. Lebanon back on offense.

Ian Miller watches the activity in the opposite corner. Although the action is far away, Ian stays close to the net.

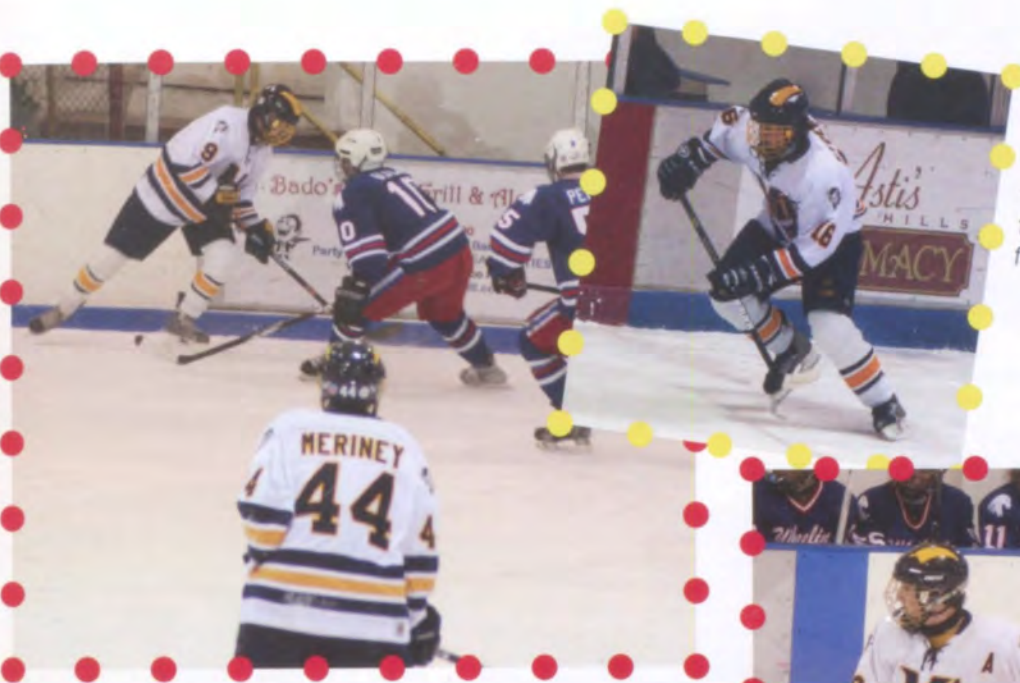

The annual outdoor hockey game was held February 5th at 7:30 in South Park. While some of them felt unprepared, they expected this game to be an easy win against their Bethel opponents. To prepare for the game, the team went along with their regular practices, but paid more attention than usual to their power play skills.

On game day, the forecast didn't look promising. Along with being anxious for the game, they also had to deal with playing the entire time in freezing cold weather. The guys warmed up by passing around and they tried to become as comfortable with the cold weather as they could.

The game started and they realized it would be a closer match than anticipated. Pat Petrasek, a senior, even said his "legs were shaking as I was sitting on the bench."; and that wasn't just because of the cold. Lebo ended up losing the game 2-0, but it made more of an impact than a normal loss.

"We were supposed to win and we took the game too lightly. It was a good wake-up call to show us how we need to play to get into playoffs", says senior James Greeno.

Doug Patrick fights against the boards while Christopher Meriney waits for the puck to emerge.

Flying down the rink, Mike Stoeher takes the puck in for a goal.

Dan Roman watches for the puck to come back over to the opponent's side so that he can pass it closer to the goal.

Alan Davis races down the ice to take control of the play.

As the puck changes possession, Bobby Kang stops quickly so he can gain control.

WHAT NO TEAM HAS DONE BEFORE

The 2008-2009 girls basketball season finally finished their "unfinished business." Fueled by their heartbreaking loss in the state championship last year, the girls were determined to redeem themselves.

In this historic season, the girls gained the titles of WPIAL and PIAA champs and a record of 31-0. Few teams have ever won WPIAL and PIAA titles in one year. Even fewer have accomplished this feat with an undefeated record. And no class AAAA girls team has ever won WPIAL and PIAA without a loss. The ultimate goal in the season was to get a banner in the gym. It would be the first banner ever hung for the girls team. They hung two banners.

Perhaps the most memorable moment in the season was the WPIAL championship game. Unfortunately, both the girls and boys final games were scheduled on February 28, the night of the Snowball dance. Thankfully, the administrators extended the dance from 11 p.m. to 1 a.m. to accommodate the players and fans attending the games. It was quite a sight to see the student section completely filled with kids in their finest dress.

I will forever remember that night we won our first WPIAL title in front of the most lively, obnoxious, and glamorous student section that ever was.

A Sweet Send-Off For State Champions!

Players signed autographs and received well wishes from elementary students before heading to the state championship game.

Junior Lauren Arbogast claps to celebrate the win as Coach Oldaker recognizes each member of the team with the state medal.

Boys basketball had an amazing season traveling all over the state for playoff games. It all started at the WPIAL quarterfinals when they played McKeesport at North Hills High School. They were behind the entire game, but it was salvaged by Paul Lang with a reverse lay up for a buzzer beater. The final score of the intense game was only 44-42. The semifinal round put the team against North Hills at Chartiers Valley. It was another close win by only one point with a final score of 36-35.

The WPIAL Championship was held at the Palumbo Center on the night of the Snowball Dance. Even with the momentum of a winning streak and support of many fans, the boys lost 60-51. Brian Lackner states "we just had a bad game. If we played the game we know how to play, we would have won." Although the boys lost WPIALS, they weren't done with their season.

The first round of state playoffs proved an easy win against Allderdice which led the team to a game against State College. Losing by two points with fifteen seconds to go, Paul Lang threw a lob pass to Deion Turman who was fouled. He made an 'and one' and also scored with his next shot.

It was an awesome win, but the boys had no time to celebrate.

The next nail-biting game was against Erie Cathedral Prep who was up by nine with three minutes to go. Evan Pierce rallied the team to victory with an amazing ten points in those remaining minutes.

The season unfortunately ended during the PIAA semifinals with a loss to the PIAA state champions, Pennwood. The boys rebounded quickly from the loss and are already thinking about the future. Evan Pierce says he is looking forward to "winning WPIALS and the state championship" next season.

Twenty Laps Can Take A While

Surviving the 500 Free

Waiting in the water for her event to begin, Megan Worden adjusts her swim cap one last time.

Abby Trozenski counts for a fellow swimmer during the 500. Having a counter allows the swimmer to focus on the technique and prevents accidental errors that would result in disqualification.

John Nappi takes a quick breath before returning to the water during one of the more challenging strokes, the breaststroke.

My 500 against Baldwin was probably one of the most defining moments for me this season. The 500 freestyle is the most time-consuming event at a high school meet. Twenty laps can take a while...

I signed up for the 500 thinking I could improve my time that way. Maybe I could be a distance swimmer, I thought. As the event loomed closer, I was apprehensive. I was so worried that my goggles would leak, or my cap would slide off, or some other catastrophe would occur and I would not be able to put in my best effort and win the race. As I stood on the block, I felt jittery, but as soon as I dove in, I became less anxious. I pushed on, even while getting tired...I was focused on one goal...get under 6:30.

I made it to my nineteenth well. I pushed off ahead of the girl in second place and sprinted down the pool. My legs were burning from kicking, but I was determined to reach my goal. After what seemed like an eternity, I had finished the race, and looked up at the clock. My final time was 6:16; I had reached my goal. I was ecstatic! I had taken eight seconds off of my time! I will always be, because of this day, proud to say that I survived the 500 free.

Maggie Donahoe roots on her team as they race down the lanes during the 100 Free. During a swimming meet, everyone is yelling, but at the beginning of each race, everyone is quiet so the swimmers can hear the buzzer.

Mike Rosen does a cheer for one of the members of the team, putting the "O" in Lebo. While not competing, the team is very encouraging and attentive during the other events.

Sam Wilshire comes to the end of the race as he uses a burst of energy to push him to the end.

Doing the backstroke, Aliza Asen flies down the pool to try and beat her fastest time so far.

The Woodland Hills team was undefeated, with three matches left by the time we played them. Being very courteous and sportsmen like, they came around and shook hands with everyone on our team and said good luck to us. It seemed like we had gotten off to a good start. Then, it was my turn to shoot. In rifle, each person only can shoot one time during each match. I felt a lot of pressure, because I wanted to do really well. I tried not to let the pressure affect me though, so I could shoot my best.

The shooting began and quickly ended which left me nervous to see my target. I ended up scoring a 100-10X on my targets, which is really good. An X stands for a bull's-eye, which is the best you can get. I was so proud of myself that I got a 100-10X and was a major factor in helping my team win against Woodland Hills. It was a really close match and we only beat them by two X's. Two X's in rifle is really only a couple of millimeters, so "close" has a different meaning than in most other sports.

Pdymorphonuclear... huh?

Practicing for the Science Bowl

A small group of math and science teachers were invited to an after school practice round for the Science Bowl. The Science Club members participating in the upcoming Bowl had practiced a few times already, but thought it would be fun to include a team of teachers in the final round. Practice rounds are held for competitors to become familiar with the format and scoring of the game. The rules are very strict and points can be awarded to opponents if mistakes like blurring or interrupting occur.

Questions are posed as open-ended or multiple choice and topics vary from math to chemistry to astronomy. Multiple choice questions are read only once and the answer choices are w, x, y and z. Questions are answered by only one person and if the person is wrong, no one else on the team can offer an answer. If a correct answer is given, the team is gets a bonus question and everyone on the team collaborates to find the answer.

The questions are challenging and because the range of material is so wide-spread, team members are assigned study topics to prepare. Teachers had no preparation time and so when questions about heat of sublimation, lattice energies, ohms and polymorphonuclear... something or other, were posed, it proved very challenging. It was an amazing showcase of how talented our Science Club is as most of the questions posed were answered correctly by someone in the room.

Katie Ratay listens carefully as Mrs. Harris reads a toss-up question during a practice round for the upcoming Science Bowl. Toss-up questions are ones that can be answered by either team.

Nick Brown, Lauren Kuntz, and Jerry Zang discuss the bonus problem they were awarded for correctly answering a toss-up question during the Science Bowl practice round.

Ja, ich spreche

In the play, Faith Andrews rumbles as thunder while Ellie Platt howls in the night, creating surprisingly realistic sound effects.

Meredith Andrews and Amy Paine also took part in creating the scenery, swaying as trees while Ryan Stevenson made some wind.

While dancing to Dschinghis Khan, Julie Bowers, Lauren Kuntz, Alyse Viggiano, and Sara Abbott break loose with some free-spirited dancing.

In the front row, Rena Sufrin, Grace Rosen, Lauren Kuntz, Alyse Viggiano, Sara Abbott, Tory Pasternak, Julie Balsamo and Maggie Tiedemann raise their arms with passion, shouting "hey" during Dschinghis Khan's song Moskau.

Maggie Tiedemann rocks out some Russian kicks adding to the authenticity of the group's performance.

The 1970s was filled with good times (Willy Brandt won the Nobel Prize and the end of the Vietnam War) and bad times (cold war and the Watergate scandal). During this rough period, the music group Dschinghis Khan brought the world together with its exotic hit "Moskau." This was the very song we performed in the German Day competition. With Russian-ish dance moves and a dated sense of style, our group set the bar for the following groups. Not only did we perform a song, but we also had a play. The play had many cheesy aspects in it. For instance, it was my job as the moon to act as if I would moon the audience when the narrator, Tony, told me to shine. Such humor made our group adorable as well as corny and cheesy - A cheddar popcorn snack, if you will, and because of this we were a success!

— Julie Balsamo

Many of the girls involved in German day wore colorful tights. They felt this added class and pizzazz to the performance, not to mention a distinguishing sense of style.

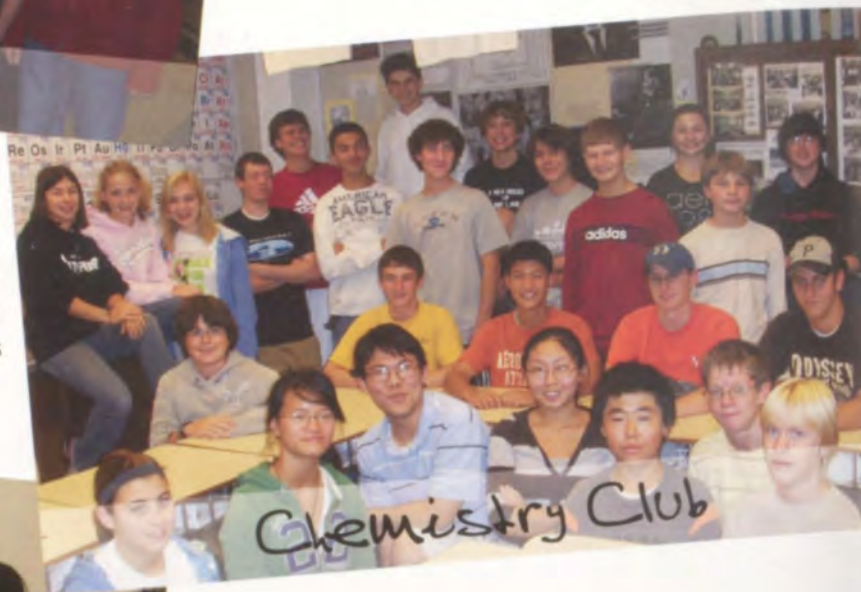

The dedicated group practices their dancing at 7:25 before school in Frau Grasso's classroom.

This summer, the yearbook staff went to Slippery Rock for camp. Every step of the way is an adventure from the bus ride to the final presentations. Since we got there around lunch, we decided we should order pizza. We looked for pizza numbers, but we found out that people in Slippery Rock can only order pizza after 7 o'clock. We snacked instead and headed to the Intro session. The first few sessions are full of suggestions for developing theme and then we have time to get real work done.

With our scrapbook-like theme, we decided to make letters for the division pages by taking pictures and cutting them out to create silhouettes. To do this, someone had to stand on a big wall so the camera was far enough away from those on the ground in the shape of letters.

During the day, we got all the letters done except the "G". We had to do this one in our dorm room because by the time we realized we had forgotten to do it, it was dark outside. Amanda and I were making this letter, but when we did it, it was not up to Mrs. Pessy's standards. Mrs. Pessy yelled "move your head over there!" as she fixed Amanda into what she wanted the "G" to look like. Finally, we got the picture and were able to relax with some Chinese take-out (the pizza never did work out for us).

We always remember crazy stories from yearbook camp, but this was one of the funniest moments in recent years.

With their headsets on and equipment ready, Ethan Yourd and Ellie Shaul check the light booth. Not only does the stage crew have to worry about construction and scenery, but lighting and sound as well.

Sarah Delulius takes a look at the construction of the staircase used in Auntie Mame. The crew has to check and re-check the set to make sure it is safe for the performers to use.

Freedom of Hands-On Activities

High Pressure and Good Times

Anthony Quach unscrews the light fixture from Auntie Mame to save for future performances. Each set looks so unique so many of the patrons don't notice the reused props.

Mark Loftus works on striking the set. Striking the set is crew vocabulary that means demolishing the set.

From the smallest details to the full sized staircases, the Stage Crew is responsible for every aspect of the sets for the various theatre shows. When given a production, Mr. Kuhar, Mr. Runquist, and Mrs. Schreiner collaborate to generate the feel of the set. Yet when it comes down to it, the students are the driving force behind the immense amount of work.

The creative aspect of the design relies solely on the students' artistic abilities; and though teachers lend a helping hand, each student generates ideas. But don't be fooled, you still get grades in Tech for putting in the effort. Everyone has their own specific job; there are painters, movers, and builders. Depending on how complicated the set is, it can take months to assemble.

The average techie puts in about nine hours a week, including class time. Others, like Molly Helring and those who have been in tech longer, can put in around 30 hours a week. With all of the effort, one of the worst parts of stage crew is the possibility for injuries, and the stress that comes during rehearsal and show weeks. Despite all this, the tech crew really loves what they do. Even under high stress and time limits, the crew manages to always have a good time, and they love the freedom of hands-on activities.

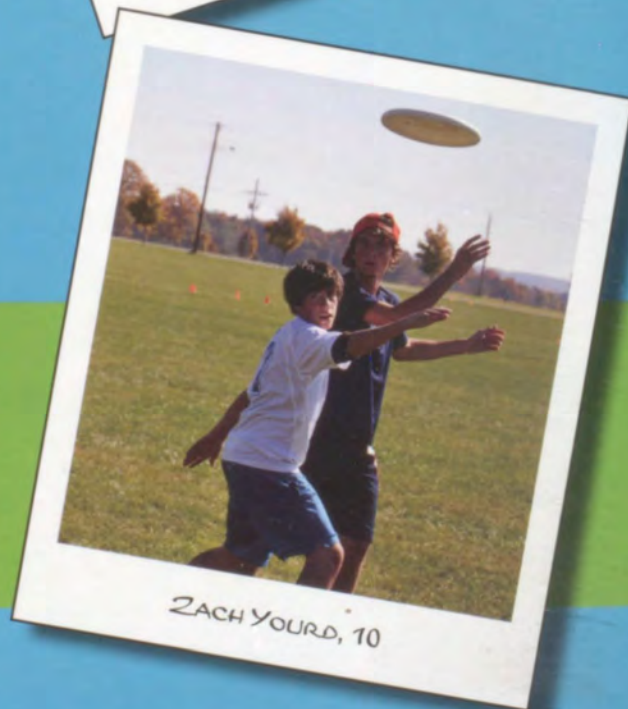

Using the screwdriver, Alex Fritz carefully strikes the set in order to salvage some of the materials.

Working Out The

NICO VIRGI AND DYLAN BURNS, 12

By bringing

Kinks

James Greeno runs and jumps up to catch the frisbee before the opponent tries to snatch it away.

The Mt. Lebanon team huddles before the game. Here they talk about what they want to do in the game and get all pumped up.

Dylan Burns jumps up through the air to catch the frisbee that would otherwise fly over his head and into the opponent's hands.

In the fall, the Ultimate Frisbee team begins conditioning and getting re-acclimated with each other. Each player brings new skills and techniques from pick-up and summer leagues to practice. As with any team, the biggest struggle at this time is unifying all of these skilled players and forcing them to work together as a team. One of the best ways to achieve this goal is to attend tournaments.

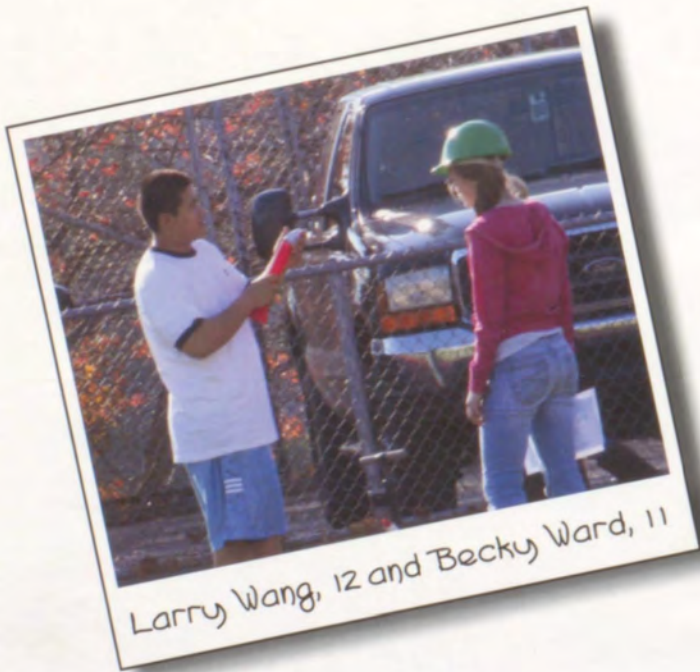

Frisbee tournaments provide a great environment for "working out the kinks" and also for team bonding. In November, Mt. Lebanon attended the Tidewater Tune-up in Williamsburg, VA. This tournament is meant to be a warm-up before the big spring season so that teams will know where they stand and what they have to work on.

Due to the amount of returning players and the individual skill of many players, Mt. Lebanon showed up at Tidewater confident that we would out-perform many of the other teams in our pool. Coming into our first game, we were all getting acclimated to the tournament environment, and therefore, it took us a while to get into the right flow with our passes and catches. By our third game, we were really working together as a strong team, and that gained us our first win of the day. This was a great win for our team because it showed that throughout the day, we had become a lot more comfortable with each other, and had begun to trust our skills and techniques.

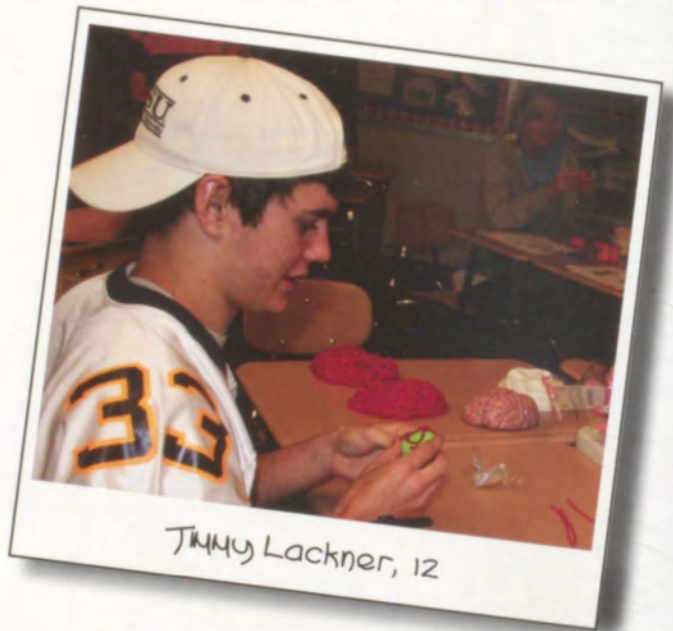

Throughout the rest of the tournament, we had wins and losses, but with each game, we gained many new techniques that were useful. Now, going into our spring season, we're going to use all of these newly found skills in order to go into all of our future tournaments and be comfortable during the beginning pull of the first game.

Getting Dirty

Man versus Machine

In Power Tech Lab, students get to work on actual cars and engines and even their own cars. I was so excited when my dad needed a brake job. I asked him if he would let my class and I work on it. After talking to Mr. Pitek, he decided to let us, and my dad brought it in so we could get to work.

The first day in the shop we had all four wheels off and were already inspecting the braking system. It was unbelievably rusty! It looked like we were going to have a lot of work to do.

When we got to working on the brakes, one of the first things he told us was to not afraid to get dirty. Although, little did I know how dirty we were going to get. On the day we did the most work, I had four cuts on my hands, and all the way up to my forearms was completely black. Still, it was one of the most fun things that I've done. Just taking things apart, seeing how they work, and putting them back together is so appealing to me. And being able to do it on my own car that will use my own work made it that much better.

Jayne Sullivan and Carlyne Pantlioni watch the rocket after it goes flying and record the data. The other group members measured the distance and yelled it back to the girls.

David Goodrick picks up his rocket to see how far it will go when he throws it as opposed to when the rocket launcher shoots it.

“Wrong Answer Try Again”

Blowing Minds Away

Sam Carl, Marilee Beuke, & Meghan Crowley, 11

Newton finished his laws of motion while he was in his early twenties. I like physics but I couldn't image doing anything like that. For the most part, labs don't seem to be very hard for me.

We have done labs where you roll a ball off an incline plane and try to stop it at a previously calculated point. Other labs have investigated friction using roll carts and felt-covered blocks. While these labs seemed relatively simple, my group struggled.

For the first couple of weeks of school, my lab group had to restart every single lab. After spending days on labs, we would not save work and we would lose everything. Another mishap was discovering that none of our data was collected correctly or it wasn't close enough to the master spread.

When you try things a million times but still get the “wrong answer, try again” from your teacher, labs get frustrating. I always try to do my best, but after so many times of redoing a lab...you get to wishing the teacher has the wrong answer, and he should try again.

-Julie Bowers

Ali Leger gets his rocket ready to launch. On the top of the stand is a pressure cap that the rocket must be pushed firmly into.

Ali Casiere uses the pump to build the pressure in the rocket. Once sufficient pressure is built up, the rocket will fly off.

Jacob Rambo pushes down on the handle as he watches the rocket almost ready to fly off.

When I first realized that the Baby Think it Over project was a requirement for my Child Development 1 class, I was seriously considering doing the other optional project to get out of it. I decided to do the baby project instead because I figured if it was only for one weekend, I could handle it.

In the week leading up to the project, I had mixed feelings on how the weekend would go. When it was finally Friday, I went to pick up my baby after school, and Mrs. Silver set it to start at 5:00 p.m. Five o'clock rolled around...and nothing happened. The babies don't always start on time so I figured I'd wait a couple hours. Six o'clock, seven o'clock, eight o'clock, and still nothing. I called Mrs. Silver and met her the next day to try and solve the problem. She quickly saw that my baby had been programmed wrong and that was why it never turned on!

She turned the baby on and...well, I sometimes wish she never had. It was better in some ways than I had imagined, but also a lot worse. It didn't cry very often during the day, but at night, the baby was horrible. On Sunday, I tried to go to bed early since I had been up most of the previous night, but the baby woke me up 12 times between then and Monday morning.

While I didn't really get much sleep, the baby taught me a lot about what kind of parent I will be. Most importantly, it taught me that I'm definitely not patient enough to be a mother right now.

Olivia Coffaro and Anne McGinty show their measuring and grating tools they used to make macaroni and cheese.

Raphael Nepo goes to take a look at the meat before it gets tenderized. Real-world demonstrations help show how very realistic the course is.

Toni Mancuso stirs the noodles with a spatula while they're on the stove so they cook all the way through.

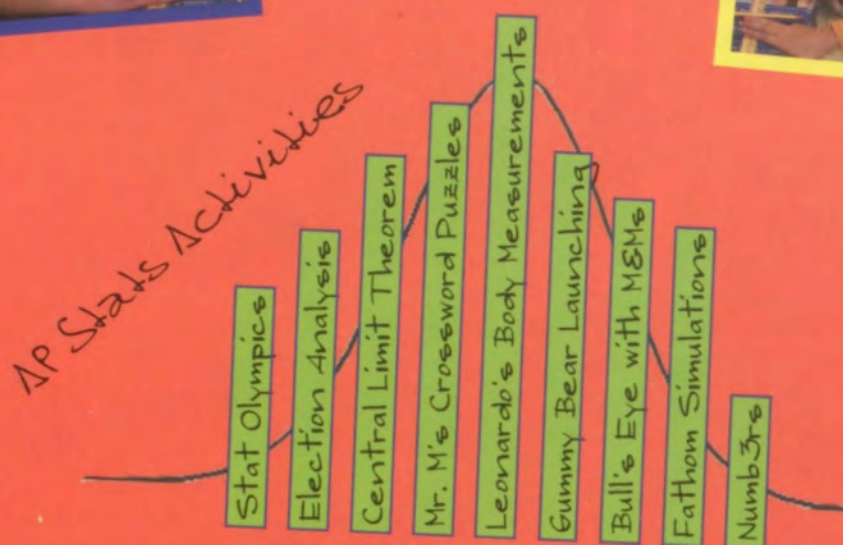

Zach Hoskin cleans off the counter after making delicious cookies.

Amanda Battaglia tapes the gummy bear launcher on a yard stick. For the second trials, the class established a set of procedures to try to reduce the variation in results between groups.

Emily Tant and Lisa Schnirel help to steady the launcher for their partners. The yard sticks slipped if not held down because of the force of the launch.

Fathom software was used about once per chapter to explore different concepts. Gabe Labelle uses the uniqueValues command to find out how many boxes of cereal he needs to purchase to get all 6 prizes.

Even though only one gummy bear was needed for the activity, each group was given a bowl to share. Sara Baicker-McKee watches as a group member finishes the preparations so the first bear can be launched.

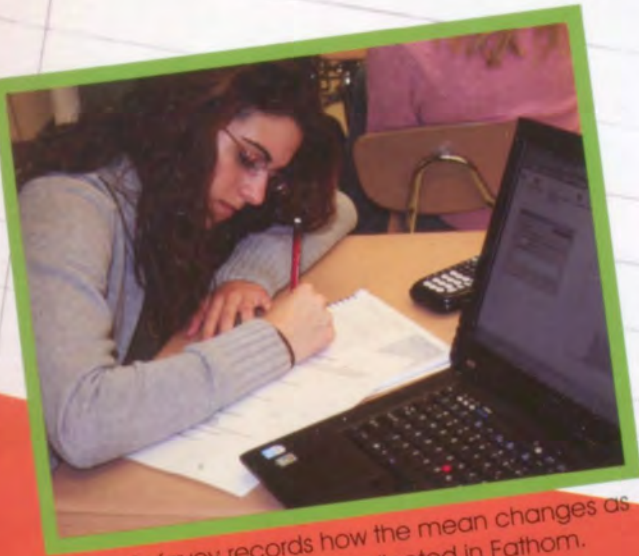

Sondra Tweed waits for a measurement to be recorded before she launches another bear. One person per team did the launching in order to keep the results consistent.

Unbearable Notes

MRS. PESSY, OUR 7TH PERIOD AP STATS TEACHER, UNDERSTANDS THAT NOTES ARE UNBEARABLE. LET'S FACE IT—EVERYONE HATES TAKING NOTES. BUT MRS. PESSY UNDERSTANDS THAT, AND IN AN EFFORT TO MAKE NOTE TAKING SLIGHTLY LESS MISERABLE, SHE LETS US PRINT OUT THE NOTES AHEAD OF TIME AND ALSO INCLUDES A FUNNY CARTOON WITH MATH RELATED JOKES IN EVERY POWER-POINT. SOME OF THESE HILARIOUS JOKES INCLUDE "MY AVERAGE STUDENT IS DOING GREAT: HALF OF MY CLASS THINKS $2+2=3$ AND THE OTHER HALF THINKS THAT $2+2=5$!" OKAY, SO THE JOKES AREN'T HILARIOUS, BUT THEY DO DESERVE A GOOD CHUCKLE. FOR THE FIRST FEW JOKES THOUGH, ROSS DIDN'T EVEN SMILE. FINALLY, BY THE THIRD CARTOON, ROSS SWALLOWED HIS PRIDE AND WHISPERED TO LISA THE TRUTH: "I DON'T GET IT! CAN YOU EXPLAIN IT TO ME?" FROM THEN ON ROSS WOULD START TO LAUGH A FEW SECONDS AFTER EVERYONE ELSE WHILE LISA EXPLAINED THE JOKES. BUT ONE DAY ROSS CAME IN WITH A SMILE AND WAS THE FIRST TO LAUGH AT THE CARTOON. WHEN ASKED HE ADMITTED, "I PRINTED OUT THE NOTES LAST NIGHT AND STUDIED THE JOKE."

Splattering Blood and Decomposing Bodies

The Cannot Forget Activities in F.S.

In Forensic Science, we learn interesting, yet graphic material. Splattering blood and decomposing bodies with a count of how many bugs are in the body are just a few examples. It is always fun, though, because most days we do hands-on activities.

On one such occasion, we were recreating blood splatter on the third floor hallway when my group suddenly missed the paper and artificial blood covered the very white wall. Red being quite a contrast to white, made the mistake easy to spot, and teachers who walked by were alarmed before we described the situation! It was a good time.

Another typical activity in Forensic Science is determining the age, sex, and race of various bones and matching fingerprints to a suspect.

Every activity we do is kept in our lab notebook, which will then help us to solve a crime scene at the end of a semester. This is why every activity we do in Forensic Science is a memorable one.

-Emily Burnette

Kelly McCafferty and Jackie Molinda measure a pelvis bone for one of the labs on the human bone structure.

Alexa Hagenbrock and Emily Burnette drop blood from different heights to make different blood splatter patterns.

These blood splatters may seem like a sign of murder, but these drops are only a part in forensic science project.

Senior Kara Viggiano stands on a desk ready to drop a blood sample. She will imitate the splattered blood on a piece of paper so she can analyze it for a particular crime scene.

Juniors Karla McGill and Emily Schlauch sit in the science hallway calculating the fascinating blood splatters on paper in another exciting class of forensic science.

Heading to AP Psychology everyday, I never really know what to expect. In my class, Ms. Raspanti always comes up with activities and funny videos to keep us interested in the topic of the day. To learn the different parts of the brain, Ms. Raspanti and Ms. Weyant had us create models of the brain using any materials we thought would work best, ranging from a baseball hat representing the shape of the brain, to a hollowed out pumpkin.

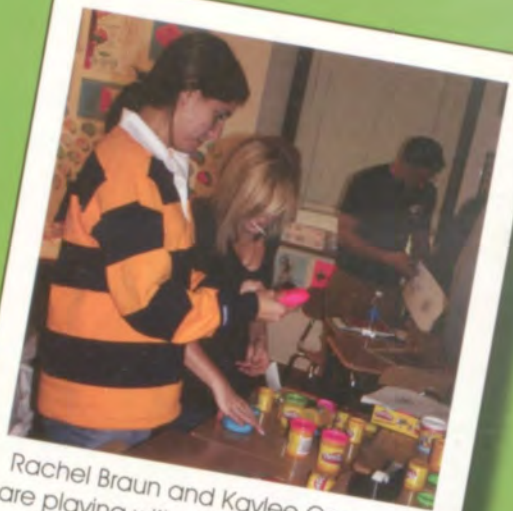

Our group used Rice Crispy Treats - a lot of them. We dyed the crispies for different lobes of the brain and shaped them together. The day before, we all took a trip to "Sweets From Heaven" in the mall and bought candy that looked like certain brain parts. We used Twizzlers to represent the blood vessels and a long gummi worm for the hippocampus.

Our hard work paid off and we ended up winning the competition. We were rewarded with some candy and pink brain erasers - very appropriate for the current topic. The brain project was a fun way to learn the different parts, and a break from PowerPoint presentations.

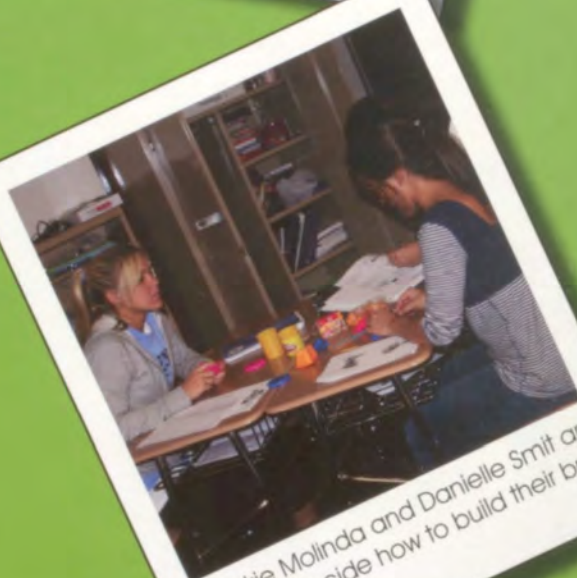

When we were learning about memories, she had us keep a dream journal (if we could remember our dreams) and a log of how long we slept. We even tried to solve puzzles in our sleep. We were given problems and told to read them right before we go to bed because it's been proven that some people's dreams help them solve the problems. I personally didn't solve mine, but there were a few successes.

Each topic we discussed was interesting in its own way and Ms. Raspanti always found a new way to engage us. We even took a trip to the boys' bathroom and watched a urinal flush to help us remember how a nerve sends messages throughout the body - not something a girl does everyday.

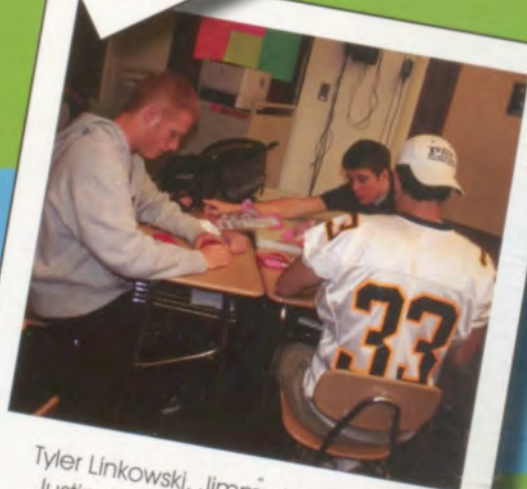

~ Maggie Blehar

Jackie Molinda and Danielle Smit are trying to decide how to build their brain.

Tyler Linkowski, Jimmy Lackner and Justin Jannetty gather around the desks with scattered brain parts.

Betsy Karras and Emily Saulsberry are pulling Twizzlers apart in preparation to create a required part of the brain.

Gavin McDonough, Tejas Paranjpe, Max Simone and Tommy Cullen are debating what items they should use to make the brain.

Natalie Ricci and Natalie Olivo are busy with the difficult task of building an accurate brain out of everyday materials.

Brain power

This is the table of brains where the creators put their masterpieces in order to be judged. As you can see, many different items were used in creating the brains. There are melons, pumpkins, chocolate, playdough, and various other sweets and tidbits. Every model also has the different required parts of the brain labeled clearly.

The Daily Dance Routine

I'm always the first there in the dressing room. Then the others soon join me, and the room fills with easy conversation. We enter the mirrored dance studio and break up into smaller groups.

When CeCe Kapron comes in, we all move to center stage for warm-ups. Our class just finished the ballet unit and we're now learning jazz. I like the jazz better because the music is more current and dances are a lot more fun to do.

Around the middle of the period, Mrs. Kapron complains that we talk too much, and then moves on to teach more dance combinations. Sometimes she lets us out late to change. So we sprint down the hall like a stampede of runners in leotards, shorts and ballet shoes.

The conversations from the beginning of the period continue naturally. Everyone laughing and joking. Then we walk through the heavy door of the changing room and disperse into the almost empty hallway.

I may not always remember all of these details, but being excited to go to dance class and the friends I've made there will stay with me forever.

Sarah Kabbert practices her left leap with an arch for the Dance Daytimes.

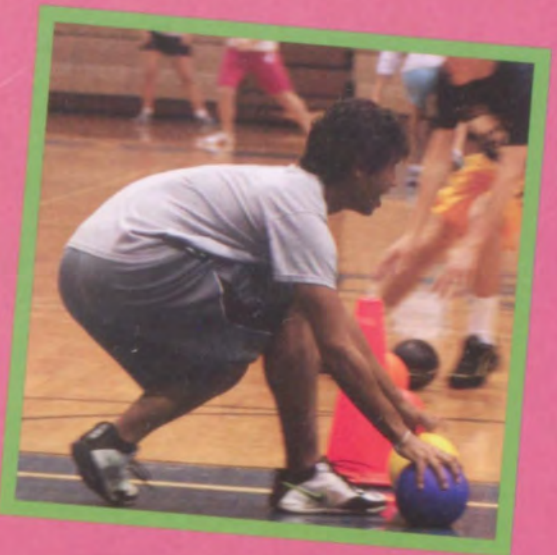

Coming out of a turn, Elizabeth Galloway and Brenna Smit concentrate on the next step. Dance Company practices after school throughout December to prepare for the group performances at Daytimes.

In an exciting game of dodgeball, Darden Carpico surveys the positions of his opponents before throwing.

Reaching down to grab the ball, Sam Lagattuta glances up to make sure that none of the balls were hurling towards him.

Haley Bendis reaches to bump the ball during a game of volleyball. It's sometimes difficult to bump-set-spike in gym class, but everyone tries their best.

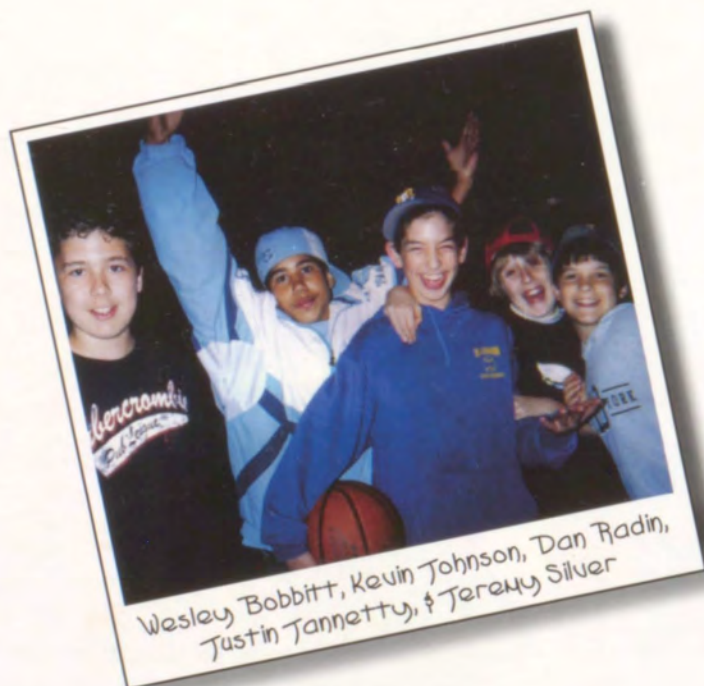

With her left foot facing the other way, Meghan Donahoe shows off a very hard move called a front extension tilt.

Allison Lazo-Pacheco and Brittany Rodgers work on timing for a group dance number.

We've always been so proud of you! We love you Matthew!
Mom, Dad, Stacy, and Harry

Dear Sally,
Since the beginning you have been our creative, beautiful, little girl... whether with markers or lipstick! We love you so much and are so proud of you. May God bless you and keep you, guide you and lead you, everywhere you go and in everything you do.
Love,
Mom, Dad, & Lee

"You have brains in your head.
You have feet in your shoes.
You can steer yourself,

We Love You.
Dad, Mom, Kyle & Steve

Dear Katie,

Always trust your instincts, they have never steered you wrong.

We are so proud of your confidence, loyalty and independence.

Love,
Mom, Dad & Meghan

Logan,
You will always be our PLAYER 1. We have loved you since even before the first time you held a controller in your hand. We have loved you through Sonic, TMNT, Power Rangers, Battle Toads, Star Wars, Pokemon, Mario, Zelda, Final Fantasy, Halo, Guilty Gear, and even Pokemon again. We love you even when your server is not down. You always make us smile. Like school, you get life with so little effort. Keep that sense of balance always. We are so proud of you.
All our love always,
Mom, Dad, Callie and Caroline

Julie,
When you were little I gave you a nickname that you didn't like.
You said "Don't call me that, call me precious Sweetheart baby doll."
So we did!
Love you always,
Mom & Dad

Jill,

We're so proud of you! You are a strong and beautiful person who can do anything you put your mind to. Never give up your youthful enthusiasm.

Dear Kevin,
Congratulations! You have your whole life ahead of you. Remember to find something every day to laugh or smile about.
And, as Groucho once said, "Be yourself, everyone else is already taken."
Love,
Mom and Dad

Brooks,
You have always been the "life of the party" and brought much fun and laughter to us all.
Continue to be an individual; follow your heart and you will be a success.
We are so proud of you and love you very much. Mom, Dad and Rob

NICK + CHRIS

WE ARE SO VERY PROUD OF BOTH OF YOU. THE DETERMINATION, DRIVE AND PASSION YOU'VE DISPLAYED IN ALL YOU'VE DONE WILL BE A STRONG FOUNDATION FOR FUTURE BRIGHT AND SUCCESSFUL. CONGRATULATIONS ON ALL OF YOUR ACHIEVEMENTS. CONTINUE TO WORK HARD AND GO AFTER ALL LIFE HAS TO OFFER. STAY BEST FRIENDS AND STICK TOGETHER! OUR UNENDING LOVE AND PRAYERS GO WITH YOU WHEREVER YOU ARE.

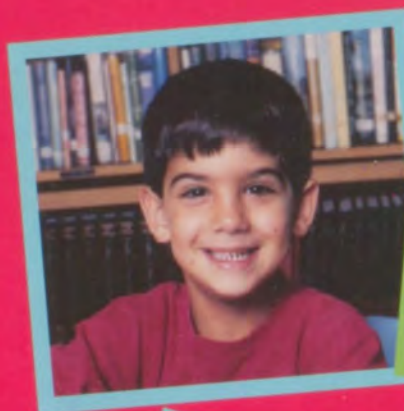

Paul,
Watching you grow up has given us such joy; we are so proud of you!
May all of your future
dreams come true.

Ellen,
You are bright, beautiful and very funny. These qualities draw people to love and admire you.
When you were young I thought that you would always limit your diet to buttered noodles. Now I can see that you will not limit yourself to average pursuits but will accomplish great things and have an extraordinary future.

Our darling Toni,
In fancy sneakers, sparkley boots and high heeled shoes, you walked out of our dreams and into our hearts!
With headbands and hairbows, you became the sunshine of our days.
With a cute button nose, rosey sweet lips and that perfect little beauty mark, you've sprinkled our moments with bright stars and moon beams.
You came into our world smiling and styling. And you've been doing it ever since!
We love you for those reasons and so many, many more!
You, our brown-eyed girl!
May happiness be yours...always!
All our love, XOXO Mommy, Daddy & Vince

Hannah,

It seems like yesterday that you were the little girl who refused our help to open the heavy door to Kindergarten. We know now that you have become a young woman who will face life's challenges with the same strength and independence.
We love you.
Mom & Dad

Max,

It seems like yesterday that this picture was taken. You are now grown up and going to college. How time flies. If you put your mind to it you can achieve all of your dreams. May our love follow you wherever you go.

your hard work, dedication and all your accomplishments.
We love you!

Your biggest fans,
Mom, Dad, Kenzie & Mara

Your name defines you- you have truly been a gift to us. You reflect Passion and Strength like no one else. Thanks for all the lessons you have taught us and all the happiness you bring. You know dad is exceedingly proud.

Love you everyday!
Mom, Victoria & Erika

Dan -
Now that you're graduated from
The "high school of your choice", we have all the confidence in your continued success.

We're behind you all the way!
Love,
Mom, Dad, Jacqueline, Veronica

Martin,
It's hard to believe your high school graduation is here. There haven't been many dull moments with you around. Remember Danielle pushing you down the stairs, bringing home a strange "pet" from football practice, "driving" the jeep and living in Chicago without Mom. We are very proud of the young man you have become. Let your persistence and determination take you far and keep you smiling.
Love,
Rando, Myno and Danielle

TongTong,
Your beautiful smile lights up our hearts.
May your future be filled with health and happiness.
We know you will be a great success!
We are so proud of you!
Love,
Mom and Dad

Amanda
We are so proud of you and all your achievements. It's been a joy watching you grow up.
Always reach high and enjoy life.
All love, love,
mom + Dad

Congratulations Sean!
Your gifts are plenty, something that will become increasingly more clear as you progress through life. You have a heart the size of Texas, a smile that brightens a room, humor that has left us gasping for air with laughter, and a special way of loving that has won many hearts! We are more proud of the individual you have become than words can say.
We love you,
Mom, Dad, Clara, Adam & Erin

As the year comes to an end, there are many things that stick out. Maybe it was when your friend brought you cupcakes for your birthday, or when your team won States and your coach handed you a gold medal for all of your accomplishments.

Each of the memories create moments that you will never forget. You will tell these stories at your 50th reunion and still laugh with friends.

It was in these moments that we found ourselves, accomplished our goals, and achieved greatness. As we move on from this experience, we will always remember that OUR MOMENTS started here.

Yearbook is ballin'! Here's some stuff we love about yearbook: all of the food in the yearbook office, the fun, sleeping through yearbook camp, sleeping on the couch in study hall, coming into school when no one else is here, dance parties, chinese food, Beninana and Ritas, party hats and sparkler candles, Alex and Jordan, changing the backgrounds on the computer, unknowns and forward children, boys, Brandon Dibora, gossip and going symbols, embarrassing pictures page, when Pessy sing with Smith songs, streamers, Boozel and Wessen-fun, Cheryl, crazy lady extracting people, we don't like: new people, the cover artist, bad pictures on the computer and poster and page, giving parents, creepy laughing pens, making friends or dancing in the morning, people changing our pages, dining halls, awkward boys in the office, actually putting in effort. We miss you all Alex, year!

MOMENTS

Thanks for the memories! Camp was always fun - and so were the yaad parties - I can't believe you remembered to get a big hat - I still have it at home! know that I appreciate how hard you have always worked. You rearrange your schedules to take pictures, spend your study halls in the office, and call everyone possible who could help with stories. All of your efforts help to make an amazing book! Sorry for the yelling about deadlines and keys, but I was nervous! I hope the yoga, smelly couch and food helped to relieve the tension. I'll miss all of you - you are the reason I enjoyed working as a yearbook advisor - for 6 years! Good luck and visit me! Mrs. Pessy

Thanks and Patrons

Thanks to our patrons listed below for their generous donations - you've helped us create an all-color book, offer free names-on-cover, and supplements for all orders, without major price increases. Thanks to the Blue Devil Club and all of the other parents who helped with sports pictures. Thanks to Mrs. Henderson and the Student Activities Office for offering student life pictures. Thanks to the many organization sponsors for not speaking ill of Mrs. Pessy even though she harassed them endlessly for club pictures! Thanks for Michael Good at Photographic Trends for his wonderful senior portraits and our stadium picture. Thanks to Mrs. Hoffmann and Dr. Davis for checking all of our proofs - all 264 pages. Thanks to Mrs. Lux for help with orders and deposits. And finally, thanks to the student body - we needed pictures, stories and more and we appreciate everyone who helped. We hope you enjoy it.

ELECTING CHANGE ►

Using the campaign slogan, "Change we can believe in," Democrat Barack Obama won the 2008 election to become the 44th president of the United States. Obama, 47, is the first African-American to lead the nation. After his election, Obama quickly began selecting his cabinet, including asking New York Sen. Hillary Clinton, who he defeated to win the Democratic nomination, to be secretary of state.

THE TECHNOLOGY STUMP ◀

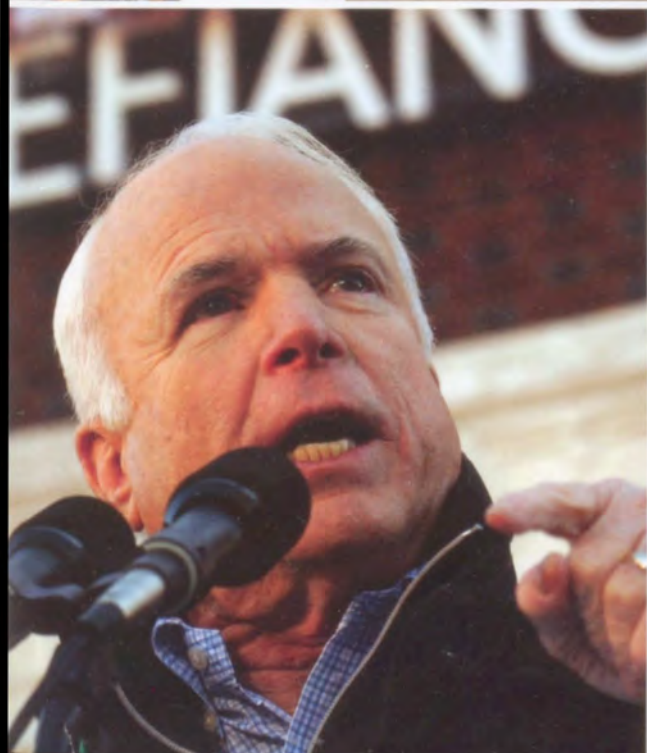

Campaigning style changed with Obama's use of the internet. Obama had about four million "friends" on Facebook and had collected about 10 million email addresses. He used texting to announce his vice presidential pick – Sen. Joe Biden of Delaware. His campaign website morphed into a transition website within 24 hours of his election.

MAVERICK RIDES OFF ◀

To win the election, Obama, a Democrat, beat Sen. John McCain, a Republican from Arizona. McCain's running mate was Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin, the first woman to run as a Republican vice presidential candidate.

LIVE FROM NEW YORK... ◀

Nobody took advantage of the election season more than the sketch comedy show Saturday Night Live, which brought back former cast member Tina Fey due to her resemblance to VP nominee Sarah Palin and rode Fey's impersonation to its highest ratings in years.

HISTORIC ELECTION ►

To win the Democratic nomination, Obama defeated New York Sen. Hillary Clinton, the former first lady and the person considered the front-runner of her party. The highly charged campaign included five other serious Democrat candidates. The Republican field was even bigger, with McCain coming from behind to best eight others to win his party's nomination.

DRAWING A CROWD ▼

People came to hear Obama speak during the campaign. His Democrat Party nomination acceptance speech was held at Invesco Stadium, about two miles from the convention center in Denver, to enable more than 70,000 people to attend. On election night, Obama held a victory rally in Grant Park, attended by 225,000 people.

BEEN THERE, DONE THAT

Jenna and Barbara Bush, the daughters and granddaughters of President George H.W. Bush and President George H. Bush, wrote a letter to Malia and Sasha Obama that included this advice:

- Get hugs from Ramsey, smiles from "Smiley" and talk football with Buddy, three of the White House ushers.
- Slide down the solarium banister.
- Have swimming parties.
- Get comfort from your pets.

PARTY HARDY ◀ ▼

Washington, D.C., was packed with more than two million people on Jan. 20 for the historic inauguration of the nation's first African-American president. Despite the cold weather and the need to huddle together, the crowds remained enthusiastic. Obama took the oath of office with his hand on the Bible used by President Abraham Lincoln during his first swearing-in ceremony.

SEEKING VOTES ▲

Candidates would do a lot of things on the campaign trail in pursuit of votes. Obama got winded playing basketball with the University of North Carolina's team. Mike Huckabee, a Republican candidate, played bass in his rock band Capitol Offense and even took a turn trying to rope a fake steer at the Fort Worth Stockyards.

VOTERS TURNED OUT ▲

In the general election, a record 127 million votes were cast, with about 31.7 million voting early for the first time in 30 states. However, as a percentage of voters, turnout was about 61%, versus the record of 67% in 1960. Long lines to vote, either early or on Nov. 4, were orderly. Lines were also orderly the next day as many people snatched up newspapers carrying the results.

POLITICIANS BUSTED ►

Illinois Gov. Rod Blagojevich faced federal corruption charges for allegedly trying to sell or trade Barack Obama's Illinois senate seat. U.S. Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska was convicted of trying to conceal home renovations and other gifts from an oil industry contractor. And Detroit Mayor Kwame Kilpatrick pled guilty to obstruction of justice and resigned amid a sex scandal.

Jobs Center

WHO ARE YOU? ▲

The fight against insurgents continued in Iraq and Afghanistan. While violence decreased in Iraq, Defense Secretary Robert Gates revealed plans to send more U.S. troops to Afghanistan to battle the Taliban. Deployment of American troops meant tearful farewells and joyful homecomings. Sometimes, servicemen returned to meet new family members.

GRIM ECONOMY ▲

The faltering economy instilled fear worldwide. Americans felt the recession as home foreclosures, job layoffs and food prices increased. The stock market drop of 44% in the past year stripped college and retirement investments for many people. The federal government in October approved a $700-billion bailout plan for the nation's financial system to try to get the economy moving. In February, President Obama signed a $787-billion economic stimulus bill to pump more money into the economy.

GREENING OF AMERICA ◀

Going green affected several aspects of daily life. Reusable shopping bags became a fashion statement. Buying locally produced food saved on gasoline and meant fresher tastes. And at home, more people began buying compact fluorescent light bulbs (CFL) as incandescent bulbs will be phased out in a few years. CFLs save energy and add a new shape to lighting fixtures.

MAKE IT TWO FOR TIM ▼

Quarterback Tim Tebow led the Florida Gators to their second college football national championship in three years, when they defeated Oklahoma in the BCS title game, 24-14. However, the championship did not come without debate. Several other teams – including Utah, Texas and USC – continued to question why there was no playoff system and staked their own claim to the crown.

GAS UP, GAS DOWN ▼

After a record high of $4.11 per gallon on July 17, gasoline prices were down 60% to a five-year low of $1.63 during the last week of December, according to the American Automobile Association. Prices began rising again in early 2009. Despite the lower prices, Americans continued to drive less.

BACK IN THE SPOTLIGHT ▲

The comeback of actor Robert Downey Jr. from a serious drug problem became complete this year when he landed the lead role in the hit movie Iron Man. Downey followed it up with another critically praised role in the comedy Tropic Thunder.

A MORE URGENT NEED ▲

Rising oil prices and continued climate changes made the search for alternative, renewable sources of energy a more prevalent topic of discussion. Solutions like wind farms, using large turbines, became more common.

WHO CAN YOU TRUST? ▲

Investors ranging from small charities to major international banks appeared to have lost about $50 million in a fraudulent investment allegedly devised by a former chairman of the Nasdaq Stock Market. Bernard Madoff, 70, was charged with securities fraud in what might be one of the biggest fraud cases ever.

GAMES TO REMEMBER ▼ ▶

American swimmer Michael Phelps made history at the Summer Olympics in Beijing, China, by becoming the first athlete ever to win eight gold medals at one Olympics. During his breathtaking week in the pool, seven of Phelps' eight victories were new world records.

But Phelps was not the only American making history at the Beijing games. Kobe Bryant led the men's basketball team, dubbed the "Redeem Team," to a gold medal and helped vindicate U.S. basketball after a poor showing four years ago. Nastia Liukin won the women's gymnastics all-around and tied the American record for most gymnastics medals at one Olympics with five.

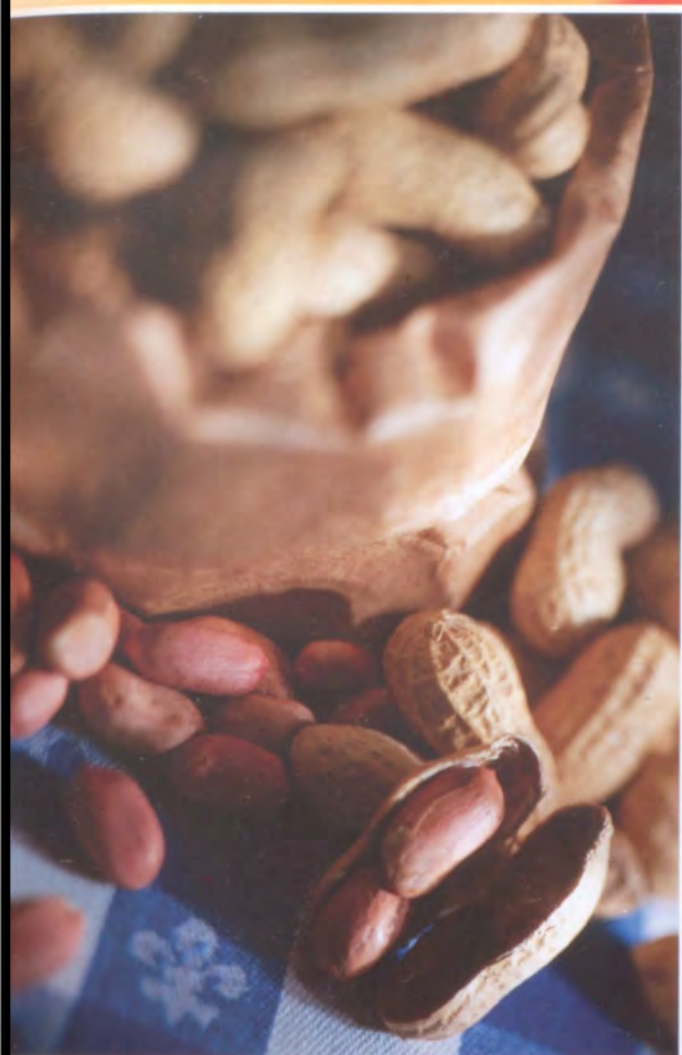

Perhaps the fastest-rising star outside of Phelps' pool was Jamaica's Usain Bolt, who ran a 9.69 in the 100 meters to win the gold and shatter the previous world record.

2008 OLYMPICS MEDAL COUNT

	TOTAL	GOLD	SILVER	BRONZE
1 - United States	110	36	38	36
2 - China	100	51	21	28
3 - Russia	72	23	21	28
4 - Great Britain	47	19	13	15
5 - Australia	46	14	15	17

PEANUT WITHDRAWAL ◀

Peanut butter products were recalled in 43 states after salmonella was found in peanut paste made in a Georgia plant. At least six people died and more than 485 people got sick. Peanut paste is a product used widely in snack foods, leading to goodies such as crackers, cookies, nutrition bars and ice cream leaving store shelves. Most peanut butter brands were not affected.

TIME FOR A SWITCH ▼

Governments around the world, including the United States, continued the mandated switchover from analog television broadcasting to digital. In the U.S., an original February 2009 deadline was pushed back to June when Congress deemed that millions of people weren't ready. The switch to digital was being done to allow for more advanced services, like high-definition TV, and to free up radio spectrum bandwidth.

NEW NUMBER ONE ▲

Rafael Nadal finally completed his quest to replace Roger Federer as the number one tennis player in the world. The rivalry reached a new level at Wimbledon, where Nadal defeated Federer in a five-set, five-hour classic that some sportswriters called one of the greatest matches of all time. Six months later, Nadal did it again when he beat Federer in another five-set marathon to win the Australian Open.

CONTAMINATED FORMULA KILLS ◀

In China, several babies died and more than 12,000 were hospitalized after drinking baby formula contaminated with melamine. Melamine also was found in chocolate and other products exported from China to other countries, including the United States. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration began limiting imports of Chinese dairy products until they were free of melamine.

DNA SELF TEST ▼

Over-the-counter home DNA tests could now be found at the local drugstore. Kits and results could be purchased for as little as $200, and all they required was a swab of saliva. However, debates raged on the accuracy of the tests, as well as the ethical concerns.

GREEN MACHINE ▼

The Boston Celtics re-emerged as the dominant team in basketball when they defeated the L.A. Lakers to win the 2008 NBA title. Then, the Celtics picked up where they left off by beginning the new season winning 27 of their first 30 games.

NO JOKE ▲

Anchored by the haunting, tragic final performance of the late Heath Ledger as the Joker, Batman sequel The Dark Knight drew rave reviews and shattered box office records. Earning more than $500 million, The Dark Knight became one of the most commercially successful American movies ever made.

ROCKETS AND RETALIATION ◀

Israel declared war with Hamas, the Islamic militant group that rules Gaza, in an effort to stop continued rocket attacks from Gaza into southern Israel. Israeli officials said they were targeting militants in its air and ground assault of Gaza, while Hamas said it would continue to defend its people against Israeli aggression. The Israeli offensive lasted 22 days.

EPIC WIN ◀

Despite playing on what was later found to be a torn knee ligament and a stress fracture in his left leg, Tiger Woods played through the pain and won his third U.S. Open title, defeating Rocco Mediate in a playoff. Afterwards, surgery on the leg forced Woods to miss the remainder of the season, the first extended absence of his pro career.

CREATIVE CLASSROOM FUNDRAISING ◀

Needing money to print tests, a California calculus teacher began selling ads on his quizzes, tests and exams. Tom Farber of Rancho Bernardo High School sold ad space on the bottom of the first page to parents and businesses. Parents and students enjoyed the ads, but Farber said he did not plan on using the fund-raising method permanently.

SULLY SAVES THE DAY ▲

An experienced pilot, Chesley "Sully" Sullenberger, was hailed a hero when he crash-landed his US Airways plane into the Hudson River in New York after the engines failed during the takeoff ascent. All 155 passengers and crew on board survived by escaping onto the wings, where ferries and U.S. Coast Guard boats rescued them. Birds were initially blamed for blowing the engines.

PHOENIX LANDING ▲

NASA's Phoenix spacecraft became the sixth vehicle to make a successful landing on Mars. Phoenix conducted more than five months of experiments before losing contact, more than expected, and discovered the presence of ice on the red planet.

STILL ON TOP ◀

Despite ratings being down slightly, American Idol was still the most watched show on TV, averaging more than 27 million viewers a week. David Cook was chosen the winner of the 7th season, and changes were made for the show's 8th season when producer Kara DioGuardi was added as a fourth judge.

ANOTHER TROUBLING ADMISSION ►

New York Yankees third baseman Alex Rodriguez, a 12-time All Star and three-time MVP, shocked many when he confirmed published reports indicating he had used performance enhancing drugs during the 2001-03 seasons. Rodriguez's admission came after news surfaced that he had failed a confidential drug test in 2003. Despite his apology, Rodriguez's legacy was immediately debated.

PRESERVING THE PLANET ►

The Global Seed Vault was built in Norway, where it holds and preserves thousands of seed types from around the globe should a major catastrophe strike the planet.

DRIVER DISTRACTION ▲

Investigators said a Los Angeles Metrolink train engineer appeared to have been texting on the job prior to a crash that killed 25 people and injured 130 in September. It was not immediately known whether the engineer was texting at the time of the crash, however, investigators said the brakes were not applied before the crash.

MILLIONS GO SLUMMING ►

Slumdog Millionaire, the story of an inner-city teen from India who strikes it rich on a popular TV game-show, won Best Picture at the Oscars. The rest of the nominees included Milk, The Reader, Frost/Nixon and The Curious Case of Benjamin Button.

HARD TO STOP 48 ►

Jimmie Johnson became just the second driver in NASCAR history to win three consecutive season championships, when he put together a 2008 that included seven race wins and five runner-up finishes.

SIX-BURGH ▼

The Pittsburgh Steelers ended a memorable Super Bowl XLIII when wide receiver Santonio Holmes grabbed the game-winning touchdown in the corner of the end zone with less than a minute left in the game to defeat the Arizona Cardinals, 27-23. It was the sixth Super Bowl victory for the Steelers, the most for any NFL team.

SOME JUICY GOSSIP ◀

Gossip Girl, the TV drama based on the series of books of the same name, continued to get strong ratings from the teen crowd. There were even rumors that the show, centered on the lives of socialite New York City teens, could lead to spin-offs.

JUICE GOES TO JAIL ◀

Former Heisman trophy winner O.J. Simpson began serving at least nine years in prison for his conviction in the robbery of sports memorabilia from dealers in a Las Vegas hotel room in 2007. The trial garnered fewer headlines than his 1995 trial, in which he was acquitted of the murders of his ex-wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and Ron Goldman.

FAR-REACHING STORM ►

Hurricane Ike devastated Galveston, Texas, when it hit Sept. 13, and caused damage and power outages in at least 10 states from Texas to Ohio. At least 34 people were still missing at the end of January. Also in the wake of the storm, the southeast U.S. experienced grave gasoline shortages.

NOT QUITE SASQUATCH ▼

Two Georgia men, Rick Dyer and Matthew Whitton, fooled much of the country when they claimed to have found the infamous Bigfoot in the northern Georgia hills. The two even went as far as producing a deceased body, fooling several news outlets and collecting reward money. Very quickly, the body was found to be a costume and the entire story to be a bad hoax.

PARENTS ABANDON CHILDREN ▲

Nebraska's legislature revised its Safe Haven Law after parents abandoned 35 children, some of them teens. All states have Safe Haven laws regarding infants, but Nebraska's original law allowed parents to drop children as old as 18 without fear of prosecution. Some parents came from other states, including Teri Martin of Michigan, who faced parental termination rights in Michigan.

NOBODY BETTER THAN ANNIKA ►

Annika Sorenstam announced her retirement from competitive golf. She ended her career as the winningest female golfer of all time with 90 career tournament wins, including 10 LPGA major titles.

FINDING AN AUDIENCE ◀

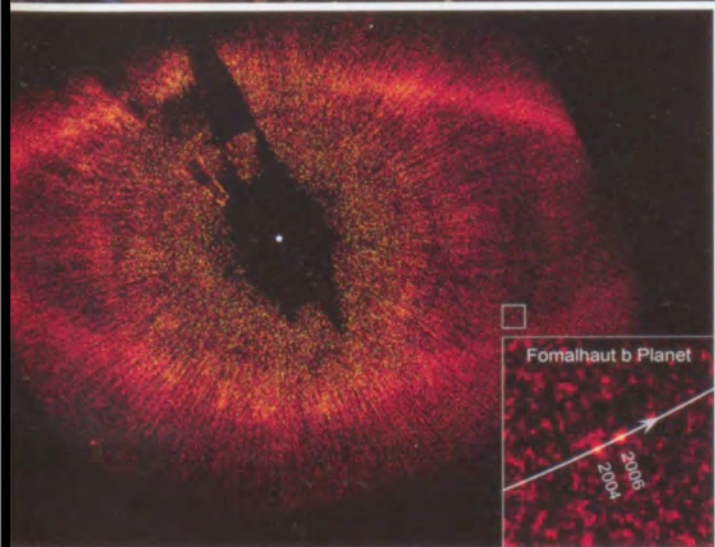

For the second straight year, critically acclaimed sitcom 30 Rock won Outstanding Comedy Series at the Emmy Awards and began to slowly gain in the ratings, possibly getting a boost from the fame star Tina Fey gained during the presidential election.

ONE LAST PITCH ▼

After 85 years, the original Yankee Stadium closed its doors to make way for the new stadium being built for the New York Yankees. The final game was played in the "House That Ruth Built" on Sept. 21, 2008, against the Baltimore Orioles, with the Yankees winning 7-3.

SETBACK FOR THE LHC ▼

European scientists build the Large Hadron Collider in Switzerland, a giant particle accelerator designed to study advanced physics and unlock many of science's mysteries. Before the LHC's launch, conspiracy theorists speculated that the machine's power would create a disaster such as a black hole. While that did not happen, the LHC did suffer a malfunction shortly after becoming operational, which delayed the project's work.

THEY'RE OUT THERE ◀

Astronomers have known for several years that exoplanets, or planets outside of our solar system, existed. But it was not until this year that a group of astronomers from the U.S. and Canada were able to produce photographs of two of these planets in actual visible light.

A BOLD EXPERIMENT ◀

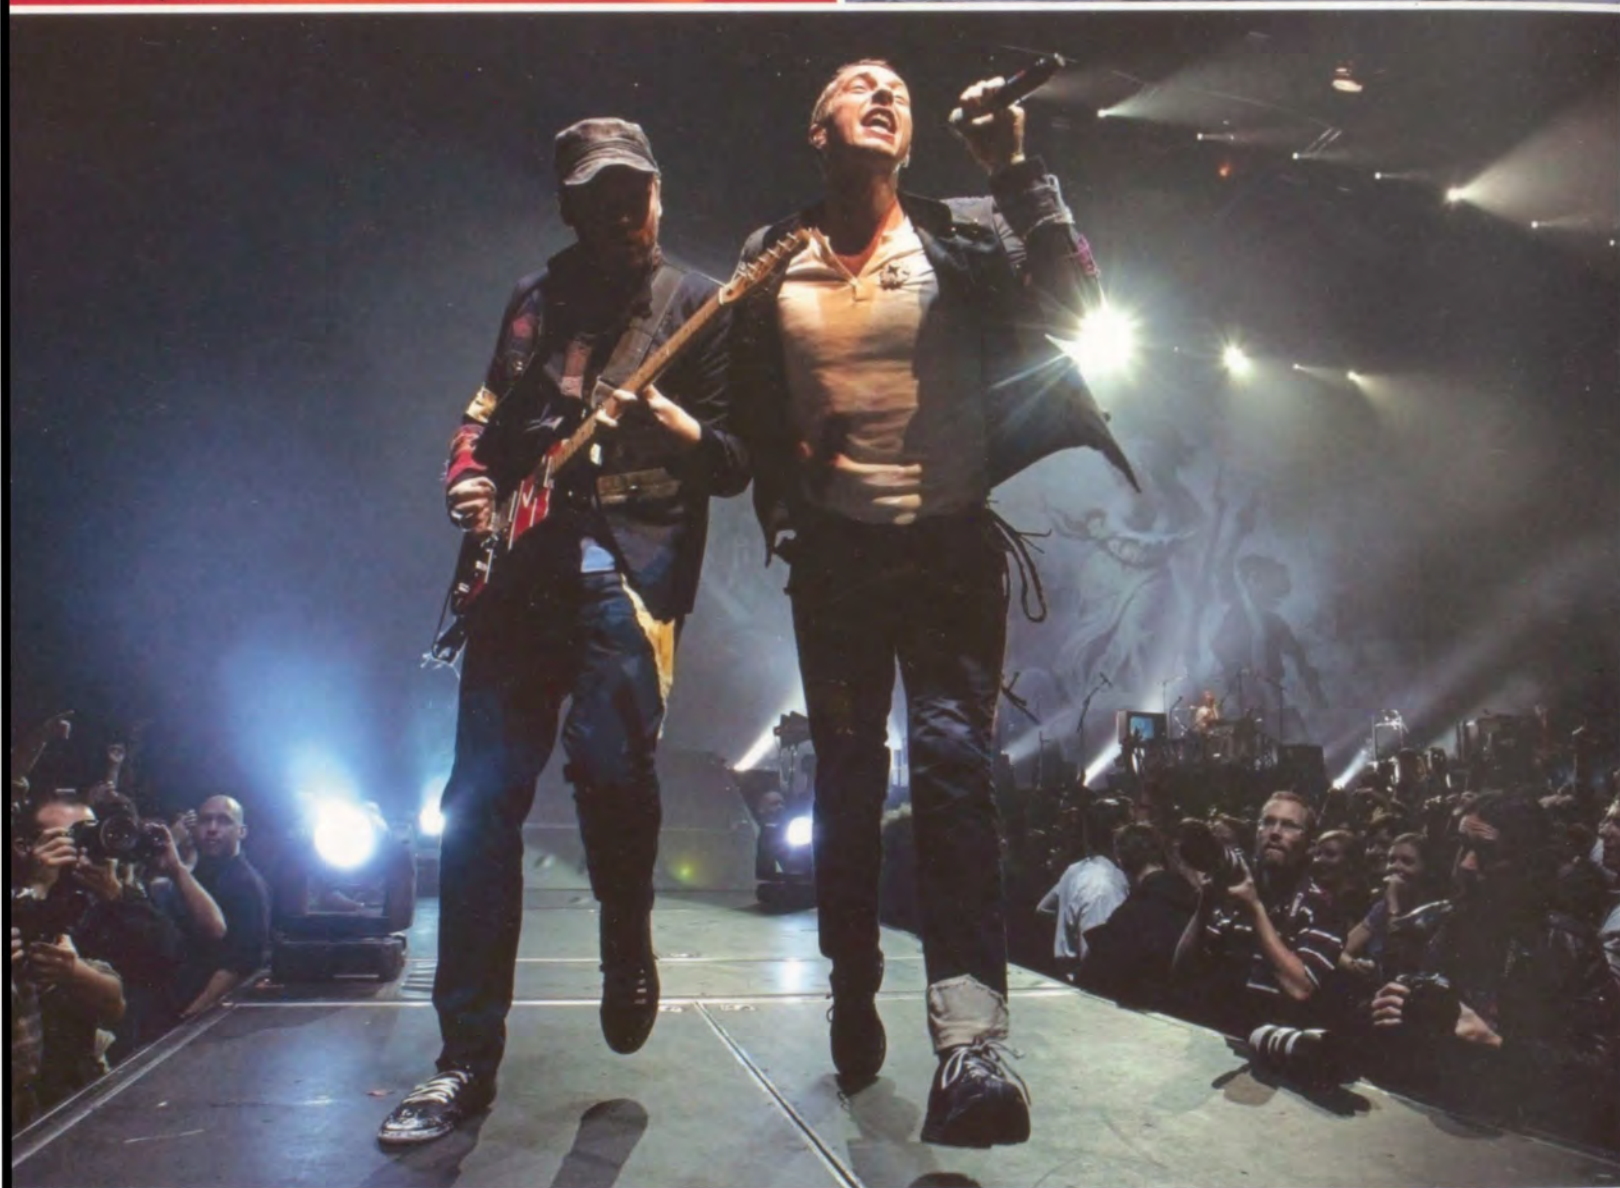

Kanye West, the most commercially successful rap star of the moment, released an experimental pop album titled 808s and Heartbreak. West surprised his fans and critics alike by choosing to sing, rather than rap, on most of the songs. The heavy use of drum machines and an audio processor to alter West's voice brought mixed reviews, but earned the star praise for innovation.

PIRATING FLOURISHES ▶

A multinational task team led by the U.S. Navy was cracking down on pirates off the coast of Somalia. In February, the U.S. Navy made its first arrests of pirates on behalf of the team. Piracy has become big business and a big nuisance in the Gulf of Aden. In 2008, pirates attacked almost 100 vessels, hijacked at least 40 and received an estimated $150 million in ransoms.

LIVING THE GOOD LIFE ▼

British alternative rock band Coldplay released the album they spent the previous two years working on, Viva la Vida or Death and All His Friends, and it became one of the best selling records of the year. The quartet also landed seven Grammy nominations and launched a successful tour.

BY THE NUMBERS • According to various surveys:

Half of primary care doctors said they would change careers because of paperwork in their practice. A shortage of family doctors was predicted by 2025.

About 2.5 million grandparents act as parents to their grandchildren. Parents who moved in with their adult children increased 67% between 2000 and 2007, mostly for financial reasons, not age.

About 25% of American adults are obese. Obesity rates for children remained the same after a 25-year increase. About 32% of children were overweight, 16% obese and 11% very obese.

RAMPAGE IN INDIA ◀

More than luxury hotels and a hospital were damaged in the bombings in Mumbai, India, which killed almost 200 people, mostly Westerners. The fragile relationship between India and Pakistan was strained. Indian officials demanded that Pakistan turn over the suspects. While Pakistan officials said no evidence linked the terrorists to Pakistan, they promised to help with the investigation.

THE FUTURE OF COUNTRY ◀

At only 19, young country star Taylor Swift became Billboard's highest-selling country artist of the year when her second album, Fearless, joined with her self-titled debut record to pass five million in sales. Swift later won Favorite Country Artist at the American Music Awards.

CARRY IT ALL ◀

Big purses were one of the big fashion statements of the year. Neutral or multi-colored, girls and women could carry almost anything they needed with them. Scarves and boots remained must-have accessories. For boys, the slightly spiky look was being worn in short to medium hair. In college, showing up to class in sweats was cool.

IS IT SAFE? ◀

Governments struggled to get a handle on the potential dangers of Bisphenol A, or BPA, an organic compound present in some plastics used to make products such as baby bottles. When new studies showed that exposure to BPA had links to many diseases, Canada and several U.S. states moved for legislation to ban the use of BPA in bottles.

QB SHUFFLE ▶

It was an NFL regular season where big name, veteran quarterbacks made big headlines. Green Bay's Brett Favre decided to end his retirement and coaxed the team into trading him to the New York Jets. At 37, Arizona's Kurt Warner had his finest season in years and led the Cardinals to the Super Bowl. Meanwhile, New England's Tom Brady missed virtually the entire season when he was knocked out in week one with a knee injury.

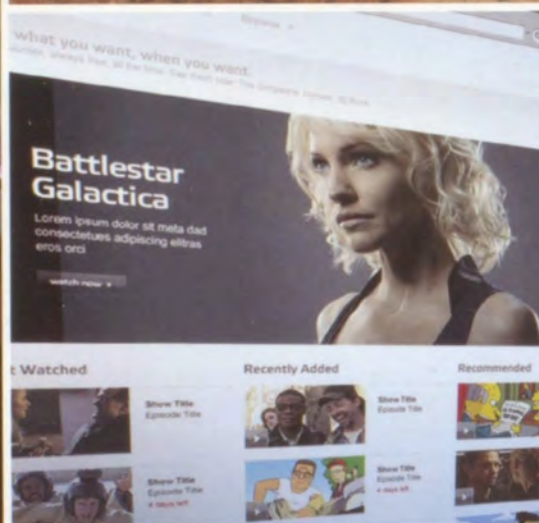

A LONG TIME COMING ►

The Philadelphia Phillies won just the second world title in their 125-year history by defeating the Tampa Bay Rays in the World Series. By winning a rain-soaked Game 5 that was delayed for two days by storms, the Phillies ended Tampa's hopes of going from the worst record in baseball to the championship.

THIRD TIME'S A CHARM ▼

Rapper Lil Wayne's latest album, The Carter III, was one of the best selling records of the year, going platinum five times. It also earned him eight Grammy nominations, more than any other musical artist.

IT'S ON HULU ◀

When NBC and News Corp. launched their streaming video website Hulu.com with almost no content, there were skeptics everywhere. By the end of the year, once full episodes of TV shows from a variety of channels was up on the site for free, Hulu.com had become one of the most popular destinations on the internet and a rival to YouTube.

NO MORE BRATZ ▲

The makers of Bratz dolls were ordered to stop making them after Mattel Inc., makers of Barbie dolls, won a four-year legal dispute. MGA Entertainment, which manufactures Bratz, planned to appeal the decision. The federal court order cited jury findings that designer Carter Bryant developed the Bratz doll concept while working for Mattel.

VAMPIRE TALES ◀

Twilight, the first novel in the popular "Twilight" series about a teenage girl who falls in love with a fellow high school student who is a vampire, was made into a movie that drew huge box office numbers.
